BUTLER'S DEATH GIVES NEW DEAL COURT CONTROL

Murphy Mentioned for Vacancy.

BY CHESLY MANLY.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]
(Picture on back page.)

Washington, D. C., Nov. 16.—The death this morning of Associate Justice Pierce Butler will give the New Deal majority control of the United States Supreme court, five of whose nine members will have been appointed by President Roosevelt.

Only Presidents Washington, Jackson, and Taft appointed more than five Supreme court justices.

Justice Butler, who was 73 years old, died at 4:14 a. m. at the Garfield hospital here of a bladder ailment with which he was stricken in midsummer. While hope for his recovery had been abandoned, death came so suddenly that neither the attending physician nor members of Justice Butler's family were present.

Appointed by Harding.

Justice Butler, a Democrat, was appointed by President Harding, a Republican, in 1922, after a distinguished career in private law practice at St. Paul, Minn. He was the only Catholic on the Supreme tribunal and its only member from a state west of the Mississippi river. These two factors, geographical and religious, therefore, are expected to receive consideration in the selection of a successor to Justice Butler.

For this reason, Attorney General Frank Murphy of Michigan headed the list of possibilities suggested in the speculation among official and congressional circles. Murphy was appointed attorney general last winter after he had been defeated for reelection as governor of Michigan. It was widely reported at that time that Mr. Roosevelt wanted to appoint Murphy to the Supreme court vacancy caused by the death of Justice Benjamin N. Cardozo, but was not certain the senate would confirm such an appointment.

Strike Stand Recalled.

Murphy's toleration of the communist-led C. I. O. sitdown strikes in the automobile industry in 1937, especially his refusal to permit enforcement of a Circuit court order demanding removal of the trespassers in the General Motors plants at Flint, brought senatorial condemnation of his appointment as attorney general. However, the nomination was confirmed by a vote of 78 to 7, and the senate undoubtedly would approve him now for the Supreme court.

Some senators, however, expressed confidence that the President at last would nominate Harold M. Stephens of Utah, an associate justice of the Court of Appeals for the District of Columbia. Justice Stephens, a New Dealer who was appointed to the Appellate court by Mr. Roosevelt, also fits the pattern for a successor to Justice Butler, being a Catholic and a westerner.

Westerners Disappointed.

Several western senators were greatly disappointed when Mr. Roosevelt passed up previous opportunities to nominate Stephens. His elevation now would be regarded favorably by Postmaster General James A. Farley, who bears no great love for Murphy, and would be a gesture in the direction of Democratic harmony which would not harm Mr. Roosevelt's prospect for a third term nomination.

Other possibilities who were seriously considered by Mr. Roosevelt before filling previous vacancies include Senator Sherman Minton [D., Ind.] and Senator Lewis B. Schwellenbach [D., Wash.], both New Deal zealots who face hazardous reëlection campaigns next year.

BOTH SIDES HAIL SPLIT VERDICT AS A VICTORY

Four Firms May Be Fined $10,000 Each.

BY PHILIP HAMPSON.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

South Bend, Ind., Nov. 16.—An Indiana jury tonight found four General Motors companies guilty and 17 individuals not guilty in a criminal action brought by the federal government under the Sherman antitrust act.

Judge Lindley hears antitrust verdict.

Both the defendants and the government hailed the jury's action as a victory, altho the General Motors officials were puzzled by the mixed nature of the verdict.

Under the Sherman act, each of the four companies is subject to fines of $5,000 on each of two counts in the indictment. They are charged with conspiracy and restraint of trade.

The companies found guilty are the General Motors corporation, General Motors Sales corporation, General Motors Acceptance corporation, and General Motors Acceptance Corporation of Indiana.

Sloan and Knudsen Cleared.

Individuals found not guilty included Alfred P. Sloan Jr., chairman of the General Motors corporation board, and William S. Knudsen, president.

Corporation executives said that the jury had cleared the "flesh and blood defendants" and merely found guilty the companies operated by the individuals. Holmes Baldridge, who led the prosecution for the government, asserted the verdict upholds the legal theory under which the indictments were obtained. He admitted, however, that he was sorry the individuals were not convicted.

Federal Judge Walter C. Lindley, before whom the case was tried, set 10 a. m. tomorrow for a hearing on the verdict. Penalty was expected to be imposed at that time. Altho the defense attorneys, Ernest S. Ballard, Chicago, and John Thomas Smith, New York, declined to discuss their plans pending the hearing, it has been indicated that they will appeal the verdict.

Other Companies Affected.

As a result of the verdict the Chrysler corporation and the Ford Motor company must also discontinue practices of which the jury found General Motors guilty. These companies, indicted with General Motors in May, 1938, later signed consent decrees, the validity of which was to depend upon the outcome of the present case. In these decrees the Chrysler and Ford companies agreed to discontinue practices charged if prosecution was dropped.

The verdict came as a climax of a trial that started on Oct. 9. Judge Lindley yesterday issued his instructions and the jury retired at 6:30 p. m. to start its deliberations. At 10 a. m. today a verdict had not been reached and the jury came briefly into the courtroom to ask Judge Lindley for information regarding certain legal points.

The judge impressed on the jury the desirability of reaching a verdict in a case which has involved long study and much expense. Private estimates are that the trial has cost at least a half million dollars for each side.

Then followed a day of anxious waiting by the defendants in the court. For Sloan this was his first appearance in a court as a defendant in his long business career.

Knudsen Able to Joke.

Knudson—a huge man—altho anxious over the result, was able to joke with fellow defendants. His hearty laugh was frequently heard booming in the courtroom.

Two other defendants, M. E. Coyle and W. E. Holler, general manager and general sales manager, respectively, of the Chevrolet division of General Motors, were accompanied in court by their wives.

During the day there were several false alarms from the jury room as

British Clamp a Blackout on All Air Liners

LONDON, Nov. 16 [Special].—One of the strangest experiences possible for civilians in this unusual war is to ride in one of the commercial air liners still operating over England. All the commercial planes are in a perpetual state of blackout, with every cabin window covered with black paint so that no passenger can see anything outside.

From the moment one steps aboard at the point of departure until alighting from the plane at one's destination, no sight of landscape, skyline, or any vista outside the cabin is allowed. All this, of course, is a precaution to prevent passengers from seeing fortifications, airfields, the mobilization of military aircraft or troops, or other military secrets.

The writer was aboard a commercial plane within the last few days on a short flight from Ireland to Croydon airport, just outside London. And he found the experience extremely trying.

Shut in a Flying Box.

The ride was a short one but the idea that we were confined in a box, or had been shut up with the baggage in the tail of the airplane, repeatedly suggested itself.

This trip was made in a De Haviland 86 airplane with four 200 horse power Gipsey motors. Two of the engines were running when we stepped aboard, and the two others were quickly started after the steward locked the cabin door thru which we had entered.

We were unable to tell the moment that we left the ground, and we had no sense of climbing, of turning, or of maneuvering in the air.

When we arrived at, or near, the airfield in England our sensations were equally strange. We knew by our watches that we were reaching the end of our journey. The motors were throttled and the pilots up ahead seemed to be making some sort of preparation for the descent.

A Long Delay.

There was a long delay, made longer by our inability to understand what was happening. Then the motors were throttled down as we obviously began the final glide.

All the passengers agreed after the trip that they then had some conception of the nerve strain instrument flying puts on young airmen. Altho they knew that the pilots up forward could see perfectly, their own blindness made the routine trip a tense one.

DISCONTENTED COWS (80 OF THEM) KEEP A FINN AWAKE A MONTH

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

HELSINGFORS, Finland, Nov. 16.—Finland today was laughing at the misadventure of Yrjo Kujala, a fisherman and a shoemaker who lives on Seiskari Island a few miles from Kronstadt, Russia, in the Gulf of Finland.

When inhabitants of the island were ordered to evacuate a month ago Kujala remained behind with 80 cows. Kujala's distress signals first were seen a few days ago by the crew of a Finnish patrol boat. The crewmen found the emaciated shoemaker half crazed from lack of sleep. Kujala said he had hoped to get some much needed rest. But, he said, the cows, which had to be milked, had crowded around his home and made such a noise he was unable to sleep.

His efforts to milk the cows were unsuccessful and finally he was besieged by the animals. Kujala was brought to a hospital. Coast guardsmen are now serving as milkmaids.

CANADA REDUCES SCOPE OF EMPIRE AIR FORCE PLANS

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

OTTAWA, Ont., Nov. 16.—The government of Great Britain will supply most of the airplanes for the British empire air scheme and Canada will supply most of the airmen, according to latest information from the air conference here.

The air scheme will not be quite so ambitious as first planned. Instead of building 100 airdromes, the dominion intends now to use about 30 Trans-Canada Air Lines sites and about 15 municipal fields. Barracks will be constructed to house the trainees. Canada regards this as being far more economical.

Britain will help Canada bear the initial cost by contributing about 1,500 planes, most of which will be purchased in the United States. Canada will supply more airmen than Australia, New Zealand, or even Britain herself.

Lives for Years on Relief, Find $4,000 in Clothing

Pittsburgh, Pa., Nov. 16 (AP).—An aged woman who lived for years on $3.60 weekly relief allowance and gifts from friends, was given a $555 funeral today. Nurses at the city home, where Mrs. Anna Meyer, 73 years old, died, found $4,040 on her person. The money for the funeral was taken from this sum.

Autumn Dons Spring Attire, but Just Wait!

But the temperature recording is the maximum yesterday, and the forecast is for today, Nov. 17. However, even Old Man Winter, lurking around the corner with an armful of snowballs, can't prevent Chicagoans and folks in the surrounding countryside from pretending it's spring. Overcoats were shed yesterday under a beaming sun. Nature joined in the make believe.

Forest preserve superintendents reported pussy willows were out, complete with silver plush jackets, in swampy hollows and along the streams. Phillip Messenger, third division foreman, was among those who also found a few dandelions. Frank Brunner of Flossmoor Country club was among golf course managers who found dandelions in the fairways.

Drouth Retards Growth.

Plant growth might be much more springlike but for the recent protracted drouth, said August Koch, horticulturist for the park district. "More moisture's what things need," seconded Noel Wysong, assistant chief forester of the forest preserves.

But out at Brookfield zoo, where the elephants and giraffes, lions and tigers are still frolicking out of doors, the animals refuse to be fooled. Director Edward H. Bean hasn't heard a single mating call, or observed any other signs of spring courting.

Well Above Average.

Forecaster C. A. Donnel said yesterday's high of 64 degrees is eight degrees below the record for Nov. 16. A mark of 72 was set in 1931. But the mean temperature of 54 degrees yesterday was 14 degrees above normal. Wednesday the mean was 52, compared with a normal of 40; and Tuesday, 50, compared with 41.

Donnel, who also predicts fair and mild weather for tomorrow, said the condition is caused by a stagnation of air masses. Donnel reports numerous inquiries daily from furriers and coal merchants who are quite put out about it.

Add signs of spring: Pierre A. Thomas, who lives on Greenview drive a mile south of Northbrook, saw several yellow butterflies in his back yard yesterday. Thomas also chased a hornet and vice versa.

CAPONE, BROKEN AND ILL; FREED; PUT IN HOSPITAL

BY WILLARD EDWARDS.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Al Capone.

He was Al Capone, famed gang chieftain of the 1920s, free after seven years of imprisonment. Freedom meant little to him, however, as physicians prepared to attempt to repair the ravages which syphilis has worked on his mind and body.

Spirited here by automobile from the federal penitentiary at Lewisburg, Pa., where he was released from federal custody this morning, Capone entered Union Memorial hospital shortly before noon. He was incarcerated—there is no other word for the manner in which he was secluded under guard from the world outside—in a luxurious two room suite.

Extremely Ill, Says Doctor.

Dr. Joseph E. Moore, noted psychiatrist, has taken charge of Capone's case. His patient is an extremely sick man, he said, and it would be dangerous to permit the slightest questioning or the taking of photographs. At least three weeks of intensive medical care are ahead for Capone before he will be released to go to his winter home in Miami.

Reports of Capone's appearance, garnered from hospital attendants, confirmed Dr. Moore's grave diagnosis. These witnesses said he appears to have little chance of regaining his health. His skin is an unwholesome yellow, they said, and he can scarcely drag his flabby body about the room, his once vigorous stride now a weak groping with uncertain feet.

As he rests in a half sitting position in bed or slumps in a wheel chair, his lips move infrequently. Sometimes he mutters. At times, his reason clears, his lacklustre eyes attain a certain brightness, and he converses in low tones with those about him.

Wife Arrives at Hospital.

Capone's wife arrived at the hospital in midafternoon. An attendant said he overheard a physician tell her Capone might not be removed from the hospital because his condition is so serious.

Other members of Capone's family, reported to be his mother and his brother, Ralph, also are here and take turns occupying the room adjoining the patient's. In their comings and goings they use a private exit undetected by watching reporters.

Three government agents keep Capone under constant surveillance, working in eight hour shifts. This was revealed by Attorney General Frank Murphy in Washington, who remarked that "certain things have come to our attention."

Good Behavior Promised.

"Certain persons are reappearing in Miami, which indicates a foregathering," Murphy added. Thus Capone, technically free, remains a virtual prisoner. However, neither he nor his family has objected to the federal guard and it is regarded probable they welcome it.

Murphy declared that assurances had come from Capone and his family that he was going straight and would not become involved in illegal activities.

The agents assigned to Capone ap-

PRE-THANKSGIVING FOOD BARGAINS

NOTATIONS LINK GANG VICTIM TO BOSTON CULPRIT

Jailed Ex-Official's Name on Cash.

Investigation of the shotgun assassination of Edward J. O'Hare, front man for the Capone syndicate, led State's Attorney Courtney's men yesterday to a safety deposit box containing $22,000 in cash and notations that link O'Hare to a former city treasurer of Boston who now is serving a jail sentence.

Edmund L. Dolan.

The box, found at the First National bank, is carried on the bank's books as that of "John Walter, in care of E. J. O'Hare." In it were two envelopes, each bearing the name "Dolan." The $22,000 was equally divided in the two envelopes.

Replaced in Box.

The receptacle was drilled open in the presence of Assistant State's Attorney Robert Wright and W. G. McKeag, a grand juror, after Wright had appeared before Chief Justice John Prystalski of the Criminal court to obtain the necessary court order. Inasmuch as the safety box contained nothing that bears directly on the gangland murder of O'Hare on Nov. 8, the money was replaced.

Authorities are reported to be convinced that the Dolan referred to in the notations is Edmund L. Dolan, now serving a two and one-half year sentence in the Charles Street jail, Boston, for contempt of court.

He also is charged with larceny of $250,000 during his tenure as Boston treasurer. This case is being held in abeyance pending completion of the contempt sentence. Dolan, State Representative Robert E. Dinsmore and Walter Quinn were sentenced after they had attempted to bribe a jury in May, 1938.

Seek Hidden Wealth Here.

The money found here yesterday could have been placed by Dolan with O'Hare, a close personal friend, to prevent its seizure. Two representatives of his bonding company are understood to be in Chicago in the hope that O'Hare's safety boxes might yield some of Dolan's hidden wealth. The company recently obtained a court order to open a box in a Miami, Fla., bank. A $1,000 bill was found.

State's Attorney Courtney last night refused to discuss any detail of the safety box find. He refused even to confirm the report that the money was located.

Investigators last night were in possession of a letter found in O'Hare's effects and signed "Eddie D." Dated Oct. 30, 1938, the missive gives O'Hare a summary of the activities under way in Massachusetts to win public and political favor for dog racing.

Their agents, it continues, had been active in Bristol county [where O'Hare's dog track is situated], visiting lawyers, teachers, and business men. "They report good feeling, and might also report feeling good," the letter says.

Letter Discusses Politics.

There also is a mention of the governorship campaign of former Gov. James M. Curley and a prediction that the state would go Democratic. [Curley was defeated.]

Curley was Dolan's political sponsor when he entered public life. It was under Curley's régime as mayor of Boston that Dolan's alleged thefts occurred.

In O'Hare's room at the Illinois Athletic club Courtney's investigators last week found a private telephone book containing the number of former Gov. Curley's home at Jamaica Plains, Mass. Dolan also is a resident of this suburb, living next door to Curley.

Start Two Way Inquiry.

The investigation of O'Hare's Chicago deals was given new impetus with the announcement that both the state and the federal government would inquire into the real estate transactions of an enterprise in which O'Hare, Municipal Judge Eugene J. Holland, and others were partners.

This pool was launched in 1937 with the purchase of properties and assets held by the Bain banks when they went into bankruptcy in 1931. Its business in more than two years is estimated to involve many thousands of dollars.

Handled in Two Courts.

The two way inquiry into the Holland-O'Hare realty deals results from the fact that litigation about the Bain bankruptcy was carried on in both the state and federal courts. State's Attorney Courtney has ordered two auditors to scrutinize every transaction handled by the state courts.

United States Attorney William J. Campbell has assigned an assistant, Lawrence J. Miller, to investigate the federal court sale at which John McCarthy, a real estate dealer and member of the Holland-O'Hare enterprise, bid in part of the assets of John Bain, Inc., a holding company that handled certain mortgages and properties not carried by the failed banks.

Confers with Federal Agents.

Miller searched the records of the sale and other files yesterday, then conferred with department of justice agents. The department's bureau of investigation has jurisdiction in bankruptcy matters involving possible concealment of assets.

The government became interested in the deals after the disclosure that $17,255 which was due John Bain, Inc., from the city as an award in a condemnation proceeding was not included in an inventory of assets turned over to Charles M. Bates, who was appointed federal trustee in bankrupty for the concern.

This amount was almost the same as the McCarthy syndicate's bid of $17,500 at the bankruptcy sale.

Judge Puts Up Money.

Members of the realty syndicate said they did not feel they were obliged to call the attention of the federal court to the item. Subsequently, and before confirmation of the sale, they paid an additional $2,500. The original purchase money was supplied by Judge Holland, with checks for $5,250 and $2,625, and by McCarthy, who paid $9,625.

Efforts will be made to establish the responsibility for leaving out the $17,255 item, which represented payment for a strip of land taken from one of the properties in the widening of Crawford avenue [now Pulaski road]. The item was omitted from an inventory the company submitted to the American National Bank and Trust company, as state receiver, and later to Bates, as federal trustee.

Charles Albers, receiver for the Bain banks, called attention to the omission when he filed an objection to confirmation of the sale. This resulted in the additional payment of $2,500.

Judge Holland has already been questioned at the office of State's Attorney Courtney, who announced yesterday that others involved would also be asked to make statements. It was understood that the federal government may also summon those who had part in the deals.

Denies Part in Deal.

R. R. Jenness, real estate dealer, with offices at 231 South La Salle street, asserted yesterday that he had been told his name was used in connection with the $17,500 bid on the Bain properties. He said that altho he had managed a number of properties for Judge Holland and O'Hare, he had had no part in the Bain deal.

He became associated with O'Hare, he said, thru Charles E. Richardson, also a real estate man and co-executor with the Northern Trust company of O'Hare's estate. Jenness was employed by Richardson to handle a number of his accounts. These included O'Hare's, which later became so large that Jenness left Richardson and became an employé of O'Hare.

Tho he knew of his employer's connection with Sportsman's Park race track, he had never heard him mentioned as front man for the Capone syndicate, Jenness said.

Presses Slaying Inquiry.

As the financial picture of O'Hare's farflung activities continued to take shape yesterday Capt. Daniel Gilbert, chief investigator for the state's attorney, pressed his investigation into the actual slaying.

Miss Annette [Toni] Cavaretta, confidential secretary to the slain man, underwent a second questioning. She said that her late employer knew for three weeks before his death that he was in grave danger, and that he appeared to realize that his peril was personified by hoodlums.

Recalls His Nervousness.

She spoke of the nervous tension which he showed. Always outspoken against hoodlums, he was particularly vehement in the days just before his murder. [O'Hare detested gangsters because of their loud dress, bad grammar, and uncouth manners.]

Questioned again with Miss Cavaretta was Edward H. O'Hare, naval officer son of the slain man. Miss Ursula [Sue] Granata, sister of State Representative Peter C. Granata, who said she was O'Hare's fiancée, will be questioned Saturday, Capt. Gilbert said.

Gets Life at 90

JOHN BUDNEK.

White River, S. D., Nov. 16 (AP).—John Budnek, who claims to be 90 years old, was sentenced today to life imprisonment for the murder of his brother, Joe, 67, at the latter's farm home near here last September. He was accused of having shot the younger brother in the head, stabbed him in the abdomen, and set fire to every building on the farm. The South Dakota attorney general's office said Budnek was acquitted 25 years ago by a Hastings, Neb., jury of the fatal shooting of a brother-in-law at a funeral parlor where the two men had gone to view the body of Budnek's mother.

DEFENSE LOSES PLEA IN LIQUOR CONSPIRACY CASE

Federal District Judge Patrick T. Stone yesterday gave the government ten days to file bills of particulars against five men, including two former assistant United States district attorneys, charged with conspiracy to "fix" bootlegging cases. He overruled demurrers attacking the indictments as "vague, ambiguous and inconsistent." The defendants are Daniel D. Glasser and Norton L. Kretske, the former assistant prosecutors; Alfred E. Roth, an attorney; Louis Kaplan, alleged bootlegger, and Anthony Horton, a colored bondsman. Judge Stone, who is from Madison, Wis., is special judge in the case.

Shoots His Best Friend in Quarrel Over the War

Karol Done, 52 years old, shot his "best friend" last night in a dispute over the European war. Done is a Russian and lives at 1742 West 13th street. The friend he shot is Joe Adamski, 66, 1752 West 15th street, a Pole. They quarreled about the war in Done's flat. Suddenly Done grabbed a revolver and shot Adamski in the abdomen. Adamski was taken to the county hospital. Done was arrested.

CAPONE, BROKEN AND ILL, FREED; PUT IN HOSPITAL

Kept Under Close Guard in Baltimore Suite.

parently were from Washington headquarters as the local branch of the federal bureau of investigation here asserted none of its men was at the hospital.

Capone was lodged in a corner suite on the fifth floor of the hospital, which is a large and modern institution. These quarters were obviously selected because a guard against unwelcome visitors could easily be arranged.

Hospital authorities were at first reluctant to admit that the former gang czar is a patient. It was some hours after Capone had walked into the hospital, slowly and resting upon the arms of companions, before Dr. Clyde D. Frost, director, confirmed his arrival.

Decline to Discuss Case.

"Alphonse Capone entered the Union Memorial hospital today for treatment and observation," Dr. Frost announced. "He is the patient of Dr. Joseph E. Moore."

Dr. Moore confirmed the statement that he was treating Capone. Neither physician would go any further than that. Both declined to discuss the nature of Capone's illness.

That Capone is suffering from paresis, a form of brain paralysis which often follows the contraction of syphilis, has been known for some time. Dr. Moore has been physician in charge of the syphilitic division of the medical clinic for 10 years and is the author of a number of works on venereal disease. He is associate professor of medicine at the Johns Hopkins medical school. The Johns Hopkins hospital is reported to have refused to accept Capone as a patient.

Not Insane, Says Spokesman.

Capone is not insane, a government spokesman declared, or he would not have been released from custody. His mind has been seriously affected, according to reports which were seemingly confirmed by the description of his appearance.

Capone's whereabouts was a mystery for several hours this morning after the official announcement had been made that he had been released at Lewisburg after seven years in government prisons for income tax evasion, with three years cut from a 10 year sentence for good behavior.

A year ago Capone had been transferred from Alcatraz to the Terminal Island prison off San Diego, Cal., because of his physical condition. Last Sunday night, accompanied by federal agents and Dr. George Hess, chief medical officer at the prison, he boarded a train for Lewisburg.

Given Unconditional Release.

He left the train at Harrisburg at 3:54 a. m. yesterday and he and his escort journeyed the 60 miles to Lewisburg in automobiles. James V. Bennett, director of the federal prison bureau, said he was given his unconditional release a few hours later.

Capone was given a suit of clothes, Bennett said, but not the $10 ordinarily handed to federal prisoners upon their discharge. He and his escort drove to Baltimore by an unknown route. They arrived shortly before noon and entered the main entrance of the hospital. Two men got out and assisted Capone from the car. They stepped into an elevator and were whisked to the fifth floor suite.

PARENTS GIVE UP; THEIR JULIET CAN HAVE HER ROMEO

New York, Nov. 16 (AP).—Eileen Herrick's socially prominent parents, Mr. and Mrs. Walter R. Herrick, withdrew all objections today to her proposed marriage to George Lowther III.

Thus ended an extraordinary controversy in which the young broker tried to have the law on the Herricks, claiming their daughter was being held incommunicado from him against her will.

The struggle ended yesterday in the dismissal of Lowther's habeas corpus writ with the agreement that after 10 days of rest in a hospital Eileen could see him as much as she wished and marry him if she desired.

"She is free to do anything in the world she wants to," Mrs. Herrick said today. Said Herrick: "I am old-fashioned. Perhaps I have seemed harsh. But Eileen's future means everything to me. I've only been trying to keep her from making a tragic mistake."

HUNT EX-CONVICT FOR SHOOTING OF STATE POLICEMAN

Harrisburg, Ill., Nov. 16 (AP).—An order to take him dead or alive went out today to 150 officers searching for an ex-convict named as the gunman who shot and wounded State Highway Policeman Cecil Brokmyer last night.

Meanwhile, Brokmyer, 45 years old, of Shawneetown, remained in a serious condition in a hospital here. A bullet penetrated his body below his heart and emerged from his back.

Police Chief Hal Bynum of Harrisburg said Brokmyer's assailant was Willard Shockley, 23, who has served sentences in Pontiac reformatory and southern Illinois state penitentiary at Menard.

Brokmyer approached Shockley to question him concerning a filling station robbery here last night. Shockley drew his pistol and shot the patrolman.

DIES OF INJURIES AFTER FALL.

Michael Russ, 42 years old, 1419 Wicker Park avenue, a janitor in the American Fore building, 844 Rush street, died in Henrotin hospital last night of injuries suffered last Saturday when he fell in the building.

HEINTZ PLACED ON PROBATION IN BANDITRY CASE

Hubert Heintz, 30 years old, the stockbroker's son who turned robber and then bleached his hair to avoid detection, was placed on probation for one year yesterday by Judge James F. Fardy in Criminal court. Heintz previously had pleaded guilty to armed robbery. He then turned state's evidence against his lawyers, who, he said, helped him arrange his disguise.

The motion for probation received support of the state's attorney's office.

"Never have I seen a case which more merited probation," said Assistant State's Attorney Morris G. Meyers.

Heintz was arrested for robbery of a loan office at 3150 Lincoln avenue on Nov. 4, 1938. Witnesses were unable to identify him, and the robbery charge was dismissed. Later Heintz confessed and involved Edward A. Fisher and Francis J. Kennedy, former assistant United States district attorneys. A jury acquitted them of conspiracy charges three weeks ago.

STEAL GOODS WORTH $200.

L. S. U.'S FORMER PREXY TRIES TO KILL SELF IN JAIL

In Grave Condition After Razor Blade Slashing.

Baton Rouge, La., Nov. 16 [Special].—Dr. James Monroe Smith, facing prison for fleecing Louisiana State university, of which he formerly was president, was in a serious condition tonight as the result of an attempt to commit suicide in his jail cell here.

James Monroe Smith.

Shortly before he was to have started a long sentence, the former educator slashed an artery in his foot with a razor blade. A jailer, who brought Smith's breakfast, found him weak and bleeding in his cell bathtub.

The presence of blood on the bed indicated the prisoner had cut his foot there and then entered warm water in the tub in an effort to keep the wound open. The cut was not large but was sufficient to sever an artery.

Dr. Smith was taken to Our Lady of the Lake sanitarium, where intravenous injections were administered tonight. Altho he was extremely weak, physicians said he probably would recover if no complications developed. He is 51 years old.

Previous Attempt Balked.

Sheriff Newman de Bretton said a previous attempt by Dr. Smith to commit suicide was frustrated shortly after his arrest last July. He said a bottle of poison was intercepted while being smuggled to the prisoner in a bag which contained a carton of ice cream.

Dr. Smith was to have been taken to the state penitentiary tomorrow to begin serving sentences totalling 8 to 24 years for misuse of university funds. He also is under three concurrent federal sentences of 30 months each for mail fraud and income tax evasion.

The offenses, to which Dr. Smith pleaded guilty at hearings in the last week, were connected with the loss of $500,000 in university funds. Most of the money was used in disastrous wheat market plunging.

State Rocked by Scandal.

A financial scandal that has rocked the state was precipitated last June 25 by Dr. Smith's resignation as president of the university, where he had been placed by the late Senator Huey P. Long to head the state's greatest public educational institution.

Smith fled to Canada, was pursued, and brought back here to face a host of criminal charges that grew out of his nine year administration and guidance of the school thru a 13 million dollar building program.

Included in the sensational aftermath were the suicides of three political figures, the resignation of Gov. Richard W. Leche, and the bringing of more than 200 criminal charges against 86 persons, many of them political heirs of the late Senator Long.

LABOR SLAYING STILL MYSTERY AFTER 17 DAYS

Police Say They Are Hunting Clews.

Seventeen days have passed since Paul Peters, a member of the International Printing Pressmen and Assistants union, was shot to death in front of his home at 3505 North Oak Park avenue. Police officials said last night that none of the mystery connected with the killing has been dispelled.

The international union has been dominated for 32 years by former United States Senator George L. Berry [D., Tenn.] despite frequent opposition to his policies. There had been strife in the local of which Peters was a member, known as Franklin No. 4, for months. Peters was one of the leaders in a minority faction that had gone to court to demand an accounting of funds.

Many Questioned, No Clews.

Capt. Herbert Burns of the Jefferson Park police said he and his assistants had questioned dozens of persons, but had discovered no tangible clews.

"We feel that some labor union troubles were at the back of the plot to kill Peters," he added, "but there is not a scrap of evidence to prove it. We are still working and hope for progress."

Capt. Daniel Gilbert, chief of the state's attorney's police, was asked what he was doing toward solving the case.

"Murder cases," he replied, "are essentially matters for the city police to handle. I presume they are still at work on the Peters killing. We will be glad to coöperate."

Brother Charges Threat.

Peters' brother James, who uses the name King, is also a member of the pressmen's union. He said that Peters, shortly before his death, told of being threatened in the union headquarters. He quoted a union official as saying: "You King boys might be taken for a ride unless you lay off the officials."

The local heads of the union are S. B. Marks, international administrator; Hugh Crambert, president, and John Clark, secretary. All have been quizzed by the police and have denied any threats were made to Peters.

Peters, whose real name was Pietrzykowski, was 50 years old. He had quit work for the Loyola University press at 12:47 a. m. and was on his way home when the killer, who had been lying in wait, approached and fired on him with a shotgun at short range. The inquest into the death will be resumed next Wednesday.

Evanston Police Hunt Two Hard Boiled Cider Bandits

Evanston police had two clews as they hunted two burglars yesterday. [1] The burglars like cider, and [2] they have a lot of pennies in their pockets. The burglars raided the apartment of the Misses Jean Galloway, Jean Kapp, and Mildred Bowers at 1311 Chicago avenue, Evanston, late Wednesday night. Two empty glasses and an empty cider jug, left on the kitchen table, told the story of their thirst. They took several rings, and articles of clothing, and a penny bank containing $15.

Five Are Named

Five candidates were announced yesterday in the annual contest for empress of the naval R. O. T. C. ball of Northwestern university which is to be held at the Stevens hotel Dec. 1.

Twenty-seven candidates in all are to compete, or one each from the sorority and open houses on the Evanston campus. The queen will not be chosen until he night of the ball. The first five candidates announced indicate that all parts of the country will have a co-ed representative. They are:

ATTACKS ROOMER, KILLS SELF AFTER DIVORCE DEMAND

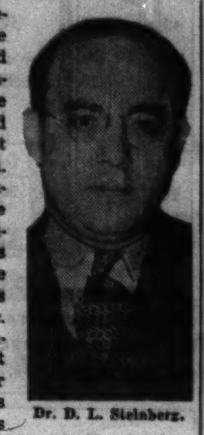
Last December, Walter Styk, 25 years old, visited Poland, and married. He returned to Chicago some time later, but his bride, Angeline, 17, stayed behind. Recently she began writing Styk, demanding a divorce. He refused to consent until a few weeks ago. Yesterday young Styk left his home at 3316 South Carpenter street, and went to the home of his brother-in-law, Leo Sawa, 3227 South May street. There he struck a roomer, Stanley Ostrowski, 46, with a pipe. Ostrowski ran out for police. When police arrived they found Styk had shot himself fatally in the temple.

Triple Murder and Suicide Wipe Out a Maine Family

Scarboro, Me., Nov. 16 (AP).—Triple murder and suicide today wiped out the family of Mr. and Mrs. William A. Rowe, whose bodies, with those of their two children, Arthur, 14, and Claire, 13, were found charred and bullet-marked in their burning restaurant home. The official verdict that Rowe had murdered his family and then killed himself was returned by Medical Examiner William R. Needelman.

MANTENO JURY INQUIRY TURNS TO FOOD SUPPLY

Testimony concerning the food supply at the Manteno State hospital was heard yesterday by the special Kankakee county grand jury which is investigating the recent typhoid fever epidemic at the institution. The jury is seeking to determine whether negligence by officials was responsible for the 53 deaths in the epidemic.



Dr. D. L. Steinberg.

Dr. D. L. Steinberg, assistant managing officer at Manteno, was the chief witness during the day. He was reported to have told the jury he knew nothing of the reports from the state health department that the hospital's water supply was contaminated.

Other witnesses were Mrs. Mary Burrell, a nurse employed there during August and September; Mrs. Grace Reynolds, a cook; Miss Margaret Gillmore, a nurse regularly assigned to the institution, and Dr. O. A. Phipps, a physician in Manteno. Several of the witnesses, it was reported, told the jury that the hospital food was poor and kitchen conditions insanitary.

Dr. Walter Baer, acting managing officer, reported yesterday that there are still 176 typhoid cases at the hospital. He said eight of these were serious and one critical.

TWO HELD TO JURY AS ROBBERS.

Harry Bames, 34 years old, and Michael Kuhn, 28, were held to the grand jury on charges of robbery yesterday by Judge Gibson E. Gorman in Felony court. Howard Garrity, 40, of 2802 North Leavitt street, was freed when it was found he was not involved.

WILSON DISTILLING CO. INC. NEW YORK N. Y.

FIND BROOKLYN JUDGE INNOCENT OF CORRUPTION

Senators Explain Vote in Exoneration.

Albany, N. Y., Nov. 16 (AP).—New York's senate today exonerated Kings County [Brooklyn] Judge George W. Martin of six removal charges accusing him of corrupt use of his office.

Judge G. W. Martin.

The decision, climaxing seven weeks' testimony, gave Martin, 63 years old and ill of diabetes in a New York City hospital, the right to retain his judicial position he has held since his appointment to the bench 19 years ago by Alfred E. Smith, then governor.

Governor Asks Removal.

The senators, sitting as judges in considering the charges directed against Martin by a Kings county grand jury, rejected Gov. Herbert H. Lehman's recommendation for removal after a vote in which nearly every member gave a painstaking explanation of his ballot.

The grand jury's charges were filed with the governor after the jurist was prosecuted by Assistant Attorney General John H. Amen and acquitted last June 3 of accepting a $1,000 bribe to quash an abortion case. Amen also prosecuted the charges before the senate, convened in extraordinary session.

Exoneration Voted Quickly.

Fourteen senators—the number assuring exoneration—had voted for Martin's acquittal when the 26th senator of the 47 voting arose. Nine of the 14 senators were Democrats.

The removal charges accused the jurist of corruptly using his position to promote questionable speculation; exhibiting character defects unfitting him for the bench; violating and acquiescing in the violation of law; making lunacy commission and other appointments for personal advantage; corruptly receiving gifts from lawyers practicing in his court, and permitting friendships to influence his judicial decisions.

KUHN'S SUPREME RULE OVER BUND TREASURY TOLD

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Nov. 16.—Fritz Kuhn, national leader of the German-American bund, was vested with such absolute power over the purse strings of his organization that he could use the funds to buy race horses or any other purpose that suited his fancy, defense witnesses testified at his larceny trial today.

This line of defense was begun after motions of Kuhn's counsel for dismissal of the indictment were denied by Judge James G. Wallace who is presiding over the trial before a jury in general sessions court.

James Wheeler-Hill, bund secretary, was telling about Kuhn's absolute power when Judge Wallace interrupted.

"Absolutely," said Wheeler-Hill.

"Throw it in the sewer?" pursued the judge.

"Yes, sir," said the witness.

HOLD BOY GANG FOR MAIL ORDER BICYCLE THEFTS

Ten boys and young men from 9 to 21 years old, accused of making a business of selling stolen bicycles by mail order, were questioned yesterday at the state's attorney's office. The two oldest, Earl Bossow, 21, of 2022 Warren boulevard, and James Cronk, 17, of 1107 South Hoyne avenue, were returned to the police for showups. The others were sent to the Juvenile home.

Sheffield avenue police said the gang wrote letters to prospective customers, offering to sell bicycles at $2 and $2.50 each and that when they received an order, they stole the kind of wheel wanted. The plan failed when two of the younger boys were caught riding stolen bicycles.

Those sent to the Juvenile home are Walter McCaffrey, 9; his brother, Jack, 10, of 1246 South Kildare avenue; Charles Cronk, 12, brother of James; Arthur Conley, 16, of 1105 South Hoyne avenue; William Roedel, 16, of 1625 South Spaulding avenue; John Coppini, 13, of 2113 Kendall street; Joseph Pongetti, 16, of 1912 Washburne avenue, and Ralph Morgan, 15, of 3316 Archer avenue.

TRACE RUSSELL KIDNAP SLAYING TRAIL FOR JURY

Government Expected to Finish Case Today.

BY WILLIAM STRAND.

More than a score of witnesses paraded to the witness stand in federal court yesterday to tell of the crime trail blazed across the central west by Jack Russell, Oklahoma bad man, accused of the kidnap-slaying of Billy Scott Hamilton.

Russell's death in the electric chair is sought for the crime. He is being tried before a jury of seven women and five men in the court of Federal Judge Charles E. Woodward. It is the first mixed jury in the history of Cook county qualified to impose the death penalty.

Tell of Finding Body.

Hamilton, a Kansas milling salesman, was kidnaped near Pittsburg, Kas., on the morning of July 12, forced to drive to a lonely road outside of Ringwood, Ill., in McHenry county, and there shot and killed. Yesterday Mervin Stanies, 16 years old, an apple cheeked farm boy, and his father, William, told how they found the victim's nearly nude body in a pasture of their farm. Another witness placed Russell in Kenosha, Wis., 35 miles from Ringwood, an hour after the body was found.

At today's session of the trial the government is expected to complete its case. Sheriff Champ Crawford and Constable Richard Hill of Franklin county, Arkansas, are scheduled to be called to describe how they dressed themselves as fishermen and tricked Russell into peaceful surrender in a tourist camp near the village of Ozark on July 18, exactly one week after the defendant had escaped from the Oklahoma penitentiary.

Confession to Be Offered.

Then the government prosecutors, Martin Ward and A. Bradley Eben, will offer a 26 page confession which Russell made shortly after his capture. In this the outlaw described in detail the slaying of Hamilton.

Attorneys Donald D. Rogers and Michael Ostrowski, representing Russell, have indicated they will battle against allowing the confession to be read to the jury.

Yesterday the jury heard a hotel bellboy, Noah Burress, testify that Russell was in Kenosha at 9 a. m. on July 14. The outlaw failed to tip Burress when the latter took him to his room in a Kenosha hotel—and the bellboy remembered.

Other witnesses linked the defendant to Hamilton's personal belongings which he left behind in fleeing from the hideout in Kenosha. Robert H. Klett, agent of the department of justice, testified that Russell's fingerprints were found on Hamilton's car, which was abandoned in Kenosha. Then there were accounts by the victims themselves of four robberies and two other kidnapings committed by the badman.

Zipper Bag Is Link.

Ordinarily these crimes would have no bearing on the kidnaping and murder of the milling salesman and would not be admissible as evidence, it was explained. But Russell committed a blunder in the theft of a small zipper bag which Hamilton had in his car. The outlaw carried this bag until he was recaptured. Thus it serves as the link connecting all the crimes, according to the prosecutors.

Barnett Egholm of Oklahoma City said he saw the bag when Russell kidnaped and robbed him in Kenosha, forcing him to drive to Elgin.

Huron Cox, colored, an attendant in a Kansas City garage, noticed the bag when Russell held him up and took a police squad car which was parked in the garage. This was the car which the defendant drove to the tourist camp where he was captured.

GORE CONVICTED; FACES DEATH IN ELECTRIC CHAIR

Doctor Near Collapse in Benton Jail.

Benton, Ill., Nov. 16 [Special].—Dr. George W. Gore Sr., prominent southern Illinois physician, was reported near collapse tonight as a result of the death verdict returned against him this morning for the murder of his relative, Carl Choisser, Benton attorney and newspaper publisher.

The elderly doctor was tried in the same courtroom as his namesake son, who less than a month ago was acquitted in the mysterious slaying of his stepmother, Mrs. Nancy Gore. Mrs. Gore was shot to death in her home last July.

Choisser, a nephew of Dr. Gore's first wife, was to have been young Gore's counsel in his trial. A quarrel between the attorney and Dr. Gore over the young man's defense was said to have led to Choisser's slaying on Sept 25.

Two Women on Jury.

A jury of 10 men and two women convicted Dr. Gore of murder and fixed his punishment at death in the electric chair.

A crowd of spectators, which had jammed the courtroom thruout the two day trial, made no display of any kind when the verdict was read. In the courtroom at the time were Dr. Gore's son and Choisser's father, Ewing Choisser, and his brother, Steve Choisser. The elder Choisser said he would have been satisfied with a "less extreme" penalty for his son's slayer.

Even Dr. Gore showed no emotion when he was told to stand while the verdict was read. But after he had been taken back to the county jail Deputy Sheriff William Baker reported he appeared to be suffering from shock and was near collapse.

"How much more can a man stand?" the physician, who is 65 years old, muttered.

Counsel for Dr. Gore did not deny that the physician shot and killed Choisser when they met near the Benton public square nearly two months ago but had attempted to show he was emotionally insane at the time. The physician testified he did not remember any part of the shooting.

ALPACUNA OVERCOATS

$40

It's such a great job of reproducing nature's handiwork—(see illustrations below)—that you get 26.3% more warmth—61% longer wear and 1½ pounds less weight. Incidentally it has made Alpacuna the largest selling overcoat in America. See it in the new 1939-40 balmacaans, single and double-breasted raglans, set-in sleeve models and box coats—and in the new 1939-40 shades. But regardless of soaring markets—you still pay the old 1938 price of $40—that's value

NOTE—In the animal coat, hairs are ALL ON THE FACE. The back of the coat is thin, soft, pliable skin. This hair or wool on the face protects the animal against heat or cold without excessive weight

NOTE—Alpacuna is identical. Animal fibers also ARE ALL ON THE FACE. The fine, long-staple cotton back functions as skin of the animal's coat, binding together about 35,000 hair fibers to the square inch

ENGLAND'S GRIP ON EUROPE TO END: GERMANY

Says British Supremacy Must Be Destroyed.

BY SIGRID SCHULTZ.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, Nov. 16.—"Germany will fight until British supremacy is destroyed!" This became the slogan of Germany today. It appeared in almost all newspapers and was expressed in all official and semiofficial conferences. Nazi leaders described the proclamation as a reprisal for the "British attempt to destroy Germany."

The new wave of threats to fight until the destruction of the enemy is achieved came as an answer to the peace mediation offer of Queen Wilhelmina of the Netherlands and King Leopold of the Belgians.

Declines to Make Reply.

Joachim von Ribbentrop, German foreign minister, last night summoned the Belgian and Dutch envoys and told them that, inasmuch as Britain and France had rejected the offer, the Berlin government did not consider it necessary to make a reply.

German newspapers, such as the Nachtausgabe, told readers that England and France "brutally rejected the Belgian and Dutch peace offer and proclaimed heinous demands against Germany." The fact that Queen Wilhelmina's personal message to Adolf Hitler was merely answered with a verbal declaration by Von Ribbentrop was described as normal procedure by the Nazis.

The Dutch legation in Berlin did not share this view. It asserted that Hitler's failure to reply personally to the queen's message conflicts with customary diplomacy. The legation added that the method adopted by the Germans was resented by Dutch officialdom.

The Nazis proclaimed that "Germany will free Europe from the unbearable pressure of Britain's rule of violence," to use the words of the Lokalanzeiger.

Denounces "World Dictatorship."

The Nachtausgabe went a step farther and denounced Britain's "world dictatorship."

"Resistance of big and small neutral powers will increase," it said. "England will have to learn that the right to world dictatorship no longer belongs to her—she must learn that the strength of the German army and the strength of the German people will enable them [the army and the people] to enforce peace in Europe."

The Nachtausgabe said nobody should believe England when she says that Germany plans to invade Holland and Belgium or that the reich has any intention to strike southeastward.

"We are aiming directly at our goal—destruction of British supremacy in Europe," the paper concluded.

Total of British Flyers Lost in War Is Increased to 165

LONDON, Nov. 16 (AP).—A Royal Air Force casualty list published today raised to 165 the number of airmen killed in the war. The list showed seven were killed in action, bringing that total to 39. Also included were 23 "killed in active service" which covers training accidents and other causes. Prior to today, 135 had been reported dead from all causes.

SWISS INDUSTRY HEARS OF PEACE OFFER BY BERLIN

BY E. R. NODERER.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BASEL, Switzerland, Nov. 16.—Important Swiss indutrialists learned from business men in Germany today that an offer to make peace may soon be launched from Berlin.

Fuehrer Hitler is reported to have been urged to make a deal with Britain and France which would permit him to keep Danzig and the former Polish corridor, while withdrawing from the balance of the Polish territory conquered by German armies.

Hitler, many Germans believe, could have had Danzig and the corridor without war if he had played his cards a little differently.

Fear Protracted Struggle.

Most Nazis still think they can win the war, but big business interests in Germany fear it may be a long and costly process which might leave the victor and the vanquished alike bankrupt. They are particularly worried by the Russian menace and, it is believed, would gladly make a deal with the western empires now if they could do so without costly concessions.

British statements that Germany must pull out of Austria and Czecho-Slovakia as well as Poland before England will talk peace are regarded by the Germans merely as bargaining points to be scaled down when the time comes to talk things over.

Several important manufacturers here who as recently as two weeks ago thought the war would last years, now have come around to the view that it may be over before spring. Information received in the last few days leads them to believe that Germany is not in such a strong position, either militarily or economically, as has been believed.

Effect of British Propaganda.

British propaganda, which was derided as useless in the early stages of the war by those who know the Germans, is reported to be having some effect now. Germans who have crossed the border into Basel in the last few days admit that whispers are running thru the reich that the Munich bombing was staged by the German GSP [secret police]. It is even being referred to in Germany as "another reichstag fire," they say. Observers here regard this as evidence that the British are beginning to dent the armor of Nazi propaganda.

[Germany was accused of having started the reichstag fire as an excuse for increasing opposition to the communists.]

Six Killed When Peruvian Army Plane Crashes, Burns

LIMA, Peru, Nov. 16 (AP).—Six persons—five Peruvian army flyers and an Italian mechanic—were killed yesterday when an army plane crashed and caught fire near Mala, 15 miles south of Lima.

PRAGUE TO KILL CZECH SOLDIERS WHO AIDED POLES

PRAGUE, Czecho-Slovakia, Nov. 16 (AP).—The Prague radio tonight announced that members of the so-called Czech Legion—patriots who fought in Poland—would be shot, whether taken as prisoners of war or caught after returning home.

Gen. Lev Prchala, former officer in the now disbanded Czecho-Slovakian army and commander of the legion, escaped to France with several followers. Some, however, were reported to have returned secretly to the Nazi protectorate of Bohemia-Moravia.

The legion's strength has not been established definitely, but one report said it numbered more than 30,000.

FRENCH THROW UP A NEW MAGINOT LINE IN THE NORTH

BY EDMOND TAYLOR.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

WITH THE FRENCH ARMIES ON THE BELGIAN FRONTIER, Nov. 16.—France's new defense line in the north was a revelation to me during a two day trip along the frontier.

Until a year ago there was no continuous line between Luxemburg and the sea, altho vital points were fortified.

After Germany's annexation of Austria the French began extending the Maginot line. Natural defenses, such as the forest of Ardennes, made it unnecessary to have a continuous chain of forts. However, even in this rugged forest, thru which the Meuse river cuts a deep canyon, every foot of ground where a tank could pass is blocked in some way—by rails anchored in the ground, by antitank ditches, or by mines. At every tank obstacle the crossed fire of antitank cannon sweep the whole terrain.

"Asparagus Beds" Planted.

Where the ground is flat and open there is an unbroken barrier of ditches—asparagus beds—of rails and barbed wire like those in front of the Maginot line. Behind this barrier are blockhouses and casemates built on the same principles as the Maginot outposts, each armed with antitank and machine guns.

Further north the tank barrier is created by flooding, as in Holland and Belgium. Even the water is covered by the crossed fire of automatic weapons.

The guiding principle of the northern defense line, I was told, was to set up an impassable tank barrier so that surprise attacks would be impossible. Naturally, trenches, dugouts, and shelters back up this line against infantry infiltration, and mobile artillery supports high explosives.

The new defensive wall prolonging the Maginot line from Luxemburg to the sea closes the historic routes of invasion into northern France in case the Germans should again try to sweep thru Belgium.

I was impressed by this prodigy of the heirs of Vauban and also by the mighty army manning the northern rampart, waiting for the first cry of "help" from across the border to race the German Panzer divisions to the strategic waterlines of the low countries.

[Marquis Sebastian le Prestre de Vauban, a marshal of France who died in 1707, was famed for his system of fortifications and military attacks.]

Another sight that impressed me was seeing a French colonel inspecting the remarkable kitchen in the middle of a forest which a little outpost squad had constructed out of mud and tree trunks. The evening meal was stewing in a pot and from the smell left no doubt as to what the meal was—rabbit. Now hunting is strictly forbidden in time of war, and in any time it would have been poaching, so I noticed alarm on the faces of the poilus as the colonel headed for the kitchen.

It grew even more apparent when he lifted the lid off the pot and leaned over to sniff.

"That's a first class beef stew, judging by the smell," he declared in a loud voice.

This same colonel gives 60 days in the brig to any poilu who sets foot across the Belgian border if only to buy a glass of beer.

France Prepared

Miniature Polish Capital to Be Set Up on French Soil

MEXICO TO COLONIZE 1,500 FAMILIES FROM NATIONS NAZIS SEIZED

MEXICO CITY, Mexico, Nov. 16 (AP).—A project for the immediate colonization of 3,000 families, including 1,500 refugee families from Germany, Czecho-Slovakia, Poland, and Austria, in the southern Mexican state of Tabasco was announced tonight by Franscisco Trujillo Gurria, the state's governor.

Arrow locates site of colonization project.

The other 1,500 families, he said, would be Mexicans desiring repatriation. Mexico will bear the expense of the Mexican colonists. Gurria explained each of the other families would be required to invest an average of 8,000 pesos [about $1,600] and in addition have 3,000 pesos [about $600] for expenses.

He said the colonists would be selected by the Mexican Enterprise company of New York, and added: "The colonization is being undertaken to increase the agricultural production and prosperity of Tabasco. The area selected is in Huimanguillo. The state has about $200,000 to build a city for the newcomers."

IT TAKES ONLY 14 WORDS TO TELL OF YESTERDAY'S WAR

PARIS, Nov. 16 (AP).—The war's stalemate on the western front continued today.

"Local activity of patrols," was all the French high command said in its nightly communique. The morning communique said there was "no notable news during the night."

[The German communique was confined to four words: "No special events yesterday" (Wednesday).]

At Versailles a British scouting plane with three occupants fell into the Seine river. Paris gendarmes staged raids today to break up activities of the Communist party, outlawed since the war started. Among the nine persons arrested were Rene Le Gall and former Minister of Labor Eugene Frot. Both are Paris municipal councilmen.

GRENOBLE, France, Nov. 16 (AP).—A German bombing plane flew over the Romanche valley near the Italian border and the region of Thiers of Southern France today. Thiers is about 60 miles west of Lyon.

British Cruiser Caradoc Takes Fuel at San Diego

San Diego, Cal., Nov. 16 (AP).—The British light cruiser Caradoc paid San Diego an unexpected call today, slipping into port during a dense fog. Navy authorities were said to have been unaware of the presence of the cruiser until the fog lifted this morning, disclosing the ship at anchor off the quarantine station on Point Loma. The Caradoc came here to take on fuel "with permission of the navy department." The Caradoc sailed away tonight.

ITALY WILL NOT STAND FOR SOVIET INVADING BALKANS, REDS TOLD

ROME, Nov. 16. — Russia was warned that Italy would not stand for an invasion of the Balkans in today's Gazzetta del Popolo of Turin. The Tribuna of Rome and the Corriere Padano of Ferrara also attacked Russia.

After asserting that it was the fault of Great Britain and France that Russia was allowed to penetrate central Europe because they forced Germany to allow the soviet in, the Gazzetta concluded:

"Italy will never permit the further advance of bolshevik Russia beyond the Carpathians, in the Danube valley, in the Balkans or towards the Mediterranean."

DON'T EAT—TILL YOU DISCOVER ALL THE HOLIDAY LUXURIES AT FIELD'S

Honestly, didn't you know we have glorious food to eat off the premises? No country's immune from our buyers. Let Java have a specialty—and we ferret it out. We search France for a fabulous mustard that fluffs like whipped cream. And as for Hymmetus' honey-laden slopes—we fly straight as a Grecian bee.

Anything you yearn over, lunching at Field's, can be borne home in triumph. And you know our menu. But, unless you've sailed the Seven Seas and dined every night with royalty, you don't know our exotic array, besides. Ruby fruits drowsing in heavy syrup. Pears, like great pearls, in emerald Crème de Menthe. Jade green olives, stuffed with every conceivable titbit, pressing plump cheeks against squat little jars. It's enough to make Lucullus swoon!

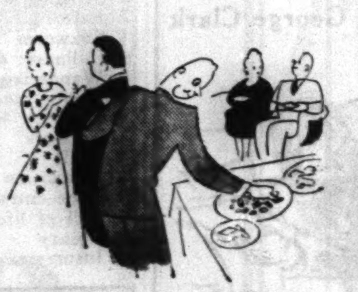
So read the list. It's only a fraction, in cold, can't-do-justice type. Then, first chance you get, come! Don't wait for the elevator. Run up the escalator, swallowing hard.

Brandied Fruit Cake, made in our own Bake Shop with 20-year-old French Cognac. What a recipe! It's 80% fruits and nuts, according to Adolf, the chef. Dark, moist and wonderful, in a Field box. $1 per pound.

Plum Pudding's from our Bake Shop, too. When it's carried to the counter, some of the most aristocratic noses wrinkle up like gamins'. Our Special is 6 little individuals with a jar of Hard Sauce in a Field box. $1.85

Our Hostess Gifts snare invitations. Baskets crammed with choice fresh fruits. And in all the chinks, tiny jars of jelly, sweets wrapped in tinfoil, dates, figs, salted nuts. Sleek with cellophane, brave with ribbon, they're from $3.50

Cocktail Things we let you try. Roart's tiny tube-shaped wafers. Delicious! Not a bit like mailing tubes. Fill them with Sardine or Anchovy Paste, or a mixture of Cheddar and Roquefort, deliriously aged in champagne. 55c



Field's Own Coffee! The dark amber kind you drink in the Tea Room. Clear as your conscience, bright as your wit. There's body to it, and aroma. And mellowness and cheer. Now, a memorable special. 4 lbs. for $1

The New England influence. But no stern and rockbound coast! Thoreau'd forget his pond, Emerson'd quit his essays. A sturdy wooden chest holds one each of Cranberry Sauce, Vermont Maple Syrup, Baked Beans, Brown Bread, Indian Pudding, Mince Meat, Piccalilli, Lobster, Lobster Newburg, Clams, Clam Chowder. $5.50

Smack from the English countryside at Kent, to our Herb Farm Shop—over 200 varieties of herbs. You know, the things that make you say "soupcon" in cooking. Try our box of 12 culinary herbs, with a chart to steer by. You'll be back! It's $1

Finest English Vinegars—6 kinds with a malt base. In bottles as plain and kind as an English Nanny. $1.50

Mince Meat, moist and elegant. 2-lb. jar, 60c. And Pies—but too flaky-fragile to deliver. 7-in. Mince, 70c; 7-in. Pumpkin, 40c

Cooking Sherry—bottled in France. Smart enough for an ice pail and a snowy napkin choker. With gorgeous recipe for Newbourg Sauce. 1½-pts. $1.10

Minced Toheroas, the New Zealand shellfish, 75c

Transparent Cucumber Slices, packed fancy as tatting, 2 for 75c. And every kind of Pickles—Melon Rinds, Sweet India Relish, Cantaloupe Circles, Tomato Piccalilli, Chutney, Chow Chow. Packed for us. 3 for $1

Honey from New Zealand, Greece, Holland, and the U.S.A From 40c

Tea that we serve in our Tea Rooms. Tea experts' tea—tenderest leaves. 60c the ½ lb. Individual teaballs, 50 for 75c.

HOW'S YOUR FORGETTORY?

By CALEB

WINSTON Churchill's father, it is told, could read over a page of any book, and proceed to recite it to you, word for word. And the tribe of memorists to which he belonged is by no means small in the world. Biography bristles with enough famous examples to give the ordinary rest of us quite a case of inferiority complex.

A poor memory—let's not mince the point—is a distinct handicap. Disraeli often emphasized this, and prided himself on never forgetting a face, or the name that belonged with it. On the few occasions when this happy faculty failed him, he always camouflaged successfully by promptly and solicitously inquiring, "And how is the old complaint?" Similar classic rebukes to the mental commoner in our midst are the well-known memory powers of Gibbon and Macaulay.

Great retentiveness, however, should be gauged by the greatness of what it retains. "I am glad, eager and quick," said a latter-day philosopher, "to forget everything in my career and experience that it would be either silly or harmful to remember." And in that credo of developing a healthy, dependable forgettory lies as much wisdom as many of us need, to improve radically the extent and content of our daily living.

"No man," said Emerson, "ever stated his griefs as lightly as he might." Why? Because it is peculiarly human to nurture and store in memory scores of wiselier-forgotten details, trivialities and minor incidents—a bereavement, an illness, a slighting comment, a money loss, an upset plan, an unfriendly encounter . . . any of the inevitable pinpricks that punctuate hour-to-hour average existence. The hypersensitives, the symptom-watchers, the chip-shoulderers, all about us point to a crying general need for learning how, what and when to forget, as we go about our accustomed work in the world.

"No one can forgive others who does not first forgive himself," is one of the shrewdest dicta of one of our shrewdest psychologists. David Seabury, in that startling pronouncement, touched smartly on this art of right forgetting . . . Refuse to load yourself down with the clanking Marley chains of last week's mistakes, last year's losses, some sorrow of ten years ago, or the carried-over conscience struggles of long-past youth. Forget them! Forget all, in short, that is "silly and harmful to remember."

Forgetting one's present ails, ills, self-wishes, slights and hurts cleans out large areas of good gray matter with which to remember, and enjoy, the fine, serene, beautiful and interesting occasions of Life that are really worth remembering.

NAZI SHIP SINKS BRITISH TANKER IN INDIAN OCEAN

Describe Raider as Armed Merchant Vessel.

LONDON, Nov. 16 (AP).—The European war at sea reached the Indian ocean today with the reported sinking of a British tanker off the east African coast by a German raider.

Arrow shows where ship was sunk.

Dispatches from Cape Town, Union of South Africa, told of the raider's attack on the Africa Shell, 706 tons, and said the captain was taken prisoner.

Some reports said a warship sank the British vessel but authoritative Cape Town circles described the raider as an armed merchantman of about 10,000 tons.

Goes Down in Channel.

The ship went down 180 miles northeast of Lourenço Marques, Mozambique. This is the Mozambique channel, an arm of the Indian ocean between the Portuguese colony of Mozambique and the French island of Madagascar.

The German pocket battleships Deutschland and Admiral Scheer, both 10,000 ton vessels, have been at sea for months. Some reports have said the Admiral Scheer rounded Cape Horn after operations in the South Atlantic.

The sinking of the Africa Shell was the first report of operations by German raiders in or near the Indian ocean.

Great Britain officially discounted recent naval losses today as the "price we have to pay for command of the seas."

Simon Reads Report.

Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain's weekly war report to the house of commons, read by Chancellor of the Exchequer Sir John Simon because Chamberlain still was suffering from gout, said six German ships fell prey to the British navy the last week.

The admiralty later corrected the figures, saying the navy actually had captured two German ships recently, the Uehenfels and the Leander, 989 tons, while the Parana, 6,038 tons, and Mecklenburg, 8,000 tons, were scuttled by their crews to avoid capture. The Leander's crew of about 30 was interned.

At the same time it was reported that the British steamer Newton Beech, 6,451 tons, was overdue.

A COMPARISON OF BRITISH AND GERMAN NAVIES

(Diagram in adjoining column.)

LONDON, Nov. 16 (AP).—A new edition of Jane's Fighting Ships, authoritative British naval annual, was published today. It reported that Britain's navy outnumbered Germany's in every classification except torpedo boats and submarines.

A comparative table follows, showing the class of vessel and the number possessed at the beginning of the war by Britain and Germany.

	Britain.	Germany
Capital ships	*15	5
Aircraft carriers	6	0
Heavy cruisers	15	2
Other cruisers	†43	6
Antiaircraft ships	‡6	0
Destroyers	179	22
Submarines	57	65
Torpedo boats	0	12
Motor torpedo boats	26	30

*Including two under reconstruction. †Including two under reconstruction. ‡Including two under reconstruction.

[Since the beginning of the war Britain officially has acknowledged the loss of the aircraft carrier Courageous, the battleship Royal Oak, the submarine Oxley, and an unidentified destroyer. Germany has acknowledged the loss of only three submarines.]

Britain's determination to maintain her advantage was shown by a construction program including nine battleships, five cruisers, and six aircraft carriers, against Germany's four battleships, four heavy cruisers, and two aircraft carriers.

CANADIAN VESSEL FIRES SHOT OVER BOW OF U. S. SHIP

Seattle, Wash., Nov. 16 (AP).—An American ship captain reported on his arrival today from an Alaskan trip that a Canadian naval vessel had fired a shot across the bow of his steamer, the North Coast, at Prince Rupert, B. C.

Capt. A. J. Borkland, master of the ship which carried 76 passengers and a crew of 75, said the incident occurred Sunday night because the officer of the Canadian vessel thought the American vessel did not stop quickly enough when ordered to do so.

ENGLAND'S FRUIT BAN TO COST U. S. 17 MILLION A YEAR

Order Against Imports Is Laid to Neutrality Law.

New York, Nov. 16 [Special].—President Roosevelt's cash and carry neutrality law, repealer of the arms embargo, today bore early fruit—a $17,000,000 a year blow to a major United States business.

Declaring she can "hardly squander foreign currencies on fruit when there are such things as war materials to be bought and paid for in America," Britain prohibited the importation of fresh fruits from the United States, a move that growers and shippers said would cost them $17,000,000, the amount of British purchases of fresh fruit in this country in 1938.

No Licenses for America.

Britain prohibited the importation, except under license, of fresh apples and pears, pepper, and apricot and peach kernels. Licenses for fruit imports will be granted for some parts of the empire, British officials said, but at present none will be granted for the United States. Thus this diverts into portions of the United Kingdom the large orders for fruit which Britain formerly placed in America and, while the munitions makers will profit from the order, thousands of fruit growers, shippers, handlers, and processers will find their business partially crippled.

Fresh fruit shippers and growers were glum, but hardly surprised by the move. They had been warned that the empire would have little money to spend on fruit, with the staggering demands of the military machine coming first and taking all available funds.

Britain Conserving Cash.

With passage of the cash and carry act, shipping officials said, it became obvious that Britain would conserve her cash for the purchase of bare essentials in the United States.

Some foreign trade bankers in San Francisco thought there might be a swing in the British demand from fresh to dried and canned fruits, easily shipped and stored and hence adaptable to both military and civilian needs. Britain took nearly $6,000,000 worth of American dried fruits last year and around $15,000,000 worth of canned fruits.

Deal Made with Canada.

OTTAWA, Ont., Nov. 16 (AP).—Britain and Canada have agreed to limit exports of Canadian apples and pears to the United Kingdom to about 2,900,000 bushels of apples and 40,000 bushels of pears per season, more than half the average for the last two years.

MONTE CARLO CASINO REOPENS; GAMBLING LIMITED TO CIVILIANS

MONTE CARLO, Nov. 16.—The casino, which was closed on the outbreak of war, reopened today. Roulette and the usual "sideshow" games, such as baccarat, chemin de fer, chuckaluck, and Italian loto, are played. Only civilians are permitted in the gaming rooms.

Casinos on French territory are still closed, but it is thought they may reopen shortly, because the Riviera, which no longer is subjected to blackout, is making an effort to return to normal.

The coast district from Toulon to the Italian frontier is nominally an army zone where foreigners need special permits to circulate. Authorities have let it be understood that such permits will be facilitated for Americans.

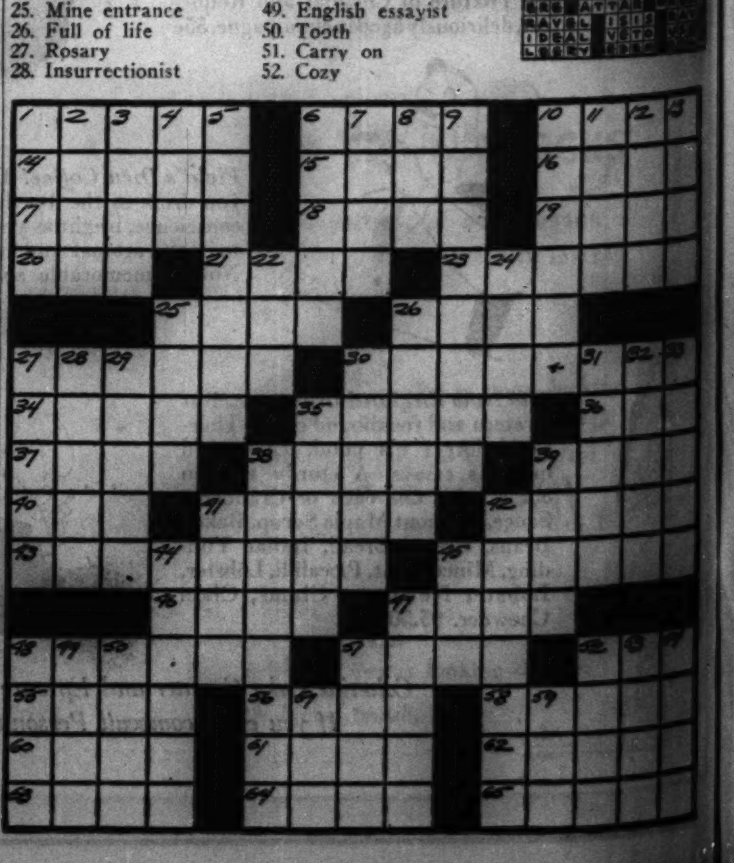
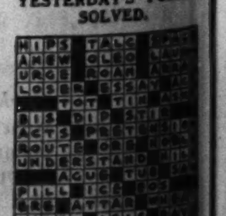
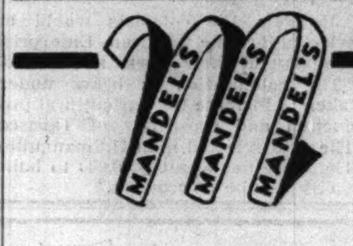
YESTERDAY'S PUZZLE SOLVED.







NEW DEPRESSED AREAS IN WALES CREATED BY WAR

Resort Towns Feel Pinch; Protest to London.

BY DAVID DARRAH.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

CARDIFF, Wales, Nov. 16.—The last leg of this survey of wartime England leads to Wales. After the exposed front line area of Scotland and the east coast, you turn here to the "safe area" or, as the English prefer to call it, "the reception areas," where air raid sirens have not yet sounded.

Along this west coast many places have become virtually depressed areas since the war started. They are towns which normally depend on visitors for existence. Hotels, on which economic life is based, have been commandeered by the government. The result is unemployment, unpaid bills, and distress.

In one of these towns an ornate white hotel building rises seven stories from the edge of the sea. Inhabitants used to point to it as a symbol of the town's success. It has 200 bedrooms, now stripped of furniture and lined with pigeonholes, filing cabinets, and other office equipment. One hundred and sixty new telephones have been installed. But the civil servants for whom it was requisitioned have not yet turned up.

Deputation Goes to London.

Dozens of other towns voice similar complaints about the paralysis of the key industry. Storekeepers are in despair. A west coast deputation went to London today to put the case before the government. It was told the government planned to build huts for evacuated civil servants. The job will take six months. Meantime the west coast hotel industry presumably will stay in cold storage.

In South Wales, which already had depressed areas, more coal now is being mined, but prosperity has not been given much of a spurt. Some business men complain that South Wales contracts have been given to big firms in London.

The recruiting of Welsh Guards is continuing rapidly and it seemed to me that more men and women are going about in uniforms than in the north. From the movie show applause I heard, the war personalities in Wales are popular in this order: first, the Duke of Windsor; second, Winston Churchill [first lord of the admiralty]; third, President Roosevelt; fourth, Gen. Maurice Gustav Gamelin [French chief of staff], and fifth, Premier Edouard Daladier of France.

Compliments Repaid.

The duke of Windsor, pictured in uniform going over a map at the western front, received prolonged cheers and Churchill nearly as much. The duke was down here the last time in 1936 and said a lot of nice things about Wales.

The popular attitude seems more of a determination to get on with the war than hatred of the Germans. The Welsh are assiduous readers of newspapers and listeners to radio programs. Nobody seems to feel he has the real lowdown on the war. More news about it from London would be appreciated.

As an innovation since the war began, the British Broadcasting corporation broadcasts every morning in the Welsh language. Not all Welshmen themselves understand it.

This is presumably a concession to the Welsh nationalists. The Welsh nationalist movement, like the Scotch, some say, is mostly literary. They do, however, have an organization. What they want seems to be a special secretary for Wales in the cabinet such as the Scots have. The nationalists flourish mostly among the distressed.

Two Say They Won't Fight.

Some of this Celtic "agin the government" attitude comes out at conscientious objectors' tribunals. Two youths who called themselves nationalists yesterday said they would not fight on behalf of England. One who appeared at Southwark said his allegiance was to the cause of Celtic independence. "It is not right for Saxons or English to tell Celts what to do," he contended. His case was adjourned.

The second objector appeared at Carnarvon and said it was not the policy of the Welsh nationalists to fight even for Welsh freedom. He claimed exemption also on Christian grounds. Some here say that adherence to the Welsh nationalist cause is given by youths merely as an excuse.

Men in uniform in South Wales are beginning to doubt the benefits of strict Welsh Sabbatarianism. They want Sunday football games. Everything now closes down on Sunday. The men call it an "all day blackout." It is no fun to sit around the barracks all day.

Blackout Is First Complaint.

Other grouses you hear in order of their emphasis are, first, the blackout; second, the paid air raid precaution workers; third, the muddle over family allowances; fourth, the scanty bus service; fifth, the once a week collection of garbage, and sixth, the 6 o'clock shop closing.

I arrived in Cardiff in the dark. To find a taxi or a hotel room is a stroke of luck. Without a taxi you cannot find your way about. It is difficult to get into a hotel at all unless you have made a reservation.

During my journey westward several lads called up for military service boarded the train. They were in the 22 year old group. Most of them were west country farm lads. They were talkative, with peculiar west country accents. But mixed with them were one or two pink faced, chubby youths with public school accents making themselves chummy and agreeable.

A Change from Last War.

Something has changed from the "temporary gentleman" element of the last war. One notices that privates do not leap to attention as they did then, and in top dog restaurants one sees men of the ranks at better tables with prettier girls than the officers.

In rural Wales, in the squire district beyond the coal valleys, fox hunting continues. But some are beginning to decry it as unpatriotic. Farmers, it is said, are complaining that they are trying to produce all the food possible and that they do not want winter seeds trampled on, hedges broken down and stock disturbed. Foxes should be kept down by other means, they say.

The man much discussed in Cardiff pubs is the Marquess of Bute. He has come back to Cardiff and is in residence at his castle. He owns the castle and owned most of Cardiff until he sold it recently for several million pounds. Some defend Lord Bute, others do not. "He has spent lots of money in Wales; some people would have taken it away to London," was one view heard.

At any rate, Lord Bute seems to have saved the town much money on air raid shelters. He has let the citizens tunnel holes in the great walls of his castle, one of the prize sights of the country. The castle thus again after generations resumes its function as a citadel of defense.

Suit Contested

MRS. HELEN ANTONSEN.

Mrs. Helen Antonsen, 22 years old, of 5023 South Loomis street, testified yesterday before Judge John J. Lupe that her husband, Edward, took out a revolver and murder story clippings and asked her to sit still so he could shoot her. This incident occurred on Oct. 18, 1938, she said, and ended with his stripping an engagement ring from her finger. Antonsen, in contesting his wife's divorce suit, asserted that she condoned his actions by living with him until last Aug. 18.

YESTERDAY'S PUZZLE SOLVED.

SEES DEMOCRACY DEAD IF AMERICA MARCHES TO WAR

Charles S. Dewey Tells of Dictatorship Bills.

If the United States enters the European war it will mark the end of American democracy, Charles S. Dewey declared last night. Dewey, formerly an assistant secretary of the treasury and for many years financial adviser to Poland, spoke at a meeting of the business and professional women's division of the ABC school of politics at 2800 Sheridan road.

Dewey said administration advisers in Washington are preparing a series of emergency bills, which they would seek to have enacted into law in the event this country went into the war.

Would Impose Dictatorship.

These bills are so phrased, he said, that each appears not to be stringent, but taken as a series they would impose a dictatorship on the United States.

"The smart young men in Washington," he declared, "would like a capital levy on all incomes, both of individuals and businesses, in the event of war, and would like to use some of that money to pay off the existing public debt. They would concentrate all the nation's income in the government's hands.

Church to Speak Today.

"Every one of us has the blood of some one of those nations now fighting overseas. But we left their houses many years ago to establish one home for all on American soil. Let us only protect our own home and not engage in old family quarrels."

The ABC school is sponsored by the Women's National Republican club of Chicago and its purpose is to interest and instruct women in politics. Admission to the meetings is free. Congressman Ralph Church will speak at the school this afternoon on "Congress and Its Method of Operation."

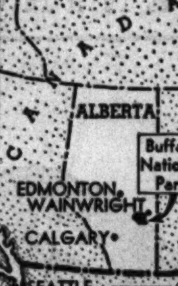
Movie 'Beast of Berlin' Will Stay Banned in City

Police Commissioner Allman said yesterday the movie "Beast of Berlin" would continue to be banned in Chicago theaters. He acted on the report of Lieut. Harry Costello of the city censor board that the picture is propaganda against the German government. The Chicago Civil Liberties committee had protested against the ban.

CANADIANS WITHHOLD A REASON FOR ORDERS TO KILL 5,000 ANIMALS

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

OTTAWA, Ont., Nov. 16.—The department of mines and resources refused today to give a reason for its recent order for the slaughter of 5,000 animals—buffalo, deer, moose, elk, and yak—in Buffalo National park, Wainwright, Alta.



Arrow locates Buffalo National park.

Meanwhile, it was reported from Calgary, Alta., that engineers had completed a 10 day survey of the Calgary area for new landing fields, to form part of the vast system of aviation facilities required by the empire air training project.

Explaining that the 100,000 acre game preserve and recreation center must be cleared of animals before spring, Superintendent A. G. Smith said the handling of the carcasses was being started with the elk.

TENSION EASES; FINNS FLOCK TO HOMES IN CAPITAL

Defense Forces Reduced on Soviet Border.

BY DONALD DAY.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

HELSINGFORS, Finland, Nov. 16.—Helsingfors' 160,000 evacuated inhabitants rapidly were returning to their homes today despite the fact that the crisis with Russia over territorial demands had not yet officially passed.

The nation's defense forces were being reduced considerably along the frontier. Military leaders declared only small forces were necessary during the winter to safeguard the country. There were few signs of military activity in the Leningrad or Russian Karelia districts.

Trains and buses arriving in Helsingfors were crowded with mothers and returning school children, whose first desire was to see an American movie.

The government's earlier request that the civilians remain in the country has not been repeated and at today's meeting of the cabinet it was decided not to take measures to prevent a quick return to normal conditions. It is expected schools will open next week.

After ineffectual meetings in Moscow between the Finnish delegation and Dictator Josef Stalin and Premier-Foreign Commissar Vyacheslav Molotov, the Finns anticipate a quiet period in their relations with Russia during which the negotiations will be carried forward thru normal diplomatic channels. Russia has demanded a readjustment of frontiers near Leningrad, and naval bases in north Finland and in the Gulf of Finland.

The Finns refuse to take Russian threats seriously. They have full confidence in both their army and government and are not willing to make any concessions in return for what are called Dictator Stalin's promises of peace.

Red Press Drive Expanded.

MOSCOW, Nov. 16 (AP).—The Russian press campaign to force Finland into territorial concessions was expanded tonight.

"The soviet will guarantee the security of her northwestern frontiers regardless of the stand of the Finnish government," the newspaper organ of light industry asserted.

The article accused Finnish leaders of playing a dark, dirty, and dangerous game and said Russian proposals to the Finns were necessary because Russian defenses in the Gulf of Finland, the Baltic, and the Arctic sea also would insure the safety of Finland.

Deny Soviet Occupation.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

RIGA, Latvia, Nov. 16. — Rumors that soviet Russian troops had occupied several important Latvian towns were denied today by Foreign Minister Wilhelm Munters. He declared that the quartering under treaty arrangements of the Red army forces in Latvia was proceeding normally and that soviet officers were maintaining good discipline.

Initial anxiety with which the inhabitants of Latvia, Estonia, and Lithuania greeted the arrival of the Red garrisons now has passed. From the behavior of the Russians and the attitude of the Moscow government toward the three Baltic states, it is believed that Moscow wishes to win their friendship and respect.

Canadian Red Newspaper Head Held on War Charge

TORONTO, Ont., Nov. 16 (AP).—Douglas Stewart, 36 years old, printer and business manager of Clarion, a communist weekly, was arraigned today on a charge of violating regulations for the defense of Canada. He was remanded to jail for a week. Stewart was charged under a law prohibiting the printing or circulating of documents containing statements "intended or likely" to be prejudicial to the forces or allies of the king, in the successful prosecution of war.

AMERICA TO GET DICTATORSHIP IF IT GOES TO WAR

Program Drafted Which Will Crush Liberty.

BY CHESLY MANLY.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Nov. 16.—"To the President is given literally gigantic, imperial, dictatorial power of the most extreme kind. With such executive power an election of representatives would be a farce. Of such stuff are Hitlers made and liberties of free people lost."

These were the words of former Representative Maury Maverick [D., Tex.], an ardent New Dealer, in a minority report on the May industrial mobilization bill of 1938, which died with the expiration of the 75th congress. Maverick's report, however, applies with equal force to the standing industrial mobilization plan of the war and navy departments, on which the May bill was based, and to various other schemes still alive on the senate and house calendars for the confiscation and communization of property and wealth in case of war.

Clamor for Action Grows.

The European war and the fears of American involvement therein have increased agitation in congress for the enactment of dictatorship legislation with the soothingly declared objectives of equalizing the burdens of war, taking the profits out of war, drafting wealth as well as man power, and "paying as you fight."

Only administration pressure to limit the legislative agenda to the cash and carry neutrality repealer prevented action on war dictatorship legislation at the special session which adjourned on Nov. 3, and there will be a great clamor for action when congress convenes on Jan. 3.

Regardless of the fate of any specific legislative proposal, it is agreed by authorities in and out of congress that the American form of government would give way to a totalitarian dictatorship if the United States should become involved in the European war.

Expected Powers Set Forth.

According to the quasi-official book, "Adjusting Your Business to War," by Leo M. Cherne, with a foreword by Assistant Secretary of War Louis Johnson, the war and navy departments expect the President to receive from congress "probably before the outbreak of war" the necessary legal authority to impose the following industrial controls:

"[a] Price fixing; [b] priorities control; [c] compulsory orders; [d] commandeering of materials and plants; [e] licensing; [f] apportioning commodities and raw materials."

If congress should fail to enact this legislation before the outbreak of war, there is small doubt that it would do so immediately after war had been declared. To question the proposed grant of powers would invite the charge of treason.

Recall Banking Bill Action.

On the first day of the special session of congress called by President Roosevelt in March, 1933, when there was no war emergency, the house of representatives passed, without debate, a bill of vast importance which not even its leaders had seen. A folded newspaper was used as a dummy for this bill, called the emergency banking act of 1933, and the house leaders had only the word of a few brain trusters concerning its provisions.

In the senate debate on the neutrality repealer last Oct. 23, Senator Bennett Champ Clark [D., Mo.] said the industrial mobilization plan, as discussed in Cherne's book, would be sent up to congress, after war had been declared, under "whip and spur." Any senator who dared to question any of its provisions would be denounced as a slacker and a traitor, he said.

Senator Tom Connally [D., Tex.] accused Clark of creating bogeys and ghosts and rapidly running away from them. None of the powers which Clark was assailing had been approved by congress, Connally shouted.

"I am not prepared to grant any such powers," the Texan said.

When Connally made this statement, there was pending before the senate finance committee the Connally war emergency bill, which would give the President dictatorial powers to regiment labor and all the material resources of the country, to requisition property, and to publish rules and regulations with the force of law.

President's Position Cited.

Actually, the proposed economic dictatorship would be established even if congress failed to enact the industrial mobilization plan, in the opinion of the war and navy department officials, as reflected in Cherne's book.

"The industrial mobilization plan proceeds on the theory that these powers will be placed in the hands of the necessary superagencies during war time," Cherne wrote. "The fact that congress has not yet granted these powers is, in this instance, however, not of paramount concern. It must be remembered that the President, as commander in chief of the armed forces of the United States during war time, has what is commonly referred to as the 'war powers of the President,' the great reservoir of authority which the custom of this country has permitted to be used as the emergency may require.

Murphy Letter Revealing.

"These powers have not been completely defined in law or in the expressions of court, and as a matter of actual fact are not only indefinable but beyond practical limit. The wartime powers of the President as exercised by Woodrow Wilson during the world war would have been ample to insure the immediate and complete application of the industrial mobilization plan in all of its details without a single enactment of congress, if this were considered desirable in an emergency.

That this statement correctly represents the Roosevelt administration's theory of the President's war emergency powers is shown by the letter of Attorney General Frank Murphy to the United States senate on Oct. 4. The attorney general had been requested, in a resolution by Senator Arthur H. Vandenberg [R., Mich.], to report on the powers available to the President in a war emergency.

"You are aware, of course," Murphy wrote, "that the executive has powers not enumerated in the statutes—powers derived not from statutory grants, but from the constitution. It is universally recognized that the constitutional duties of the executive carry with them the constitutional powers necessary for their proper performance. These constitutional powers have never been specifically defined, and in fact cannot be, since their extent and limitations are largely dependent upon conditions and circumstances . . . the right to take specific action might not exist under one state of facts, while under another it might be the absolute duty of the executive to take such action."

Bills Offered Last Session.

The May and Connally war dictatorship bills, the Lee wealth confiscation bill, and the confiscatory war tax bill introduced at the last session by 50 senators, all resulted from prolonged agitation that began soon after the world war. At the request of the American Legion, Senator Arthur Capper [R., Kas.] and Representative Royal C. Johnson [R., S. D.], introduced in 1922 the first bill intended to equalize the burdens and facilitate the prosecution of war.

Congress took no action on the measure, but there was introduced at the same time by the late Representative John J. McSwain [D., S. C.], later chairman of the military affairs committee, a resolution proposing the creation of a special federal commission to study the question and recommend legislation. Supported by the American Legion, this measure finally was passed as the Wainright-Snell resolution in 1931.

President Hoover appointed the war policies commission, consisting of six members of the cabinet, four senators, and four representatives. This commission, headed by Secretary of War Patrick J. Hurley, made its recommendations in March, 1932. Finally, in 1935, the house passed, in revised form, the McSwain bill, which was reported favorably by three senate committees but never passed the senate.

Meanwhile, the senate munitions committee, headed by Senator Gerald P. Nye [R., N. D.], increased the agitation to "take the profits out of war" and went so far as to recommend an amendment to the constitution permitting the comandeering of property without payment of just compensation.

Plan Opposed by Nye.

Senator Nye opposed the Sheppard-Hill bill of 1937, favored by the American Legion, on the ground that it did not provide for the taking of property and capital without the payment of just compensation. The Sheppard-Hill bill got nowhere. In 1938 came the May bill, which was reported to the house but never passed, and this year Senator Connally introduced the old McSwain bill in revised form, with drastic new tax provisions.

Others on the calendar are the Lee forced loan bill and the staggering war tax bill introduced by Senator Homer T. Bone [D., Wash.] and 49 other senators. These measures will be discussed individually in further articles in this series.

Byrd's Husky Misses Boat; Find Him in a Saloon

Boston, Mass., Nov. 16 [Special].—Blizzard II., a 3 months old Alaskan pup, was back at Admiral Richard Byrd's antarctic expedition headquarters here today after going A. W. O. L. and missing the motorship North Star when it started for the south pole yesterday. A man who returned the pup said he found him in a waterfront saloon. The dog, which is to be used for sled work when it matures, will sail on the expedition's second boat, the Bear of Oakland.

NEW DEAL CANAL DIGGING CLOSES 7 MIAMI WELLS

Fear Salt in Water Will Peril Tourist Trade.

Miami, Fla., Nov. 16 [Special].—The infiltration of salt into drinking water has caused the shutdown of seven of Miami's 15 wells, it was disclosed today. Coastal cities as far north as Palm Beach are alarmed by the situation, fearing the winter tourist trade will be affected.

The contamination is an unexpected product of the 440 miles of canals built thru the Everglades in an effort to reclaim those southern Florida wastelands for farming.

A preliminary investigation indicated the delicate underground water balance had been disturbed by the diggings and that sea water is backing into the canals and then seeping into fresh water wells.

A 200 Million Dollar Project.

A similar threat to much of the drinking water in the state forms the basis of a principal objection to the New Deal dream of cutting a ship canal across the upper portion of the Florida peninsula. Activity in the 200 million dollar project, begun in 1935 and abandoned during most of the interim, recently has been revived by congress.

The whole of the peninsula is underlaid at varying depths by salt water, the fresh water theoretically floating on top as it flows thru underground channels. Opponents of the ship canal contend the excavations would sever the limestone thru which is filtered the drinking water of the peninsula portion of the state.

In addition to ruining the water supply of part of the great winter playgrounds, it was contended, the effect of the water disturbance would jeopardize the valuable property of truck gardeners and citrus growers.

It has been estimated that $40,000,000 worth of potential farm land already has been destroyed by topsoil fires caused by the recession of water in the Everglades, where the land reclamation canals were built.

Topsoil fires have been a problem for years, menacing the winter vegetable crops, cane, cattle raising and the dairy industry that has developed in the area. Fires that attack the top earth, left dry as tinder when the Everglades water falls, smoulder for long periods of time.

He Tries to Exterminate a Jitterbug; Fined $50

Newburyport, Mass., Nov. 16 (AP).—Albert Clopek, 68 years old, of West Roxbury, was fined $50 in District court today for tapping his son-in-law, Victor Desimone, 22, on the head with a log when he refused to stop jitterbug dancing in the house. "He danced like a horse," testified Clopek.

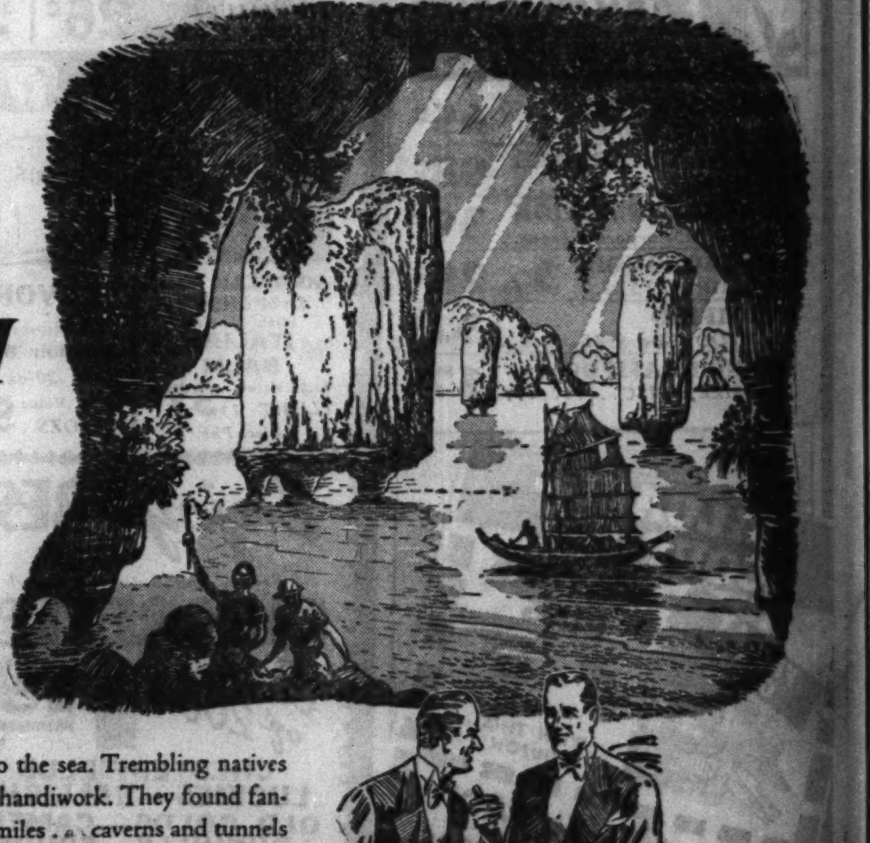
Enjoy the SCOTCH WITH A STORY



The earth exploded! Stone mountains splashed into the sea. Trembling natives of French Indo-China looked at violent Nature's handiwork. They found fantastic rock formations jutting out of the water for miles . . . caverns and tunnels filled with giant sea-snakes, and they called it the Bay of Ha-Long, which means, "Dragon's Den". Captain White told the world of the weird beauty of this miracle of nature. It is one of the few places on earth with only one tide a day. On many of its shaggy boulders bloom gorgeous orchids. Since Captain White's expedition many have explored the Bay of Ha-Long, but no stranger who entered it without a guide has ever returned! But you never need a guide to find the sign of the White Horse. You will see it in the furthest outposts of civilization as well as in the heart of every great metropolis. Stop at your favorite bar or package store today. Treat yourself to the Scotch that is always a joy to your palate. Match White Horse if you can!

Capt. Harold A. White, explorer and world traveler relates his fascinating experiences in this White Horse series. Follow it week by week.

GEORGE WASHINGTON SAID:

"Excessive partiality for one foreign nation and excessive dislike for another cause those whom they actuate to see danger only on one side, and serve to veil and even second the arts of influence on the other."—From the Farewell Address.

TO AN OUTSPOKEN ENGLISHMAN.

A letter from a member of a firm of London solicitors, giving an English opinion of America's attitude toward the war since the repeal of the embargo, is published in the Voice of the People. Mr. Daphne, the writer, says he expresses the views of the average Englishman and avails himself of the plain speaking which is the prized heritage of English peoples.

THE TRIBUNE prints the letter, altho it would question Mr. Daphne's assumption that the prized heritage is unimpaired under the British war dictatorship or that he would be unrestricted in offering for English publication many outspoken letters if the views expressed challenged the British government and the attitude it has taken in the war. However, it is still the privilege of Americans to have their opinions, air them, and hear others. THE TRIBUNE gives the English lawyer the opportunity herewith.

The criticism of the American attitude is interesting partly because it was expected. The slurs cannot be resented because the repealers of the arms embargo invited them when they stated their reasons for permitting the sale of arms and munitions to France and Great Britain.

The repealers said this was our war. Their opponents said it was not. The opposition was on firm ground. The repealers took a position open to just the attack the English now make upon them. We knew that this would follow and said so. The first thing of importance to persons desiring to put America in the war would be to amend the neutrality act and, in doing so, bring out the betraying statements which would make it possible to follow up the first step with another which would seem to be of invincible logic. Americans who deceived themselves as to that, or were deceived by others, were truly deceived.

It was plain enough what would be the consequence of Mr. Roosevelt's frequently quoted utterances and of the statements made in the United States senate by men seeking to sell war material to the British and the French. When that great advantage had been obtained, it would then be regarded as insufficient. Mr. Daphne says we are in a curiously unmoral position, selling our arms for cash, extending our sympathy, and encouraging the English boys to do their best in our war and at the same time rejoicing that the hearts of American mothers are not being wrenched by the spectacle of their own sons marching off to die.

There will be more of these comments and the tone will grow in asperity and reproach. The Americans who invited such criticism may digest it as best they can. Those of us who have maintained from the beginning that this was not our war are unmoved. It is still not America's war and it should not become America's war. Reproaches justified by the foolishness, the sentimentality, the divided loyalties, and unpatriotic sympathies of some of our citizens and many of our government officials do not affect the people who rejected the falsehood and refuse to listen to it now.

The United States had no part in any of the diplomacy and the blunders of statesmanship which led to the war. The rulers of other countries, in whose councils the American people had no voice, decided when the war would be fought and for what purposes. If they had decided that it should be fought a year ago, it would have been on the Czecho-Slovakian fortified line and with the Poles helping the defense instead of attacking from the rear, probably both Czecho-Slovakia and Poland would now be in existence. It was decided then not to begin this war which, according to its belligerents, is either to save all of humanity or to advance national interests.

The true America, the America of the American people, had no criticism to make of that refusal to fight at that time, because the true America knew then as it knows now that it was none of its business.

After the lapse of a year it was then decided by the statesmen in Europe who had the choice that this was the time to fight. If they counted then upon another American expeditionary force, they counted unwisely, we trust, and they based their confidence upon what they should have regarded as preposterous unreason—namely, that the American people would forget everything that had happened since 1918 and, forgetting, would be willing to undertake again the enterprise which had cost them so much and given them nothing but disillusionment.

Humanity in this war would be served by finding a way of stopping it. We are not a second time sending Americans to Europe to defeat the Germans again, because we see nothing in that which could possibly help the United States and we have no reason to believe the victory our arms might win would give Europe any better peace than came out of Versailles.

It is said that if the Germans win we're next. If we could cross the ocean and beat them in France, we needn't worry about beating them on this continent, if they could find any way of getting here. That alarm is raised not in our interests but in the interest of the British and French. They are not defeated and we see no reason to believe they will be, altho it would be easier for them if they could again count upon the aid of four million American soldiers.

Many of us believe that the next time American soldiers have to fight there should be some compelling and paramount reason for it which affects the United States, and if, unfortunately, such a cause should arise, we should expect to fight it out alone. The English Speaking union would prove to be of small military value to us. In the relations of the United States and Great Britain the liabilities are all on the American side. They are false and trumped up liabilities and we refuse to honor any of them.

There is, we still hope, a place for a just peace in Europe. But we doubt that an attempt to arrive at it will be seriously made so long as there is hope that the United States can yet be persuaded to send an army abroad and make it a peace of conquest, which, in turn, will only be another armed truce until there is a new generation of new fighting men. Then the statesmen will try to throw the new controversy over on these shores.

STATEHOUSE SHAKEDOWN.

Details of the scandalous extortion practiced on state employés by Gov. Horner's political machine have, thanks to the Civil Service Protective association, been given the public. The hearing before the state civil service commission at Springfield disclosed that members of the governor's cabinet and heads of state institutions have been guilty of violations of the law.

The law prohibits the solicitation of campaign contributions from civil service employés. Yet the testimony of three of the solicitors for the governor's organization showed that A. L. Bowen, director of public welfare, sent them to heads of institutions with letters of introduction which procured them quarters at the institution in which to conduct their shakedowns.

While the witnesses showed some remarkable lapses of memory as to the leaders of the extortion ring, it was established that they were collecting a campaign fund for the governor and that they were paid off by another member of his cabinet, F. Lynden Smith.

It may be said on behalf of Gov. Horner that he has been unable to keep track lately of all that is going on in state departments. However, the same practices undoubtedly obtained in former years, before his regrettable illness forced a temporary curtailment of his activities.

The duty of the state civil service commission is plain. Its chairman, W. Emery Lancaster, says it will not tolerate violations of the civil service law. It is to be expected that it will put a stop to the shakedowns. But that is not enough. The law has been violated. The commission should transmit the evidence which has been given it to the state's attorney in every county in which a violation occurred, for prosecution of those responsible.

Recently THE TRIBUNE said the state civil service system was a joke. We received a letter of protest from Gen. John V. Clinnin, the minority member of the commission, who defended the commission's record. Our comment had not been directed at the commission, but at the state civil service act, which until it was amended at the last session of the legislature was so loose that employés had no practicable method of protecting their jobs.

The present case is a test of the good faith of the commission. The attitude of its chairman, Mr. Lancaster, leaves something to be desired. He said he would have to take under advisement the request that the Illinoisians, as the shakedown outfit calls itself, be required to produce its financial records, but at the same time he demanded that the Civil Service Protective association produce its records.

The association is not on trial. It is the complainant in this case and in effect the prosecutor. This dodge of prosecuting the prosecutor is an old trick of criminal lawyers with a weak defense. It won't work this time. If Mr. Lancaster wishes to retain public respect he should discard his feeble red herring and go to work on the lawbreakers.

Editorial of the Day

[Detroit News.]

America's oldest newspaper, the Hartford Courant, is bringing out its special 175th anniversary edition. By courtesy of the editor we have before us a facsimile of the first issue, dated Oct. 29, 1764, and an amazingly newsy and interesting sheet it is.

The leading editorial pays tribute to the art of printing, for which it claims first place "of all the arts which have been introduced amongst mankind for the civilizing of human nature and rendering life agreeable and happy."

The value of the printer's art, it assumes, will be conceded. The value of a weekly paper it argues for as having advantage, "as it is the channel which conveys the history of the present time to every part of the world."

History comes to life in the reproduction of this brave adventure in American journalism. It reveals how old and unchanging are many political and international conditions.

Certain economies effected in Boston are praised in words which sound strangely familiar. "It shows the good sense of the town, for it is certainly prudent to retrench our extravagant expenses while we have something left to subsist ourselves . . ."

But we rub our eyes and look again as we read this item from Paris: "All is hurry and confusion at Versailles. Expresses are at every moment sent to the different seaports, and, if some whispers are to be credited, we are on the eve of a new rupture with the most formidable of our neighbors.

"This and the distractions which are but too justly apprehended in Poland threaten to deluge Europe afresh in blood and throw an uncommon air of dejection over this metropolis which was just beginning to recruit from the miseries of the late war."

Check the date—Aug. 10, 1764. Review the phrases: The "eve of a new rupture with the most formidable of our neighbors."

"Distractions apprehended in Poland threaten to deluge Europe afresh with blood."

Paris "just beginning to recruit from the miseries of the late war."

Almost without change the same story could have been printed in this country under date of Aug. 10, 1939. Three weeks later the same old war was redeclared.

The propagandists are "whispering" and sending out "expresses." They are the same old whisperings and expresses, only now they are directed to the mighty nation that the little colonies of 1764 became.

Is there any one in this country so utterly devoid of logic as to hope we could put an end to Europe's age long warfare by again mixing in it?

TO ONE AWAY.

(From one who wishes he wasn't.)

Time was
When front seats on a bus
Held secret pleasures just for us—
When Lindbergh Beacon,
Whistling train,
And glow of traffic lights in rain
Meant something special
For us two
Who traveled
Down the avenue.
The Water Tower, gold at night—
The Tribune building, all a-light—
The Wrigley clock,
That first was slow—
And then was fast (we'd never know!)—
The giant bulwark
Of the Mart—
The dainty shops, each set apart—
These made Boul Mich a mystery
To be explored by you
And me.
But now it's just a street, my dear,
Since you're so very Far
From here!

A Job for Our Next Ex-President.

The pugilistic scandal has its compensatory side. It solves the problem of what to do with our next ex-President. After the baseball scandal, Judge Landis was made czar of baseball. Keeping the Russian motif, F. D. R. can be made the commissar of the prize ring, a job in which he should be most happy. He could combine all his pet theories of a one man government, and like his appointees in the National Labor Relations board he could act as investigator, prosecutor, judge, and jury. He could combine the legislative, judicial, and executive functions into one, and that one, himself.

New Deal in Chain Letters.

I have received the following chain letter, with a stern admonition to comply:

"This chain is started in Reno in the hope of bringing happiness to all.

"Unlike other chains, this does not cost you any money.

"Drop the top name on the list and add your name to the bottom. Send a copy of this letter to five male friends, then bundle up your wife and send her to the person who heads the list.

"When your name works to the top, you will receive 15,175 women." Roberts Mann.

LESSON OF PAIN.

This have I learned from my own suffering—
A prideful reverence for my fellow men
Beside whose griefs mine is a trivial thing,
Beside whose courage mine is scant. For when
My own tears fell, I marked as not before
The anguish that men bear and with what grace
And, marveling at their patience, wept no more
And from my personal hades turned my face.

The mercies and austerities of heaven
I understand no better for my pain,
But I am well content to have been given
A new awareness of man's godlike strain.
Through my own hurt I see with clearer eyes
My brother's stature great against the skies.

Proviso Township's Little Brother.

I was born in Wilmot, Wis., which is a little village 20 miles west of Kenosha.

This town was one of the first towns in Kenosha county. The first building was a mill built on the Fox river. A man by the name of Benham built it. He also built other buildings. First the town was called Benham.

In a short time it was changed to Wilmot. I always knew it was named after the Wilmot Proviso, but never knew what that was until I read about it in the Line o' Type.

ITCHING EARS.

THE presence of a waxy secretion in the ear canals constitutes one of nature's safeguards. The sticky material is designed to protect the outer hearing machinery. But it may become so hard that it will prove irritating. Now and then deafness is suspected when there is really no trouble with the auditory apparatus. Some interference, however, with the passage of sound waves may be due to the accumulated plugs of cerumen [wax].

Many individuals complain of itching in this region. Sometimes hairs are responsible—but recent evidence points to certain plant fungi which are prone to take up their abode within these delicate channels. Investigation indicates that a fairly high percentage of molds can be found in these areas. They start to propagate whenever the lining becomes unhealthy in the slightest degree. Lack of cleanliness, improper diet, and general lowering of resistance may be to blame. Those who work in a dusty atmosphere and who use their finger nails as probes are prone to the infection. Occasionally an example is observed in which the mass of fungus threads is so extensive as to dull hearing. Once in a while ulceration will ensue which may penetrate the eardrum. For the most part however, these cases are mild.

At the outset the skin within the conduits will appear dry and particles from the surface similar to dandruff on the scalp may be sloughed away. Gradually, if allowed to progress, the loosened flakes will become moist and larger in size. Later if hairpins or matches are resorted to for scratching purposes, bacteria are likely to be planted, resulting in inflammation and even abscess formation.

We must recognize the fact that molds are everywhere. We cannot leave even a bit of bread about the home for more than a few days without finding it covered with a gray to greenish growth. Naturally the ears will catch some of the spores and if the cuticle is weakened, cracked or broken, they may imbed themselves in the tissues.

Cleanliness, of course, is the primary preventive measure. The wash cloth should not penetrate deeply within the canal, but sterile, soapy water will do no harm even tho it reaches the drum. Perhaps we do not syringe our canals as often as we should. Warm salt water [a teaspoonful to a pint] can be employed safely with a soft, all-rubber tip and bulb. But the stream should not be forceful; neither should it be directed toward the drum. The nozzle should be placed against the side wall [front or back]. This will give the fluid a whirling movement which will dislodge foreign particles.

To destroy these fungus growths, the most effective remedy we have is metacresylacetone. A soft pledget of cotton saturated with this antiseptic is inserted gently into the troublesome channel. Equal parts of this drug and a 2 per cent solution of thymol in alcohol may be tried. Within 10 or 12 hours the cotton cylinder is removed and from then on the fungicide may be applied with a medicine dropper.

We should follow the rule that no one but an expert should introduce anything into the ears. There is too much danger of adding to the infection or of injuring important structures. For this reason the first treatment or two should be supervised by the family doctor. Thereafter he may prescribe the solution in proper strength and supply adequate directions for its use. Fortunately, this plan is painless and hence is superior to the old régime of alcohol and salicylic acid.

From all reports, more itching ears come from this cause than from any other. While we are not dealing with a serious malady, nevertheless, if neglected, it may occasion much annoyance.

BLOOD COUNT.

I. L. G. writes:

1. What is the normal blood count for a woman 30 years of age?
2. What foods give iron and copper?
3. Are eggs of any value?

REPLY.

1. Approximately 4½ million red cells. The hemoglobin should average 85 to 90 per cent [14-15 grams].
2. We have a leaflet on iron-containing foods, which can be secured by sending a stamped, self-addressed envelope.
3. Eggs are a valuable addition to the diet.

HOUSEMAID'S KNEE.

Mrs. J. writes: In housemaid's knee, does the water leak out of the joint? What is the usual treatment?

REPLY.

Housemaid's knee is another name for bursitis. This structure is located in front of and below the kneecap. Constant irritation of this pad [bursa] causes swelling and sometimes inflammation. As a rule, there is no fluid in the joint itself. The application of heat and elastic compression bandages are helpful.

THE WORLD WAR 25 YEARS AGO

[From Tribune Files.]

Nov. 17, 1914.

[112th day of world war; 78th of present war.]

LONDON.—On the plea of Premier Asquith, commons voted to raise one billion dollars and one million men to prosecute the war. England had 1,200,000 men under arms and had spent almost 500 million dollars in less than 80 days. Lord Asquith called the war the greatest emergency the nation ever had faced.

WASHINGTON, D. C.—The gloom that marked the American depression, following the outbreak of the war, appeared to be lifting. Europe was proving to be a good buyer. Prices were rising all along the line. The United States Chamber of Commerce and President Wilson issued jubilant statements. There seemed to be no fear that sales to belligerents might result in complications later on.

BERLIN.—In the absence of definite news of fighting on the western front, it was announced that German guns on the Belgian coast had disabled three British warships. These were the torpedo boat Falcon, the cruiser Brilliant, and the sloop of war Rinaldo, all of which had been cruising off the east coast in the North sea.

THE CORNERSTONE THAT WAS LOST IN THE THRONG

VOICE OF THE PEOPLE

Writers should confine themselves to 200 or 300 words. Give full names and addresses. No manuscripts can be returned. Address Voice of the People, The Tribune.

POINTS TO "AMERICA'S DUTY."

THE DOWERHOUSE, 10 CHARTERHOUSE SQUARE, ALDERSGATE, E. C. I., LONDON, Oct. 30.—I think it may interest you to print a short, and I fear, outspoken letter on the views which the average Englishman, of whom I may claim to be one, takes of the American attitude toward the war. Plain speaking is a prized heritage of English speaking peoples and I feel sure nobody will take offense at it.

Now what we feel over here put succinctly is this:

1. We are extremely glad that the arms embargo has been lifted.

2. But it jumps to the eye that this gives America a good cash customer for her exports.

3. We are glad to hear that America while persisting in legal neutrality does not "think neutrally."

4. But while we are grateful for good wishes and for the chance of getting what we like to pay for, affectionate expressions of opinion do not win wars or stamp out Hitlerism or bolshevism [which by the way do not seem very different in essence as they both involve the law of the jungle, and I cannot myself see the difference between the Gestapo and the Ogpu, nor I suppose can you]; moreover, there seems to be more than a tendency for the two to amalgamate with the imminent prospect of bringing Nazi-bolshevism down to the edge of the Rhine, if not further. [I think the adventures of the City of Flint are quite enough to show America which way things are going, qua Russia.]

5. Now one of the few truthful things the Fuehrer has said is that "England is no longer an island"; one of the things which he may point out if anything goes wrong with the present conflict is that America is no longer a continent. The plain facts of the matter are modern means of transport are obliterating distance and the peoples all over the world are becoming close neighbors.

6. Now the present position is, put graphically, that a forest fire is raging; you are farther from it than we are, but the bigger it gets the more liable it is to spread. It is no use talking about whether it was due to Aunt Jane's senility, to little Freddie's carelessness, to bully Adolf, or the tricky Joe; the fact of the fire remains and one would think it everybody's job to take immediate steps to put it out. Expressions of goodwill do not put fires out and an offer to sell a hose pipe is only a step in the right direction. What is urgently needed is more firemen with their own equipment.

7. Now we see in the papers what Mr. Roosevelt calls "heart beating" and the cry of "Don't let the sons of American mothers die," but what doctrine is this? We find it difficult to believe that American mothers and their sons who went to New England for the sake of their consciences are now taking the stand: "Let the sons of English and French mothers deal with the conflict to save America from the ultimate perils of bolshevism and force, but we don't intend to risk our safety, our motto is sympathy and salesmanship."

8. There are two reasons why we wonder at this. I will take the lower one first. Might not a surge of American opinion say plainly: "Force and lying must stop and if they do not we are in it with the allies, and we will make a bundle of sticks which if they might be broken one at a time are clearly unbreakable collectively." This attitude might shut down the war quickly and at the worst make victory certain, thereby saving in the long run not only Europe but American trade and civilization.

Secondly, which is more important as being less self interested, is it not the job of every clean free man on this disturbed earth to say: "I won't stand for oppression and if the world is drifting to a fight between decency and Christianity on the one side and the force of anti-Christ on the other, I am in the job and I am not sitting back to let other people do the dirty work."

The first argument is an appeal to self-interest and diplomacy, the second addressed to what I believe to be the mainspring of the ideology of every Christian and all free God fearing men, black, white, and brown. FRANK DAPHNE, Solicitor.

IT'S REACHED THE "HUN" STAGE.

Chicago, Nov. 13.—Answering Mr. Churchill: Of course, as you say, Hitler is a maniac and the Germans are nothing but a bunch of Huns. And we all know that Uncle Sam's name should really be Shylock, but at present—well, that fellow is rich, beastly rich, so we better call him pal till the war is over, don't you think so, Mr. Churchill?

But say, would you like to hear what some famous men of France thought about your own democratic country? Here's what the great Victor Hugo told dear old England: "You are a nation that is continuously stirring up other people. . . . You are unique in always wishing to inflict any kind of damage upon any nation whenever it is to the benefit of your own purposes. The hour may come when two signs will be erected on earth, one of them reading, 'Human Beings' and the other one 'Englishmen.'"

And here are the words of Napoleon: "What posterity is going to hold above all is the ugly school they are handing down to future generations: Their impudent Machiavellianism, their deep rooted immorality, their cold egotism, their disregard for human conditions, and a just consideration of world affairs."

Could it be possible that those fellows were right, Mr. Churchill? WILLIAM SCHNELLE.

TERMS OF WILL.

Chicago, Nov. 9 [Legal Friend of the People].—I would like your opinion on a term in a will disposing an estate to 10 heirs. Quote of said article in will:

1. "It is my express wish and desire that all real estate which I may own or die possessed of shall be converted into cash or otherwise disposed of within five years from the date of my death."

In your opinion does this mean that all real estate must be disposed of within the five years to follow out the will correctly?

2. "I direct that my said trustees, in the distribution of said trust estate, as aforesaid, shall act only on the written direction of my said 10 children, aforenamed, that in the event of a dispute, or for any other reason my said trustees are unable to obtain the written direction of my said 10 children as to a particular method of distribution of all or any part of the said trust estate hereby created, then and in such event, I hereby empower my said trustees to act on the written direction of any six of my said children."

The question has arisen, have any six of the children who agree—say to dispose of one part of the estate—the power to force the sale of that particular part of the estate at a determined price when the trustee is not willing to dispose of it at that determined price? Or has the trustee the sole power to determine at what price any part shall be disposed of?

If it is possible in any way to reply to my question, it would be appreciated as there will be a meeting of the heirs in 10 days to try to reach some agreement on the disposal of one part of the estate which the trustee will not agree to. F. F.

1. It is not clear in what sense you are using the word "must." If all of the parties interested in the estate are satisfied to substitute a new arrangement for the arrangement named in the will, then on the bare facts before us we do not see how any other person would be in a position to question the new arrangement.

2. On the facts stated, the trustees are in one clause authorized to sell only on direction of the heirs and, in another clause, are directed to sell absolutely. We cannot resolve this contradiction without having the contract before us. We advise you to employ an attorney.

REP. MAY PLANS BILL FOR A CCC MILITARY COURSE

Offers Limited Training at No Cost.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Nov. 16.—Representative Andrew J. May [D., Ky.], chairman of the house military affairs committee, announced today he is considering introducing a bill at the next session of congress to institute military training among the 270,000 youths enrolled in the Civilian Conservation corps.

Representative May.

May said a CCC military training program would be undertaken without any cost to the government and that such training would be the least expensive part of the national defense program, which is headed toward a two billion dollar expenditure by the next congress.

May's plan would instruct CCC youths between the ages of 18 and 23 a few hours a week in military tactics. The training would not involve huge outlays for military equipment or require large staffs of army men. It would be of a rudimentary nature.

An Old Controversy.

If he introduces his bill, Chairman May will revive the controversy over military training in the CCC which has flared up every year since the creation of the organization in 1933. Each attempt to introduce such training at CCC camps has met with violent opposition from pacifist and radical groups.

At the last session of congress Representative James P. Richards [D., S. C.] attempted to institute six hours of military drill and instruction a week for all CCC enrolees other than war veterans.

Richards argued that the CCC enrollees are receiving a living from the government and should be glad to prepare themselves to defend the country in time of war. He received the support of Senator Robert R. Reynolds [D., N. C.], who said he would press for passage of the amendment in the senate if it was voted by the house.

Organized Opposition.

The amendment was laid aside in the house labor committee when pacifist and radical opposition organized protests at public hearings. Richards argued in vain that he was not urging that the CCC enrollees be taught to shoot, but would merely be given rudimentary military training.

Senator Reynolds was prepared to go a step farther than Richards. It was his contention that the CCC youths be given thoro training with as many weapons as possible so that they might be formed into an efficient third line of defense behind the regular army and National Guard.

There are now 300,000 enrollees in the 1,500 CCC camps. Of these, 30,000 are war veterans, who would not be subject to military instruction.

The CCC has never favored military training for its enrollees.

CERTIFY U. A. W. FOR BARGAINING IN AUTO PLANTS

Washington, D. C., Nov. 16 (AP).—The National Labor Relations board today certified the United Automobile Workers union of the C. I. O. as the sole and exclusive bargaining representative for workers in 11 plants of the Chrysler corporation, automobile manufacturing concern. A dispute between the C. I. O. and the Chrysler corporation, which closed Chrysler plants, was in its 42d day.

In a 12th plant the board certified the International Association of Machinists and Die Sinkers, local 1222 [A. F. of L.] as representative of the die sinkers employed there, but certified the U. A. W.-C. I. O. for the production and maintenance employés. This plant was at Newcastle, Ind.

The 11 plants at which the U. A. W.-C. I. O. was fully certified were listed by the board as Chrysler, Jefferson, Chrysler Kercheval, Dodge main, Dodge forge, Dodge truck, De Soto, Highland Park, Amples-Harper, Plymouth, Marysville, and Los Angeles.

At the plants at Evansville and Kokomo, Ind., the board reported, the question of collective bargaining representation was not disposed of because of objections filed to the election held Sept. 27-28 were not disposed of.

FEDERAL HOUSING COSTS TOO HIGH, BUILDER ASSERTS

Washington, D. C., Nov. 16 [Special].—The advisability of meeting the national housing problem thru private rather than government financing was emphasized at a construction conference here today.

Major trade associations in the construction field, as well as labor and finance organizations, were represented by about 300 delegates. The meeting, held under auspices of the Chamber of Commerce of the United States, will continue tomorrow.

Fred H. Ludwig, lumber man of Reading, Pa., said costs are excessive under federal housing plans.

"PWA has adopted a small house program with a room cost of approximately $1,500," he asserted. "The United States Housing authority has established room costs that range from $1,200 up. These high figures compare with the average room cost in private industry for home building of approximately $800."

City Cuts Paving Costs by Demanding New Bids

Last May Oscar Hewitt, commissioner of public works, rejected bids on asphalt for paving city streets because he considered the prices too high. The city readvertised for new bids. Yesterday Hewitt announced that the new bids had been received and were approximately 50 cents a ton lower than the previous bids. The bids are for about $700,000 worth of asphalt.

MAKE THIS FOREHEAD TEST

PUSH YOUR HAIR BACK FROM YOUR FOREHEAD. Do you find considerable short hair there and at the temples?

This is the stunted "new hair" from the same root that used to produce hairs of normal length every three or four years. Each time a hair came in again after the old one had fallen out it was a little shorter, a little thinner in diameter, and in blonds a little lighter in color. It is now short and shabby, will fall out before long and give place to one still shorter, or will not come through, and cannot do so without help.

It proves that a lot of your hair has been shortening several years, and the hair line is already, or soon will be, higher in the temples and forehead and thinner on top.

Unlike an aching tooth, there is no pain to make you attend to it.

Treatment based on exact and scientific knowledge is needed to save your hair, increase it, and restore the scalp to its fullest hair-growing health.

We invite you to experience the effects of the WELLINGTON scientific treatment. Mr. WELLINGTON would like to talk with you. His treatment embraces the use of:

BUTLER'S DEATH GIVES NEW DEAL COURT CONTROL

Attorney General Murphy May Get Post.

judges, President Roosevelt complained in March, 1937, that he had been denied the opportunity of appointing Supreme court justices which other Presidents had enjoyed. Now he has more than 14 months of his second term to serve, and if one more appointment opportunity is afforded by death or retirement his record of six will be exceeded only by that of George Washington who appointed the original court of six members and 12 in all, including three chief justices.

Four Named by Roosevelt.

Thus far, Mr. Roosevelt has appointed in order Justices Hugo L. Black, Stanley F. Reed, Felix Frankfurter, and William O. Douglas in succession, respectively, to Justices Willis Van Devanter, George Sutherland, Cardozo, and Louis D. Brandeis. Van Devanter, Sutherland, and Brandeis retired.

Justice Butler's death leaves only Justice James Clark McReynolds, another Democrat, of the once powerful conservative wing of four members—including Van Devanter and Sutherland — who consistently pronounced unconstitutional the laws forming the basis of the New Deal experiment in collectivism.

The invalidation of New Deal laws during Mr. Roosevelt's first term, in which the four conservatives were joined frequently by Chief Justice Charles Evans Hughes and Justice Owen J. Roberts, led to the presentation of the court packing scheme in 1937. Justice Harlan Fiske Stone's dissenting opinion in the case invalidating the first AAA, charging that some of the justices were motivated by personal economic predilections, furnished ammunition for the New Dealers in the court packing fight.

Since 1937 Chief Justice Hughes and Justice Roberts have voted generally in favor of New Deal statutes and the Roosevelt administration actually enjoyed a working majority before the death of Justice Butler. Last winter, when the compulsory marketing quota provisions of the second AAA were upheld, only Justices Butler and McReynolds dissented.

Funeral Services Today.

Chief Justice Hughes delivered a eulogy of Justice Butler from the bench today and the court thereafter adjourned until Wednesday as a further mark of respect.

The chief justice announced that the funeral services, to be held in Washington tomorrow, would be attended by the court. A committee composed of Justices McReynolds, Stone, and Roberts will attend the funeral in St. Paul Monday.

The court recessed until Wednesday because of the funeral on Monday, the next regular opinion day, when it was to have taken a two week recess for the writing of opinions. Instead the court will recess from Wednesday until Dec. 4.

New Dealers who inveighed against Justice Butler and his conservative colleagues in 1937 praised him today and expressed regret at his death. President Roosevelt said he had known the justice for many years and regarded him as a personal friend. Attorney General Murphy and Solicitor General Robert H. Jackson also lauded Justice Butler.

Justice Butler was born in a Minnesota log cabin, worked his way thru college, became the leading railroad attorney of the northwest, and amassed a fortune before his appointment to the Supreme court at the age of 56.

Justice Butler's parents, Patrick and Mary Butler, worked a farm near Northfield, Minn. They were Irish and their son Pierce was born on St. Patrick's day, March 17, 1866. He attended a pioneer school, did chores on the farm and then at 15 entered Carleton college at Northfield, Minn. There he rustled milk cans in a dairy to pay his expenses.

He was graduated from Carleton in 1887, went to St. Paul to read law in an attorney's office and the next year hung out his shingle, continuing in active practice until his appointment to the Supreme court.

A fellow railroad attorney in the Minnesota capital who also gained fame as a "trust buster" was Frank B. Kellogg, secretary of state in the Coolidge cabinet.

Elected to Office Once.

The only elective office Justice Butler ever held was that of county attorney of Ramsey county, 1893-'97, after he had served two years, 1891-'93, as assistant county attorney, an appointive post. He was prosecuting attorney of St. Paul for six years.

In 1891 he married Annie Cronin of St. Paul. They had eight children. One daughter, Mary, died while serving as an army nurse in the world war. Four sons also served in the military forces.

Justice Butler is survived by Mrs. Butler and four sons and two daughters. They are Pierce Jr., William, and Francis of St. Paul, Leo and Miss Margaret Butler of Washington, and Mrs. Edward K. Butler of Baltimore.

ELLEN SCHWANNEKE.

New York, Nov. 15 [Special].—Ellen Schwanneke today put Nazi Germany behind her and made a fresh start in life. The 24 year old German actress, who starred in the hit picture, "Maedchen in Uniform," at the age of 15 and who arrived here last April, went to the federal naturalization bureau and declared her intention of becoming an American citizen.

Last year, while she was playing in a picture in Switzerland, Fuehrer Adolf Hitler invited her to one of his parties in Munich, she said.

"I refused it because I hate Hitler," she said today. "America is the only place where there is freedom."

ORR SUGGESTED AS SUCCESSOR TO JUSTICE BUTLER

Chicago discussions of the United States Supreme court vacancy caused by the death of Justice Pierce Butler yesterday brought up the name of an Illinoisan who might be considered as a candidate for the appointment—Warren H. Orr, former justice of the Illinois Supreme court.

On two similar occasions in recent years Judge Orr's name was presented to President Roosevelt by the two United States senators from Illinois at that time, the late James Hamilton Lewis and William H. Dieterich. The jurist also had the indorsements of Gov. Horner, Mayor Kelly, and other Democratic leaders.

Judge Orr served one nine-year term in the state high court and, without seeking renomination, retired last July to engage in the practice of law in Chicago. In 1937 when Justice Willis Van Devanter retired from the United States Supreme court and again in 1938 when Justice George Sutherland retired Illinoisans brought out the fact that no member of the high court had been appointed from Illinois since 1910, when Chief Justice Melville W. Fuller died.

Three Boys Drop a Match Into Sewer; Singed by Fire

Three boys dropped a lighted match yesterday into a sewer manhole at Roscoe street and Osage avenue. There was a burst of flame as sewer gas ignited. The boys escaped with slight burns and singed eyebrows. They are Robert Schmidt, 3308 Osage avenue; Donald Duncan, 3241 Osage avenue, and George Hruska, 3215 Osage avenue. All are about 1[illegible] years old.

PANTAGES TELLS OF FINDING WIFE WITH ANOTHER

Los Angeles, Cal., Nov. 16 (AP).—Rodney Pantages, son of the late theatrical magnate, Alexander Pantages, testified today that a telephone message, "There's a man's coat and necktie on your bed and the door to the little bedroom is closed," led to a midnight raid in which he says he found his wife in a compromising situation with a bartender.

Pantages, a witness at his divorce suit, said his housekeeper telephoned the message to him after he informed his wife he would be away overnight.

With a friend and two detectives he returned to his home, broke into the bedroom, and discovered Mrs. Pantages in bed and the bartender, Pete Bedwell, half clad, in the room, he testified.

BRICKER DISOWNS CAMPAIGN FOR PRESIDENT HERE

Gov. John W. Bricker of Ohio yesterday disowned a presidential campaign headquarters about to be opened in Chicago in his name.

A suite on the fifth floor at 120 South La Salle street has been leased for the "Republican Volunteer Committee Sponsoring Gov. John W. Bricker of Ohio for President," according to Clyde I. Backus. Backus was on the premises yesterday and said that furniture would be moved in today. Clarence F. Buck of Monmouth, Ill., was named as the man who would be chairman.

"I have had no previous knowledge of such a movement," said Gov. Bricker in Columbus, O. "I haven't sanctioned it and I won't sanction anything of the kind."

Harking back to how we first got in print

This ad we ran in the papers way back shows how a lot of folks first heard tell of a personal whiskey recipe put up by a real old time family of distillers. Since then we've put up millions of cases of Wilken Family Whiskey. And if you haven't tasted it yet you're missing as likely a treat as you ever had.

Harry E. Wilken

In this here prize recipe you'll taste what making 380 million gallons taught me!

Yes sir, you're tasting the real family's whiskey of us Wilkens—and I've put all the knack I got out of my 40 or so years of experience into it! Up to the plant you'll find me and the boys watching over our Family's Whiskey from 6 a. m. till quitting time. And when you taste how licking good it is, I miss my guess if you don't say the Wilkens done mighty well by you. That's what everybody seems to be saying anyway!

NEW DEAL TRIES TO EXPLAIN AWAY ASHBURN OUSTER

Blames It on Wrangle Over Expense Account.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Nov. 16.—The New Deal today attempted to blame the ouster of Maj. Gen. Thomas Q. Ashburn from the presidency and chairmanship of the Inland Waterways corporation to a wrangle over a $5,000 expense account.

Chester Thompson.

A department of commerce spokesman sought to quiet reports that the distinguished soldier and engineer had been forced out by Secretary of Commerce Harry L. Hopkins because he insisted on running the waterways corporation as he would a private corporation and resisted efforts to have it operated as a bureau of the department of commerce.

He Made It Pay.

The general proposed the creation of the corporation, which operates the government barge transportation system in the Mississippi river and connecting waterways, and made it a paying organization.

The commerce department spokesman charged that the general's ouster resulted from cutting off his $5,000 a year personal expense account. The spokesman would not permit the use of his name.

He said that the expense account was disallowed shortly after the corporation was transferred from the war department to the department of commerce last July. The general drew an annual salary of $10,000.

Fights Supervision.

After his personal expense account was wiped out, according to the spokesman, Ashburn resisted any departmental supervision. When Hopkins instructed him to take orders from Assistant Secretary of Commerce J. Monroe Johnson, Ashburn appealed to the White House.

President Roosevelt referred the matter to the department of justice, and Solicitor General Robert H. Jackson upheld Ashburn's contention that Hopkins was giving Johnson unlimited authority over the corporation.

Hopkins then went to the White House with the charge that Ashburn had not given a true report of the situation and had failed to show the President the limitations placed on Johnson's powers, according to the spokesman.

Murphy Takes Action.

The White House again submitted the matter to the department, this time to Attorney General Murphy. Murphy reversed the Jackson opinion and held that the Hopkins order was legal, in view of the restrictions on Johnson's powers.

Ashburn was kicked out on an hour's notice yesterday, and Chester Thompson, lame duck Democratic congressman from Rock Island, Ill., was given his job. The general made the statement that he was removed because he wanted to run the corporation as a business enterprise and not as a government bureau.

Advised of the commerce department spokesman's version of his ouster, Gen. Ashburn said he had made his statement and did not intend to discuss the matter further, particularly with unnamed spokesmen.

Miss Alita Gaile Hartmann, 19 years old, an auburn haired model, was chosen yesterday as "Miss Melting Pot" by fellow members of the Mannequins' Guild of Chicago. That title means, the press agent said, that she represents "the new type of American beauty that is developing from the amalgamation of the various nationality groups in the United States." Miss Hartmann will be queen of the Mannequins' ball which will be held in the Hamilton hotel, Dec. 9. She lives at 7805 South Union avenue.

Check the answer you consider best for each of the following five business problems. Correct answers on page 40.

1. A chronic borrower asks a loan of $10. You know he seldom pays his debts, yet you don't wish to be rude. It is best:
—To tell him he is a deadbeat.
—To tell him your wife handles the cash, so he'll have to see her.
—To lend him the $10.

2. A butler accidentally opens the bathroom door while the lady of the house is bathing. He should say:
—"Excuse me, madam. I didn't know you were here."
—"You should have locked the door."
—"O, excuse me, sir."

3. A secretary finds her employer is too affectionate. She should:
—Sit across the desk from him while taking dictation.
—Tell him she'll report him to his wife.
—Slap his hand.

4. Alice is secretary to a man whose grammar is poor. He resents correction, yet she doesn't like to send out such letters. It would be best to:
—Tell him to study business English.
—Say nothing, but make the corrections when she writes his letters.

5. A creditor hasn't remitted after 30 days. It would be best to:
—Threaten legal action.
—Offer to knock off 25 per cent if he'll pay at once.
—Write him a courteous letter saying you'd appreciate his check so you can pass it along to the people you owe.

CHINESE REPORT JAPANESE BEATEN BACK AT PAKHOI

CHUNGKING, Nov. 17 [Friday].—Chinese military reports from Kweilin, Kwangsi province, said Japanese forces which occupied the mouth of the Lung Mun river on the Kwangtung coast, 50 miles to the west of Pakhoi, on Wednesday were repulsed before daylight on Thursday after a bitter night battle, and Pakhoi was still in Chinese hands.

The reports said the Japanese maintained an insecure foothold on the coast at Shisa, a few miles from the Lung Mun mouth, and that Chinese reinforcements were being rushed to the battle area.

Kweilin dispatches asserted the Japanese forces were not large and that they were believed so far to be insufficient for a drive inland into Kwangsi.

11,000 ENTER U.S. FLYING COURSES AT 400 SCHOOLS

Nation's Goal Is Reserve of Trained Pilots.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Nov. 16.—At 400 universities and colleges thruout the country, 11,000 young men and young women are learning to fly. They are taking class room and practical instruction in aviation under the four million dollar flying program set up by congress as a part of the expanded national defense.

The primary aim of the program is not to make military pilots, but to give the nation a trained reserve of pilots who will prove invaluable in time of war. Other aims are to make private flying safer and to stimulate the aviation industry.

6,000 New Pilots in Year.

Last June there were 26,000 licensed pilots in the United States, which represented an increase of 6,000 over June, 1938. As a result of the college training program, Civil Aeronautics association officials expect the number will jump to 40,000 next summer and to 75,000 by 1942.

During the last year 3,000 light planes were built and sold. With the creation of a new group of pilots, who will be interested in acquiring light planes, it is expected this number will jump to 10,000 in the next year if war orders do not swamp American factories.

The pilot training program went into effect in the 400 schools this fall after the plan had been tried in 13 colleges last spring. The training period was highly successful, several hundred youths being taught to fly without a fatal accident.

Closer Supervision in Air.

The flying course is divided into 72 hours of ground training and 35 to 50 hours in the air. In flying the young pilots are accompanied by an instructor more often than in private flying schools. This, officials believe, will cut down the accident toll.

Two flying schools are maintained exclusively for women—one at Mills college, Oakland, Cal., and the other at Lake Erie college, Painesville, O. At co-educational institutions, the plan provides that 10 per cent of the students may be women. At present they number 3 per cent of the total enrollment.

"The inclusion of women in this year's program must be considered experimental," said Robert H. Hinckley, chairman of the Civil Aeronautics authority. "Little or no data exists as to the adaptability of women to group flying instruction, altho women have made enviable records as pilots.

"The CAA has high hopes that the experience gained during the coming school year will furnish encouragement for the widespread entrance of women into aviation."

Key to Choice of Pilots.

One of the most important phases of the program, in the opinion of officials, is that it will afford an opportunity to conduct research in the training and selection of pilots. Millions have been spent in material research and yet little has been done with personnel research, altho a high number of air accidents are due to the human equation.

Chairman Hinckley has set up an advisory committee of eight leading experts in the field of psychology, physiology, and flying instrument making to conduct the study.

"This does not mean that the boys and girls learning to fly will be looked upon as guineapigs," Hinckley said. "No research will be allowed which might detract from the high safety standards we demand in flight instructions.

Confident of Coöperation.

"But we know that these youngsters are keen as mustard on these courses. We feel sure there will be no lack of volunteers if some special department requires some special studies or experiments aside from actual flying.

"We are fortunate in having a large group of students, representing all sections of the country and all kinds of upbringing and environment. Probably never before in any group with a single occupational trend has there been such a fine example for study in such capable hands."

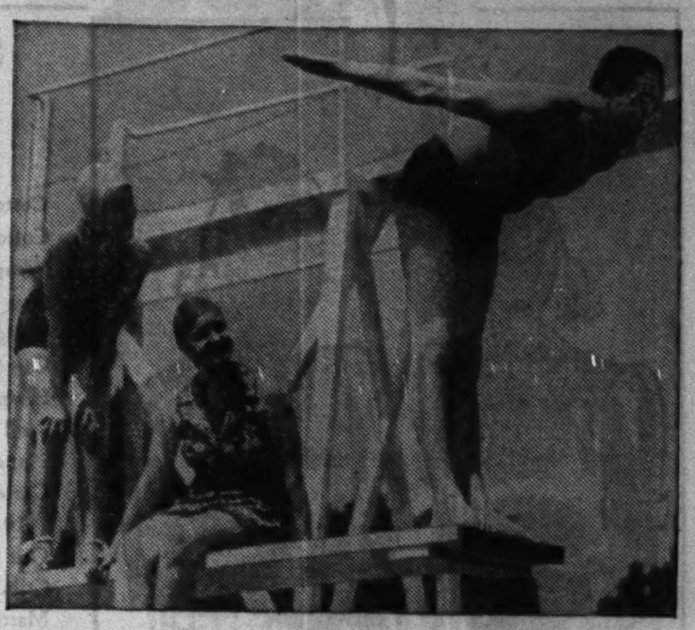
MILLIONS of FAMILIES HAVE ENROLLED!



Enrolled? Indeed they have—in an effort to combat one of America's most common, most burdensome ailments, constipation due to lack of "bulk" in the diet. In all these homes, men and women are joining the "regulars" by eating a crisp crunchy breakfast cereal, KELLOGG'S ALL-BRAN. What's the reason? Is there a story behind this national swing to ALL-BRAN? There certainly is—a story that began many years ago.

Years ago, when people wore bathing suits like these, W. K. Kellogg conceived what was destined to be one of the costliest, most comprehensive studies of constipation ever made. Eminent nutritionists and medical faculties of famous universities have checked and re-checked ALL-BRAN'S ability to solve the problem of constipation due to lack of bulk. But that isn't all. Millions of ordinary Americans have proven it, too—out of their own experience. Today, ALL-BRAN is growing faster than ever.

Join up at your grocer's! If you, too, suffer from common constipation, don't let it drag you down any more! Ask your grocer tomorrow for a package of delicious ready-to-eat KELLOGG'S ALL-BRAN. You'll really enjoy correcting your trouble with this crunchy nut-sweet cereal. Eat it regularly with milk or cream, and drink plenty of water. But don't accept any substitute. Look for the red Kellogg signature on the package. ALL-BRAN is made only by Kellogg's in Battle Creek.

COUNTY-STATE OFFICE BUILDING PROJECT REVIVED

Judges, Officials Confer with Bar Committee.

BY ARTHUR EVANS.

Construction of a new county-city-state administration and court building in Chicago was proposed anew yesterday at a meeting of judges and county commissioners with a special committee of the Chicago Bar association. The conferees said office rentals now paid by public agencies in many scattered buildings would finance a new government skyscraper.

Cook county now pays $106,000 a year in rent for outside offices, including the Appellate courtrooms at 20 North Michigan avenue. Six years ago the state was paying $200,000 a year for office rentals in Chicago, and since then the amount has increased. A full column in the Chicago telephone directory is taken up by offices rented by state departments.

Possible Sites Discussed.

Tappan Gregory, president of the Bar association, appointed the special committee, headed by Paul W. Tatge, which is investigating the proposal for a new building. The committee met with Judges Cornelius J. Harrington and William V. Brothers of the Circuit court and Commissioners Daniel Ryan and Maurice F. Kavanagh of the county board. They discussed overcrowding in the County building, especially in the courts.

Possible sites for a new government building were considered. These included a site east of Michigan avenue near Randolph street. Air rights for this would have to be acquired from the Illinois Central railroad. Another suggested site was the half block on the north side of Washington street between Dearborn and Clark streets, across from the County building. Another was a site on air rights to be got from the Milwaukee railroad just west of the river between Madison and Adams streets.

Offer from Field Estate.

A suggestion that a building to cost $10,000,000 would serve the purpose was tossed into the meeting. Likewise a proposal that the Public Works administration should be asked for a grant of 45 per cent of the cost.

Commissioner Ryan said the Marshall Field estate has offered to erect a building for the use of the county and other government agencies on the site of the old Field wholesale store at Adams and Wells streets. He said the estate's terms call for payment of rent for 20 or 30 years, after which the title would be conveyed to the county, city, and state.

Some one inquired whether a tower could be erected on the present County building. Ryan and Kavanagh said such a structure would be unsafe.

Money Down Rat Hole.

"Every dollar we put into the county building is money down a rat hole," said Kavanagh. "It's 30 years old and in three years we've spent two million dollars in changing offices and making repairs. The fire escapes are dangerous."

Other conferences on the subject are expected to follow.

SCHOONER STRIKE IS NEAR SOLUTION IN SAN FRANCISCO

San Francisco, Cal., Nov. 16 (AP).—The strike of marine firemen against coastwise steam schooners appeared near an end today when a wage agreement was reached, but San Francisco bay shipping remained paralyzed with a strike of C. I. O. ship clerks deadlocked and a labor dispute at the port of Oakland growing more serious.

Because of almost complete curtailment of ship movements the world's largest sugar refinery at Crockett, owned by the California Hawaiian company was expected to close, throwing 1,600 employés out of work.

Difficulties which led to a 95 per cent shutdown of shipping here began with the walkout of marine firemen in a contract negotiation dispute, tieing up 95 lumber carriers up and down the coast. Next came the walkout of 650 San Francisco ship clerks in a contract negotiation controversy. Two days ago a "hot" pear cargo dispute flared at the port of Oakland. The clerks have tied up vessels of 27 companies by posting pickets at more than 30 piers.

The Question.

Do you think there is a political plot to prevent Chicagoans from getting milk in paper containers?

Where Answered.

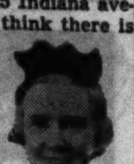
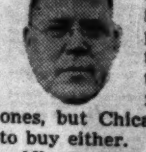
The Answers.

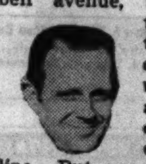


Miss Mary Burke, 7925 Indiana avenue, secretary—I don't think there is a plot of that sort, but I'm not well versed on the subject. I think, however, that the board of health and the city council want to be sure the containers are all right before allowing their sale.



J. A. Green, 2140 North Lamon avenue, bookkeeper—I wouldn't be surprised if there were some underlying cause for the delay. Politics probably are involved to a certain extent. I think glass bottles are far superior to paper ones, but Chicagoans should be able to buy either.

Albert Marland, 3039 East 91st street, draftsman—Naturally, glass manufacturers object to the use of paper containers, but I don't think that they would resort to politics to prevent their sale. I really don't think that there is a political plot to delay or prevent their sale.



Herman H. Mees, 5928 North Campbell avenue, bookbinder—I think there is. Certainly there is a great deal of needless delay. I've used paper containers and like them. The only drawback is, you can't see the cream line. But people ought to have a chance to buy them if they wish.

Knute Warland, 1853 North Kedzie avenue, mechanical engineer—It's hard to say whether there is such a plot. I don't really believe there is anything behind the city's slowness in allowing the sale of milk in paper containers, but an honest desire to be sure the containers are sanitary.

EMPLOYERS TOLD OF 'HORSE SENSE' LAWS IN OREGON

Incompetency and bias on the part of the National Labor Relations board in administering the Wagner act brought the enactment of stringent labor laws in Oregon, former Gov. Charles H. Martin said last night. He spoke before more than 1,000 members of the Employers' Association of Chicago at the organization's thirty-eighth annual dinner in the Palmer House.

"While biased examiners conducted hearings, starry eyed kids wrote the board's decisions and the board itself idly sat back," Martin asserted, "racketeer labor leaders ran rampant. Industry suffered. Public indignation demanded order and the demand was not confined to princes of privilege or economic royalists. It was inspired in Oregon by an association of farmers."

The Oregon laws had brought industrial peace to the state, Martin said, urging other states with labor difficulties to adopt the principles embodied in those laws. They provide "stop, look, and listen signs" for all parties to a labor dispute by injecting "horse sense" into the legal machinery providing for the rights of both sides, he added.

More Stockyards Police Ordered; CIO Opens Drive

Twenty-four extra policemen were assigned at 5 a. m. today to special duty at the stockyards in connection with the scheduled distribution of C. I. O. handbills touching upon the jurisdictional dispute between C. I. O. and American Federation of Labor at the Armour & Co. plant. The detail was ordered as a precaution against disorder. An election to determine which union will control will be held next Tuesday.

INJURED BY STREET CAR.

J. R. Bowie, 60 years old, 517 Madison street, suffered a skull fracture last night when he was struck by a surface lines car in front of 519 Madison street.

DIES COMMITTEE CALLS THREE CIO LEADERS IN QUIZ

Studies Red Activities in Meat Packing Industry.

Three officials of the Packinghouse Workers Organizing committee, affiliate of the Congress of Industrial Organizations, have been summoned to appear at a hearing to be held in the Hotel Sherman by Congressman Martin Dies' house committee on un-American activities. Dies will arrive in Chicago this morning to take charge of the inquiry.

Herbert Marsh.

John C. Metcalfe, personal aid to Dies, said the congressman expected to bare Nazi and Fascist campaigns in the Chicago area, but would devote much of the hearing to the progress of communism in the steel, farm implement, and packing industries. Metcalfe spoke before the Chicago chapter, Daughters of the American Revolution, in the Stevens hotel last night.

Two of the P. W. O. C. officers, Henry Johnson and Herbert Marsh, have been attacked by rival union heads as communists. This rival union is the Amalgamated Meat Cutters and Butcher Workmen, affiliated with the American Federation of Labor.

Marshal Forces for Election.

The charges came as the P. W. O. C. and the Amalgamated were marshaling their forces for an election, to be held next Tuesday, to determine which shall be the sole bargaining agents for the employés in the Chicago plants of Armour & Co.

"Herbie Marsh and Henry Johnson have never even attempted to deny that they were active agents of the communist party," the Amalgamated leaders asserted in a printed statement. "As agents of that party Johnson and Marsh are not interested so much in improving conditions of the breadwinner as they are in advancing the cause of Russian communism.

"It is the policy of radical C. I. O. leaders, like Marsh and Johnson, to call strikes among the workers even tho they know these strikes will not be won. This is part of the worldwide program of the communist party for the purpose of fomenting worldwide Red revolution."

The Amalgamated urged all Armour workers to "think American" and "repudiate foreign Red Russian policy."

Johnson, in a prepared statement, declared he was informed three weeks ago that the Association of Commerce, "thru one of its puppet welfare agents," had requested that Dies come here "to smear the C. I. O. Packinghouse Workers' union shortly before the crucial Armour election."

Assails Dies' Supporters.

He added that the Dies committee was supported by Tory Democrats and reactionary Republicans. He made no mention of the charges of communism leveled at him.

Van A. Bittner, chairman of the P. W. O. C., said he had not been summoned. A subpena was issued, however, for Walter Stabrawa, secretary treasurer of the organization in Chicago. Bittner said he resented any attempt by Dies to appraise his patriotism.

"We are willing to match our Americanism, honesty, and integrity against any one living," he declared.

Deputy United States marshals who had been given the task of serving subpenas on eleven witnesses—four of whom are from Fascist and Nazi groups—reported that one man could not be found. He is Joseph R. Weber, alias Ruik, who was described as a C. I. O. organizer in the farm implement industry.

TRANSIT TANGLE BACK IN LAP OF FEDERAL COURT

Negotiations Stymied by 8 Cent Fare Demand.

The solution of Chicago's traction tangle was placed directly up to the federal court yesterday when negotiations for a unified transit franchise broke down completely. Since last May the city and the transit lines have been seeking in vain to draft a new ordinance for a merged transportation system.

Representatives of the lines reported yesterday to Federal Judge James H. Wilkerson, who has jurisdiction over the companies, that they could not reach an agreement with the city on the terms of a franchise. On Wednesday the city council transportation committee also reported that an agreement appeared impossible. Each group blamed the other for the breakdown.

Three Possible Alternatives.

Early next week William H. Sexton, special traction attorney for the city, will appear before Judge Wilkerson to explain the city's position.

Judge Wilkerson now has three possible alternatives. He may:

1. Try to bring the city and the transit lines together for further negotiations.
2. Ask the bondholders of the surface and elevated lines to draw up a new merger plan to be used as the basis for new negotiations.
3. Auction the transit lines at court foreclosure sales.

Judge Wilkerson has threatened to offer the properties for sale, but has held off in the hope that the lines could be unified. Court sales would not solve the traction tangle because the present bondholders would probably bid in the properties and the problem of obtaining a franchise from the city would begin anew.

Assail 7 Cent Fare.

The transit companies' three man negotiating committee—Walter A. Shaw, chairman, traction adviser to the federal court; Guy A. Richardson, president of the Chicago Surface Lines, and Col. A. A. Sprague, trustee for the elevated lines—asserted in their report yesterday that the city's proposals, including maintenance of the present 7 cent street car fare, would provide a unified company with insufficient earnings.

Lack of earnings would prevent the new system from obtaining credit to finance a modernization program, the report said. A $100,000,000 improvement program is contemplated if unification ever becomes a fact.

The companies seek an 8 cent street car fare to support the unified company and make improvements.

PLAN TO SETTLE CITY JUDGMENT OFFERED COUNTY

An offer by the city to take $2,000,000 and a vacant lot at 45th and Halsted streets, owned by the county, in settlement of a $3,200,000 judgment for the city against the county, was announced yesterday by Maurice F. Kavanagh, chairman of the county board finance committee. Kavanagh said the offer was made by Mayor Kelly. The judgment represents the county's share of Municipal court costs since 1928. A state Supreme court decision held the county liable for this share. The $2,000,000 would be paid over a ten year period, thru annual appropriations in the county budget. The offer will be presented to the county board at its meeting today, Kavanagh said.

Gruening to Go to Alaska Soon to Become Governor

Washington, D. C., Nov. 16 (AP).—Aids of Dr. Ernest H. Gruening, chief of the interior department's territories division, said tonight he would leave for Alaska next week to assume the post of territorial governor. Gruening received from the White House today a recess appointment to the Alaska governorship which will require senate confirmation. His previous nomination by the President, made just prior to the special session of congress, expired when congress adjourned without considering any nomination. This made necessary the second appointment by President Roosevelt.

DRINKS HIS WAY THRU $3,000 TOWARD THE WPA

Three years ago Joseph Gorman, 53 years old, 2639 North Ridgeway avenue, received a $3,000 legacy. He went on a spree, he told Judge George B. Weiss in Shakespeare avenue court yesterday. He was still going strong when brought into court on charges of drunkenness and disorderly conduct.

"I quit my job after getting the $3,000 and I've been having a whale of a time ever since," Gorman said.

"I'll continue this case until Nov. 28 to give you a chance to straighten up," Judge Weiss said. "How much money do you have left?"

"I've got $100," Gorman replied proudly.

"And after that . . . ?"

MOLTEN METAL KILLS WORKER.

Toledo, O., Nov. 16 [Special].—Eugene Miller, 32 years old, a molder, was burned fatally and nine others were injured when a ladle containing white hot metal broke in the molding room of the Unitcast corporation today, showering workmen with liquid fire and igniting woodwork.

CITY PREPARES TO FIGHT HEAVY AIRPORT AWARDS

Offers for Land Nearly Doubled by Jury.

The city corporation counsel's office prepared yesterday to contest a jury verdict awarding a total of $51,120 to the owners of 33 parcels of land needed for relocation of the railroad tracks that bisect Chicago airport. The verdict was returned early in the day in a condemnation suit before Judge Denis J. Normoyle in Circuit court.

The award was nearly twice the amount offered by the city, three of whose experts had estimated the value of the parcels as $26,717. The experts who testified for the defendants had fixed a total of $60,241.65. The $51,120 given by the jury of six men and six women was divided into $35,225 for the land and $15,895 for damage to the remainder of the property.

Awards Exceed Requests.

Assistant Corporation Counsel Joseph Grossman said that in several instances the jurors awarded the property owners more than they had asked.

"There is no rhyme or reason for such a verdict," Grossman said. "It looks as tho the jurors were just tired after deliberating 16 hours. The city will argue a motion for a new trial on Nov. 27."

81 Parcels of Land Sought.

The trial was the second in the city's program to remove the tracks of the Chicago and Western Indiana railroad lying along the line of 59th street and bisecting the 630 acre tract that will constitute the enlarged airport. The tracks are to be moved north of 55th street where 81 parcels of land are to be obtained thru the condemnation suits.

At the first trial, involving 22 parcels, another jury awarded the owners $18,048, which was $3,375 more than appraisals submitted by the city. Six more condemnation trials, involving 26 parcels, are to be held.

Motorist Kills a Deer, but Isn't Sure Until Next Day

Davenport, Ia., Nov. 16 [Special].—While driving on a highway two miles west of Maquoketa on Wednesday night, R. S. Little of Davenport, a tax auditor, struck and killed a deer, but it took him several hours to prove it. After reporting to the sheriff at Maquoketa, he went back to look for the animal, but was unable to locate it. Early today Little and a policeman found the deer a short distance off the road.

TWILIGHT HOUR FOUND WORST FOR ACCIDENTS

The Greater Chicago Safety council released figures yesterday on October traffic fatalities, which bore out the oft repeated warning of safety authorities that the twilight hour is the danger hour for automobile accidents. Twelve of the 64 persons killed in the city during the month were involved in accidents that occurred between 6 and 7 p. m. Sunday was the worst day of the week during the month, with 17 killed in Sunday accidents.

The total figure for the month was 23 per cent less than that for October, 1938. Forty-three of the 64 victims were pedestrians.

Mona Lisa Jackson, 11 years old, colored, 4957 Vincennes avenue, died last night in Provident hospital of injuries incurred Monday night when she was struck by a hit and run car at South Park way and 49th street.

Up to 4 p. m. yesterday 759 persons had been killed by automobiles in Cook county since Jan. 1. Of these 584 were killed in Chicago, where 19,466 were injured in the same period.

Hunter Killed as Own Gun Is Fired by Pump Handle

Centralia, Ill., Nov. 16 [Special].—Ralph A. Ellison, 17 years old, died in St. Mary's hospital here of head wounds received when his shotgun was discharged when it was struck by a pump handle. The boy and two companions, Leonard Vaughn, 22, and Herbert Waller, 17, were hunting two miles south of Centralia yesterday afternoon and stopped at a well to get a drink. Ralph rested the gun against the pump and as he moved the pump handle down it struck the gun's trigger.

TEXAS EDITORS CHECK 6-GUNS AT GARNER DINNER

Dallas, Tex., Nov. 16 (AP).—Members of the Texas Editorial association checked their knuckle dusters and six-guns tonight and recounted their own "sins" at an "evil old men's dinner" in honor of Vice President Garner.

The editors, all Texas journalists 20 years or longer, dug into their pasts for events enabling them to call themselves "evil as the Vice President."

The speakers' table was adorned with signs of racketeers and outside the door pretty Betty Phipps of Dallas relieved the editors of their artillery and brass knucks.

Lewis Bailey, Dallas editor who presided, related the dinner was in honor of a man whose evil had found him out, but who had been able to down it and win a wide circle of admirers. The dinner was inspired by a remark made by John L. Lewis, C. I. O. president, in which he referred to Garner as a "poker playing, whisky drinking, evil old man."

SENATOR HERRING SEES ROOSEVELT 3D TERM VICTORY

Des Moines, Ia., Nov. 16 (AP).—Senator Clyde L. Herring [D., Ia.], often mentioned as a possible favorite son candidate for President in the 1940 election, today predicted that Franklin D. Roosevelt will be reëlected.

"It must be recognized that the President is perhaps the only Democrat certain to carry many states like Iowa, which have formerly been heavily Republican," the senator said.

The senator qualified his prediction by saying peace in Europe and a radical change in conditions in this country between now and the Democratic national convention might deflate the third term boom. Either development, however, is unlikely, he said.

RECORD AUTO TRAVEL TO COST FIVE BILLION PREDICTED FOR 1940

BY HAL FOUST.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Nov. 16.—A banner motor travel year, with unprecedented numbers on the highways spending in excess of 5 billion dollars, is foreseen by the American Automobile association in reports received from its 725 affiliated clubs at its 37th annual convention here today.

Secretary of the Interior Harold L. Ickes, as the main speaker on today's program, volunteered advice to the motor clubs on how they might enhance the pleasures of touring and thereby oil this sizable cog in the nation's economic wheel. While much of his address was an advocacy for larger congressional appropriations for the national parks and for a federal tourist bureau, both in his department, he also cited familiar nuisances of the road which might be corrected by an aroused public opinion.

Tomorrow, the last day of the convention, another government official is on the program. Thomas H. McDonald, chief of the United States bureau of public roads, is to speak to a subject, "The Urban Traffic Problem."

Alderman Buys an Auto, but Doesn't Keep It Long

Ald. William T. Murphy [17th], who lives at 6643 Lafayette avenue, got delivery on a 1940 sedan late Wednesday night. Last evening he drove the car to his office at 6839 Wentworth avenue. When Ald. Murphy emerged two hours later, the car was gone.

Storekeeper Springs Own Shotgun Trap; Is Wounded

Wewahitchka, Fla., Nov. 16 (AP).—W. A. McDaniel doubted the efficiency of a home made shotgun trap in his general store when he walked into it accidentally himself a while ago and the gun failed to fire because a trip cord was too loose. So he drew the cord tighter after that. Today he walked into it again. It worked. He may survive.

GROCERS SPREAD HARVEST FEAST FOR THE SHOPPER

Turkey Day Supplies Are Plentiful; Prices Right.

BY MARY MEADE.

You'll want to begin saving up for that Thanksgiving dinner right away, once you take a peek at the grocers' feast offerings.

If an ample harvest means a well-set Thanksgiving table, there shouldn't be a bare spot on the cloth. Supplies of traditional foods are in general plentiful and prices for the most part are reasonable.

Variety for Budgeteers.

Such a variety of meats, fruits, and vegetables is on hand that no hostess should have trouble planning a menu tailor-made to her budget. The problem will lie in deciding what to eliminate.

FOR THE APPETEASER COURSE.

The hostess-cook who like to put the finishing touches on her dinner while her guests are sipping a fruit juice cocktail in the living room can serve a real bargain first course. Most stores are featuring canned fruit and vegetable juices.

Also available for dressing up fruit cups or cocktails are the exotic pomegranate [its juice combines well with citrus foods and its deep crimson seeds dress up any fruit cup], the cranberries and honeydew and casaba melons.

Fruits eligible for cocktails include apples, bananas, oranges, grapefruit, tangerines, winter pears, and western grapes.

All citrus fruits are low priced and the quality is excellent. The price of apples has sneaked up a bit in the last two weeks, but the fruit is still low for the season and in comparison to other fruits. Varieties most generally available are Jonathan, red and golden Delicious, Rhode Island greenings, and McIntosh. There are also some Grimes golden and Rome beauties. A few winesaps are on the market but these, always better after a period of storage, will probably not be at their prime until Christmas.

Grapes are exceptionally reasonable and pears, while somewhat more expensive than a week ago, are of fine quality.

TURKEY AND TRIMMINGS.

Mr. Turkey isn't quite up to par this year. Blame the mild weather for that. The turkey crop, which is expected to be extra large size this year, probably won't reach its peak until after Thanksgiving. So put your order in now. Price is about the same as last year. If you can use a large bird, buy a young tom and save money. Toms are lower, hens higher than last year.

Chicken, duck, and ham, all three of which are edging in on King Turkey's holiday supremacy, are also available at reasonable prices.

If you do plan to eat between now and the great day, these meat bargains may interest you: Pork loin, fresh ham, smoked picnics, all veal cuts, sirloin and round beef steaks, and leg of lamb.

The traditional turkey trimming of cranberries won't take more than the normal number of pennies this year. They're good quality berries, too.

Spiced preserved kumquats are another excellent turkey accompaniment. These sunset-colored, baby citrus fruits are available in some stores. They're attractive in salads too.

VEGETABLES IN VARIETY:

If week-end supplies and prices are any indication, selection of a vegetable course will be the least of one's Thanksgiving menu worries.

Sweet potatoes are unusually reasonable and white potatoes, particularly Idaho russets, are cheaper this week.

An onion crop of out-size proportions has made this pungent holiday favorite extremely low priced. Onions are of superior quality this year.

Other vegetables of excellent quality include artichokes, broccoli, Brussel sprouts, cabbage, carrots, cauliflower, mushrooms, spinach, squash, turnips, parsnips, and beets. All of these vegetables are reasonable for the season. Broccoli is slightly cheaper this week; carrots and cauliflower slightly higher.

THE SALAD COURSE:

With timely consideration of the season, lettuce dropped sharply this week. And the quality rocketed upward at the same time. Crisp, heavy heads of the iceberg variety are now coming from California.

Beautiful green avocados wearing reasonable price tags are now being shipped from Florida. These make festive salads in themselves and combine well with citrus fruits. Texas radishes are making their debut this week. They're not high. Extra fine celery is an unusually good buy. Budget-conscious housewives will do well to stay away from cucumbers and tomatoes, both of which are rapidly climbing into the luxury class.

Olives, pickles, and other relish tray items are being featured in all stores.

LITTLE ORPHAN ANNIE: Justice at Play

A PUMPKIN PIE'S RIGHT AT HOME IN A SNAPPY CRUST

PUMPKIN CHIFFON PIE IN GINGERSNAP CRUST.

Crust:
1⅓ cups crushed graham cracker crumbs
⅓ cup butter
1 tablespoon granulated sugar

Filling:
1 cup sieved canned or cooked pumpkin
3 eggs, separated
½ cup sugar
1 cup milk
½ teaspoon salt
½ teaspoon ginger
¼ teaspoon nutmeg
1 teaspoon cinnamon
2 tablespoons melted butter
1 tablespoon plain, unflavored gelatin
¼ cup cold water
½ cup sugar

To make crust, crush cookies very fine with rolling pin and blend with softened butter and sugar. Pat firmly into a nine inch pie plate and bake 10 minutes in a hot [400 degrees] oven. Cool. Meanwhile cook pumpkin in double boiler for 10 minutes, stirring occasionally. Add beaten egg yolks, sugar, and milk mixed together. Add salt, spices, and melted butter. Stir and cook until of custard consistency. Remove from heat and add gelatin which has been softened in the cold water. Stir until dissolved. Chill. When mixture begins to stiffen, fold in stiffly beaten egg whites to which one-half cup sugar has been added. Pour into gingersnap crust.

Danger on the Border

By FREDERICK R. BECHDOLT

[Copyright: 1939: By Frederick R. Bechdolt]

SYNOPSIS.

Leonard speeds west by car after finding that the sample of ore sent to him by his sick friend, Dillon, is rich in gold. In Copper City he picks up two strange companions, fat Mrs. Sebastian, and Louis Mestres, who claims to be a line jumper. They pull out just after the pay car of the Golconda mine. In a lonely spot they come upon the car—all occupants murdered, and the three bandits still on the scene. They chase Leonard's car with a machine gun. Mestres drops tacks in the road and stops their pursuit. Mestres recognized one bandit as the mine's paymaster. Paul Collins, a crooked local assayer, tests Dillon's ore.

INSTALMENT V.

CONSPIRATORS.

Paul Collins looked over his shoulder. The footstep that he had heard was some passerby on the sidewalk; he was alone. He set to work filling out his report on this assay. Nearly $1,000 a ton. He leaned back in his chair and he did some more thinking. Several minutes later he nodded as one who has made a decision. He folded up the report which he had just made out and he thrust it into his pocket. He took another blank and he wrote different figures in the two spaces—the one which held the weight of gold per ton and the one which held the value of that gold at current prices. He left the false report upon his desk and he departed from the dingy room. His slender shoulders were squared, his lined face held the look of resolution which announces a large decision as he closed the door behind him and stepped into the street.

The office of Vincent Kent was two blocks away. Here the business street of Golconda took on a more prosperous appearance. The signs on Kent's plate glass windows were painted in gold leaf, the windows were dressed out with photographs of headframes, and mills, and many specimens of rich ore. A sallow Mexican girl was sitting behind an idle typewriter when Collins entered. She glanced up and nodded at the visitor. She said:

"Mr. Kent is inside. I don't think he's busy."

She could have said that she knew he was not. To her it was something of a marvel that Mr. Kent was managing to get by at all. That a business which did not bring in much more than postage stamp money should afford its proprietor genuine prosperity was a puzzle beyond her solving, but she was satisfied as long as her wages came on the dot every Saturday noon, and she had no confidants on this side of the boundary with whom to share her speculations. She turned her eyes back to the magazine which she was reading, and Collins went on to the inner office which bore Kent's name, emblazoned in more gold leaf on the leaded glass of its door.

Kent's lines had been designed for thinness, but sedentary living had been doing some alterations amidships. There was something about that globular section where his trousers ended and his expensive silk shirt began which gave the suggestion of a pot-bellied little spider. And this suggestion was heightened by the dead pallor of his face with its lightless black eyes under a thick mass of blue-black hair. When he saw his caller he frowned slightly.

"My God!" He struggled with himself. "You're sure?"

"Well, Collins," he said, and he was thinking. "So you've dropped in! My old college chum!" He went on aloud: "Sit down. What can I do for you?"

Collins settled himself into the chair slowly. He had an idea what was in the other's mind, and he didn't like him any the better for that. He had never liked him very well in those bitter days when he had climbed the outside flight of iron stairs along the wall of the old sash and blind factory to the prison library on the second floor. For in those days of inner cliques and convict aristocracy, Kent had been looking forward with dread to just such meetings as this in after years, and had always kept himself aloof. Well, there was no love lost between them and no use in trying to make believe, as well to come to the point at once.

"I ran some assays today," Collins spoke with deliberation. "Here's one of them." He brought the report slip from his pocket and handed it to the other. Kent glanced at it, carelessly at first, then his eyes narrowed, and he whistled between his teeth.

"Who's this fellow Dillon?" He had a throaty voice which was as smooth and thick as crude oil, now a trace of excitement made it slightly hoarse. His face had changed, he was looking at Collins with what would have been a warm smile if it had not been for those opaque black eyes.

"He's a T. B.," Collins said. "He came here a year or so ago, they tell me. He's been out in the hills the last few months. He brought this in last week and said it was a conservative sample. And the vein's three feet wide."

"Where is it?" Kent edged his chair closer as he asked the question, and for the moment Collins had a disquieting feeling. It was as if that sudden movement held a threat for him. He swallowed hard before he answered.

"Search me. He didn't say." And then he shrugged his shoulders. "He's in town now. He's due in half an hour at my office for the report. He don't know anything about ore——"

"I see." The unctuousness had returned to Kent's voice. "I'm glad you came, Collins."

"I've left another blank filled out for him," Collins went on, "in case you want to go on with this, of course. It says just a trace of gold."

"Of course. In case I want to go on with this—well, now," Kent locked his thin fingers together before his bulging waistline. "It would be——"

"Fifty-fifty," Collins said. "And I ought to be in the office when he shows up." While he was speaking he was conscious of those dull black eyes regarding him. His mind went back to prison days. The gossip of the yard had left few secrets concerning the more prominent inmates. There was a story of the intrigue lying behind the crime that had resulted in Kent's disbarment and his sentence, something about a conspiracy whose ugly details had included an unsolved murder. Collins stirred uneasily in his chair.

"Go back," Kent said, "and give him that phony report. This evening come, see me here. We'll work out the details."

Collins started to speak, but Kent interrupted smoothly, "Fifty-fifty. That's okay with me." He rose and followed his caller to the outer office.

The afternoon sunlight was throwing dense black shadows from the wooden building fronts across the sidewalks, leaving vivid patches between them where every little object stood out uncompromisingly. The headframe on the Golconda Copper company's shaft loomed like a gigantic gallows on the rocky hillside, a dense plume of dark smoke from the tall stack of the smelter down on the flat blotted out a segment of the cloudless sky.

Collins was not conscious of any of these things, his thoughts were roving in a kinder landscape where a man with money could spend his days at ease. His dream was still abiding with him some twenty minutes later when the outer door of his office opened. He pulled his mind to the business in hand.

"Howdy, Dillon," he nodded carelessly. "Going back to your claims today?"

The visitor stood within the doorway, a slender man, burned by the desert sun until his skin was like old leather. There was a lack of color in his lips and his eyes were just a little overbright, and when he spoke his voice held the rasping thinness which betrays corroded lungs. He was looking at the top of Collins' desk where several assay reports lay in a little pile.

"Well," Dillon was smiling and his eyes returned to Collins, his gaunt face was filled with eagerness. "What does she show?" He came over to the desk.

"Let me see. There were a dozen in today's run. And yours?" Collins made a pretense of striving toward remembrance. Out of the corner of his eye he saw the other shifting his feet uneasily. He picked up the topmost slip, opened it, and glanced at it. Then, as he handed it to Dillon, he shrugged his shoulders. "You know that rock of yours had me fooled. I couldn't believe the result myself and I ran another sample to confirm it."

Dillon's hand was shaking visibly when he took the blue paper. He read it, he held it closer, his colorless lips parted, and his mouth hung open. It was some moments before he spoke.

"My God!" He struggled with himself. "You're sure?"

"Dead sure," Collins replied. "A trace of silver, a trace of gold. That's all. Funny how that stuff showed so much mineralization."

"Funny!" Dillon cried. "Well, maybe. To you." His eyes were glowing, his lips set tightly.

TURKEY, CHICKEN, DUCK, OR A HAM; PLAN MENU NOW

Mary Meade Has Advice on Holiday Meals.

Last call for Thanksgiving dinner—now is the time to plan that menu.

If you're tired of serving the traditional bird, you might plan a menu around roast duck, chicken or ham. But serve it with all the traditional trimmings brought up to date.

Among the fixin's may be oyster bisque, chestnut stuffing, baked onions, sweet potatoes with pineapple, cranberry and pineapple ring mold, Thanksgiving date pudding and other goodies.

Holiday Book Solves Problem.

Don't worry about menus and recipes; just get a copy of Mary Meade's holiday cook book. She has five Thanksgiving menus from elaborate to simple and varying in cost. And there are recipes for all the extras. Directions for roasting turkey and duck and for baking ham in cider are given.

The booklet "Holidays and Holiday Meals," which gives suitable menu suggestions and recipes for all the important holidays of the year, including Christmas and New Year's, is yours for 20 cents. Get it at the Tribune Public Service offices, 1 South Dearborn street, and in the Tribune Tower lobby. Or send 23 cents in stamps for it and it will be mailed to you promptly. Mail requests should be addressed to Mary Meade.

MARY MEADE'S 99 BREAD RECIPES IN BOOKLET FORM

It's Off the Press Just in Time for Holidays.

BY RUTH ELLEN LOVRIEN.

What housewife doesn't love to bake fluffy, golden biscuits, light, crisp crusted yeast rolls, an occasional loaf of quickbread or yeast bread? What woman doesn't beam with pride when her supper guests exclaim about the butterhorns or eat the pan rolls down to the last one on the plate?

Most women agree that homemade bread and rolls are more fun than any other kind of cooking, bring more satisfaction to the cook and more pleasure to the family. Skill is easily acquired with complete and accurate recipes.

All of this simply leads up to an announcement which this department has been looking forward to making for several months now. This is it: Mary Meade's new booklet, "Better Homemade Breads and Rolls," is off the press!

Yeast Breads and Rolls.

Half the recipes are for yeast breads and biscuits, half for the quick kind which even small youngsters can learn to make.

Here are some of the recipes for yeast breads and rolls:

Buns, butterhorn rolls, buttermilk rolls, butterscotch rolls, bread sticks, French brioche, German apple cake, Bohemian kolacky, cinnamon rolls, and cinnamon loaf, English muffins, form cake, hot cross buns, run buns, refrigerator rolls [2 kinds], raised orange muffins, rye bread and biscuits, white bread, whole wheat bread and rolls, Swedish tea ring, Vienna rolls [hard crusted]. These aren't all. There are 40 recipes in this section.

There are recipes for 59 quickbreads. They include, among others, several kinds of dumplings, baking powder biscuits and their variations, such as cheese biscuits, tomato biscuits, quick pecan rolls, quick orange rolls and the like, loaf breads such as banana, butterscotch and nut, quick coffee cakes including a luscious filled blueberry one. There are plain and fruity muffins, plain and fancy pancakes and waffles, crêpes Suzette, cherry rolls, popovers, Scotch scones, shortcakes, cornbreads, brown bread, tortillas, Yorkshire pudding. And there are others.

This book contains all the recipes which a breadbaker could wish for, and all the recipes are easy to follw. Best of all, they have all been thoroly tested. Many of them are favorites, used frequently in the homes of Tribune cooking staff members.

Many Holiday Specials.

Here are a few recipes recommended to Thanksgiving cooks: Crescent rolls made with rich refrigerator dough [these take little time on the morning of the dinner]; orange rolls, raised orange muffins, whole wheat rolls, pineapple muffins, savory biscuits, cornbread. All are included in the booklet.

How can you get "Better Homemade Breads and Rolls?" You can get it by mail for 23 cents, or by picking it up in person at one of the Tribune public service offices, 1 South Dearborn street or Tribune Tower lobby, for 20 cents. Address mail requests to Mary Meade, in care of THE TRIBUNE.

Shrewdness All It Takes to Win Family to Spinach

Unwilling members of your family may yet be won over to spinach if it's prepared in this special way. Tart lemon juice does the trick.

SPINACH IN LEMON DRESSING.

[Serve four to six.]

2 pounds spinach
1 teaspoon salt
¼ cup salad oil
2 Tablespoons lemon juice

Rinse spinach in several waters. Place in kettle without water and sprinkle with salt, and salad oil. Cook over very low heat until wilted down and just tender, 3 to 8 minutes. Stir and lift during cooking. Drain, add lemon juice and serve.

A Sample from Mary Meade

Want to know how to make these fruity buns? And how to make all kinds of delicious yeast breads and rolls, and quickbreads, too? Then send for Mary Meade's just off the press book, "Better Homemade Breads and Rolls." Price, 23 cents. Address Mary Meade, Chicago Tribune.

Orange Thanksgiving Salad

As colorful as the harvest season is this red and orange Thanksgiving salad. Use sliced oranges, apples, Bermuda onions, dates stuffed with creamed cheese and pistachio nuts, or any other seasonal fruits. Serve with mayonnaise.

TONGUE, KIDNEY—THEY'RE TIDBITS AMONG MEATS

2 Recipes End Mystery of How to Cook Them.

"Meat on the table" too often means the same old standbys, too seldom includes such tasty tidbits as sweetbreads, kidney and tongue. Perhaps these sundries are avoided because of a lack of knowledge regarding their preparation. Here are two interesting recipes for kidney and tongue.

SPICED TONGUE.

Vinegar
Juice of 1 lemon
2 medium onions, sliced
6 or 8 whole cloves
1 teaspoon ground cinnamon
6 whole peppers
3 tablespoon sugar
¼ cup raisins
3 tablespoons flour

Soak tongue in vinegar for 24 hours. Drain and cover with hot water. Add lemon juice, onion, and seasonings. Simmer until tender, 3 to 4 hours. Brown the sugar in a skillet and add 1½ cups of the strained liquid in which the tongue was cooked. Add raisins and flour mixed to a smooth paste with a little cold water. Cook this sauce until thickened. Add sliced tongue and serve.

KIDNEYS IN CREOLE SAUCE.

[Serves 4 to 6.]

1 beef kidney or 6 lamb kidneys
Flour
Bacon drippings
2 small onions, chopped
1 green pepper, chopped
1 cup tomato juice
Salt and pepper
1 bay leaf
1 tablespoon flour
Toast points

Trim kidneys and cut into half inch slices. Dredge with flour and brown in hot fat or bacon drippings. Add onions, green pepper, tomato juice, and seasonings. Cover closely and simmer for about half an hour. Add a little cold water to flour and mix to a smooth paste. Add to hot mixture, stirring constantly. Cook until thickened. Serve on toast points.

USE APPLES FOR SMOOTH CREAMY DESSERT FILLING

This dessert has everything that makes a dessert good—a crispy crumb crust, a smooth creamy filling—and it's made with apples.

APPLE CRUMB TORTE.

[Serves 10 to 12.]

8 apples, peeled and sliced
1½ cups sugar
2 tablespoons butter
½ cup water
4 eggs, slightly beaten
1 teaspoon vanilla
1⅔ cups evaporated milk
½ teaspoon salt
Grated rind of ½ lemon
1½ dozen zwieback
1-3 cup sugar
1-3 cup butter
1 teaspoon cinnamon
Whipped cream

Cook apples in saucepan with one cup of sugar, the butter and the water. When tender add the milk, slightly beaten eggs, and remaining one-half cup sugar mixed together. Cook slowly in top of double boiler until the consistency of custard. Stir constantly. Add flavoring, salt, and lemon rind. Crush zweiback and mix with the 1-3 cup sugar, the butter, and cinnamon. Press half the mixture into the bottom of a well-buttered nine inch spring form. Add apple custard and cover with remaining crumb mixture. Bake in a moderately slow [325 degrees] oven for 45 minutes. Cool and chill. Garnish with whipped cream.

PUT A PUNCH IN YOUR MEALS WITH THIS HOT SPICED GRAPE JUICE

Hot, spicy punch wins favor in these nippy days. Spicing improves grape juice and it tastes as good hot as cold.

Hot Spiced Grape Juice.

1 quart water
½ cup sugar
6 whole cloves
1 inch stick cinnamon
1 teaspoon grated lemon rind
2 cups grape juice
2 tablespoons lemon juice
1 lemon sliced

Boil water, sugar, spices, and lemon rind together for 5 minutes. Remove from heat, add grape juice and lemon juice. Strain and serve at once. Garnish with lemon slices.

Beefsteak Replaces Beans as Traditional Army Food

Boston, Mass., Nov. 16 (AP).—The army traditionally has had beans for mess, but now it is to be beefsteak instead. The quartermaster corps says the energy units in a truckload of beef steak are equal to two truck loads of beans.

School Series Given 'Lucia' by Able Cast

BY CECIL SMITH.

Last night's performance of Donizetti's "Lucia di Lammermoor," given by a cast of established Chicago City Opera singers, served to bring the Thursday evening board of education opera series back to a position of dignity, after the fiasco of a week ago.

At the close of the first part of the mad scene and again at the end of the scene Hilde Reggiani received enthusiastic applause for her brilliant, large high F's. So far as its natural qualities are concerned, hers is an ideal voice for the rôle of Lucia. Her low voice is ample in size, the brittle metallic quality of her middle voice makes the necessary dramatic accents feasible, and her high voice encompasses easily all the extremes of the score.

She still sorely lacks the basic vocal discipline, however, that might turn her Lucia into a distinctive accomplishment. Her tone production is rocky and unreliable, and her florid singing is unclean and often inaccurate in pitch.

Armand Tokatyan, Carlo Morelli, Virgilio Lazzari, Giuseppe Cavadore, and Anthony Marlowe rounded out a competent cast. Monna Van made her debut as Alice. Leo Kopp conducted with vitality.

Looking at Hollywood
By Ed Sullivan

The Mirror.

Hollywood, Cal., Nov. 16.—British actors Basil Rathbone and Nigel Bruce looking a trifle startled as they are introduced to William Shakespeare, the football player. . . . "Well," wells Bruce, "I liked your Hamlet, old man." . . . "Ignore him," advises Rathbone, "he chatters like a magpie."

Fred Astaire and his wife playing golf at Bel-Air in the gloaming. . . . Tyrone Power testing out a new tennis racket to use against Gary Cooper in their home-and-home series.

Invitations from Lloyd Bacon to the wedding of June Schumann-Heink and E. E. Decker. . . . They'll be wed at Bacon's home. . . . She is the ex-frau of Schumann-Heink's son. . . . That good looking boy with Sally Eilers is her brother, Buddy.

The town very much interested in Fanny Hurst's suit against Warners, because of its precedent quality. . . . Miss Hurst sold "Four Daughters" to that studio for a flat sum of $50,000. . . . Since then, the studio has made two sequels—"Four Wives" and "Daughters Courageous."

It is Miss Hurst's contention that inasmuch as the original characters were her creations, she should be paid for each of the sequels, in which the characters are continued.

Hereafter, you can bet that studios will stipulate contracturally that characters in a story belong to the buyer, just as authors will stipulate that characters in a story are only purchased for ONE flicker.

Ran into Lupe Velez a few minutes back. . . . "Dar-r-ling," she jittered, "I read that line in your column that I was going to get married. I like heem very much, but dar-r-ling, Lupe is never going to get married again, never. I bet any one $500 that Lupe won't ever try it again."

Jack Oakie's golf clubs, the woods, have his name stamped on them, and I asked him why this oddity. . . . "Willie Hunter, the professional at Riviera, did it," explained Oakie. "Hunter said, that maybe an actor would keep his head down if he had 'billing' on his clubs." . . . In aggravated cases Hunter adds the actor's picture to the clubhead.

Judy Garland eyeing a trip to New York before her next flicker. . . . To avoid the critics' heckling that "Northwest Passage" on the screen is only the story of Roger's Rangers, M.-G.-M. will indicate on the screen that the picture only is Book 1.

Irene Dunne back in town. . . . Raves about Marlene Dietrich's performance in "Destry Rides Again" from the sneak-previews. . . . Even Director George Marshall is pleased with it and when a director is pleased with a flicker, that is news.

Mrs. Arthur Murray scolding husband because she didn't like the way he did the Shag with her. . . . "That's fine," scoffs Groucho Marx. "Your husband made millions of dollars teaching the country how to dance, and you're going to make trouble for him."

THRU THE LOOKING GLASS

The women who cling unashamed to the makeups keyed to blue reds—and their number seems to be legion—will be mad about the two "amethyst" makeups that are important members of a family of exquisite makeups built around jewel tones.

One, called "brilliant amethyst" has rouge and lipstick in warm, rich reds with just a suggestion of the mauve undertone. But for the daring, there is another pair called "royal" that are frankly royal purple. We adore them—but we warn you that they're daring!

With each of these makeups there is a face powder that does the right things for your complexion tone when it is accented with shades such as these. There is also a heavenly amethyst eye shadow.

We know that this is a season in which you're supposed to look either pretty pretty or very natural. But some of the smartest women in town are deciding not to do what every one else is doing; they're looking distinctive instead. And some of the gorgeous brunettes, with beautiful complexions and a flair for wearing clothes, are unbelievably stunning in the makeup that's frankly amethyst.

Not every woman can wear them—but that makes them all the better. You'll seldom meet your twin on the street.

Busoni Work Ignores Usual Music Forms

BY EDWARD BARRY.

Egon Petri, Dutch pianist, and the Chicago Symphony orchestra, Frederick Stock conducting, presented in Orchestra hall last night a first local performance of Ferruccio Busoni's Concerto for piano and orchestra. The work's vastness of scale is indicated by the fact that it took an hour and 10 minutes to perform, and that an intermission was granted between the third and fourth movements.

Altho the concerto is a product of Busoni's middle life [it was finished in 1904, when he was 38], there are apparent in it already both the structural originality and the philosophic profundity which were to take him farther and farther away from the everyday musical world of posturing virtuosi and politely applauding audiences.

The concerto treats the conventional form ruthlessly. It uses the piano not as a virtuoso instrument in its own right but as an integral part of the whole color scheme. It expands the usual three-movement form to five. It even introduces a male chorus toward the end.

Altho it would be silly to pretend that the full meaning of such a work is apparent upon first hearing, still one can get good glimmerings here and there of what the composer was trying to convey. Certainly this is "cosmos conscious" music. Its theme is nothing less than the nature of the world and of man.

Busoni reveals some of the concerto's content in the words he used for the final chorus, where the work is summed up and brought to a climax. That he held fast to the idea of intelligence and design behind the mystery of being, and that he regarded man as something more than a skin disease on the surface of the earth is plainly indicated in this affirmative, somberly joyful hymn.

Last night's performance was massive and sonorous and moved with a slow dignity. This describes its general character, at least. The two rapid movements which fit so beautifully into both the formal scheme and the philosophic scheme of the concerto [the two tend to become one, of course] were done with a facility and a lightness of touch which did justice to their gayety. For the concerto is not all solemn any more than man and his destiny are all solemn. All of these things verge, if ever so slightly, upon laughter.

The program held only one other item—the overture to Wagner's "The Flying Dutchman." This was not, as had been suggested, a reference to Mr. Petri himself.

Good Morning!

Some 16 years before the signing of the Declaration of Independence the incident upon which this picture is founded is said to have occurred.

In the Pennsylvania area, hot conflict waged between Redcoats and settlers re the matter of distributing rum and English made firearms to the Indians.

While not nearly so good as "Stage Coach," which co-starred Claire Trevor and John Wayne, "Allegheny Uprising" has plenty of punch and go. There's something doing every minute and usually Claire and John are right in the middle of it.

Miss Trevor plays the daughter of a droll old fellow—MacDougle—side kick of Jim's, who runs a saloon. . . . She's been just nuts about Smith since she was a little girl and is hell bent on being involved in all which concerns him. Also she means to marry him. With this decision Jim takes issue, but to no avail. . . . The child is a lovable pain in the neck, and no mistake.

Does she get her man?

What do you think?

I considered Miss Trevor just a bit too mature for her rôle and found young Mr. Wayne inclined toward woodenness. The best work is done by that always smooth George Sanders as the British captain, and by Wilfred Lawson as MacDougle.

The action isn't any too convincing—but should go over with not too sophisticated adolescents.

Community Fund Near Two Million as Third Week of Drive Ends

The 1939 Community fund campaign closed its third week of solicitation yesterday with contributions slightly less than two million dollars. The report was made at the noon meeting of the voluntary workers at the Hotel Sherman.

A. H. Mellinger, general chairman, and Mark Brown, industrial chairman, both expressed gratitude for the excellent coöperation of industry and employé groups. "We are midstream," Mellinger said, "and going strong, but we must not start coasting if we are to reach our goal of $3,611,000."

For the ninth year, the mail order group has exceeded its quota of $180,000, Chairman Gordon Hattersley reported. The alcoholic beverage group, under the chairmanship of Harry Grossman, also announced it has exceeded its quota of $7,500.

Prebreakfast Tale About "The Man Who Came to Dinner."

Discussion of the spectacular New York success, The Man Who Came to Dinner, with Monty Woolley playing the lead, elicited from John R. Winterbotham, a close friend of Woolley's since Yale undergraduate days, the best story yet heard about him. Mr. Winterbotham roomed at Yale with a lad named Ted Booth and both were being run for the same fraternity. Monty Woolley was Booth's sponsor. Perhaps the most difficult of the demands made upon Booth by Woolley during this period was the necessity for his appearance before Mr. Woolley every morning at 7 o'clock to wake him with a bit of original verse, a proffered carnation in his hand. This exquisite cruelty went on morning after morning, and Booth was finally reduced to the composition of a quatrain which lingers in his roommates' memory:

To greet you with this Lawson pink
Is a great privilege, I think,
And I appreciate it fully.
Good morrow to you, Mr. Woolley.

Yegg's Egg.

Revised Version.

(As brought home from school by the children of Mr. and Mrs. J. Walker Black of Evanston.)

"Thirty days hath September,
April, June, and November.
All the rest nave thirty-one
Unless we hear from Washington."

Lecturer's Slip.

Countess Alexandre Tolstoi, lecturing at North Park college the other evening on her work with her late famous father, described his untiring efforts to make his work as perfect as possible and the many corrections and revisions of his manuscripts. In the case of Resurrection, his last novel, he decided to make some changes in the galley proofs on the very eve of publication, with the result that publication was again held up, in spite of the telegrams and letters pouring in from many countries demanding the book.

"And so the Resurrection had to be postponed in all countries," Countess Tolstoi said. And looked astonished when the audience burst out laughing.

Lewis Carroll-like Conversation.

Mrs. Walter B. Wolf was talking over the telephone and her daughter, Mrs. Walter Field McLallen, and another young woman exchanged puzzled glances as they heard the conversation.

"How are your Clara Butts?" Mrs. Wolf was saying. Then: "O, but I like her better with the Rev. Ewbank. . . . And how are the Giants?"

Mrs. McLallen was looking alarmed by this time.

"Yes," Mrs. Wolf continued, "I want them all for bedding. Well, all right, if you're sure the Innocents are better for bedding you can send those. . . . Yes, they all go to the country. . . ."

* * *

If you consult the bulb catalog you will find that Clara Butts and Rev. Ewbank are tulip varieties and Giants and Innocents hyacinths. Mrs. Wolf was doing her annual ordering of flower bulbs for her Winnetka garden.

High School Dance Centers Report Larger Attendance

Dr. William H. Johnson, superintendent of schools, yesterday reported an attendance increase of more than 25 per cent over last year at the 18 high school dance centers. The Lane Technical High school had the largest increase—the attendance this year being 1,436, as compared to 904 in 1938. The dances are held on Friday nights for young people between 16 and 25 years.

Miss Sauer to Become Bride of R. W. Ickes

BY JUDITH CASS.

ROMANTIC news of wide interest is contained in the announcement from Dr. and Mrs. Louis Wendlin Sauer of the engagement of their daughter, Miralotte Lucia, to Raymond Wilmarth Ickes, son of Harold L. Ickes, secretary of the interior, and the late Anna Wilmarth Ickes.

The marriage of Miss Sauer and Mr. Ickes will take place on Saturday evening, Dec. 16, at the home of Dr. and Mrs. Sauer in Winnetka. The Rev. Samuel D. Harkness, pastor of Winnetka's Congregational church, will read the service, and a reception will follow for the immediate families.

The bridegroom's father and stepmother will come from Washington for the wedding. The senior Mr. Ickes is to be best man. Mrs. Harold S. Marks will be the matron of honor.

Miss Sauer attended the Roycemore school in Evanston and is a graduate of Northwestern university. Mr. Ickes is a graduate of the University of Chicago. He and his bride will live in New York, where he is engaged in business. The Ickes family formerly lived in Hubbard Woods.

Beatrice Kirk Cuthbert Weds British Officer.

Mrs. Beatrice Kirk Cuthbert and Capt. Norman Stuart Merrett were married at noon yesterday in the old Norman church that stands on the grounds of his parents' estate near Cardiff, Wales. The bridegroom's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Merrett, gave a breakfast at home following the ceremony. Capt. Merrett and his bride then left for a honeymoon in London.

Their London stay will be a brief one, for Capt. Merrett has leave from the royal air force only until next Wednesday. After that date he and his bride will be at home for the next few months at Odiham, in Hampshire, the air force headquarters. Mrs. Merrett, a daughter of Mrs. Hambleton Kirk of Lake Forest and Walter R. Kirk of Chicago, sailed for England about two weeks ago to join her fiancé. She lived in London when she was married to Capt. C. Ross Cuthbert.

Miss Anne Phelps is arriving tomorrow from Minneapolis to spend a week with her fiancé, Otho S. A. Sprague, and his parents, Col. and Mrs. Albert A. Sprague. Col. and Mrs. Sprague are planning a small tea and one or two other small parties for their son's fiancée.

Arts Club to See Dancers from Bali.

The first of a series of evening parties at the Arts club will be the appearance tonight of Devi-Dja and her company of 30 native dancers of Bali and Java. The Charles B. Goodspeeds, the William B. Hales, the Milo Winters, the Walter S. Carrs, the Thomas Fishers, Robert Allerton, the Charles H. Swifts, the Silas Strawns, and John Palmer are among those who have made reservations for dinner at 7 o'clock before the program.

The performance will be the dancing troupe's first in Chicago. The artists will appear tomorrow afternoon and night and Sunday afternoon at the Civic theater. Tomorrow night's performance will be for the benefit of the Chicago Lighthouse for the Blind.

The Arts club has cards out to a lecture on "Present Tendencies in American Art" at 11:30 o'clock next Wednesday morning. George Biddle will be the lecturer.

Prof. MacNair to Speak on Trip to China.

Harley F. MacNair, professor of far eastern history and institutions at the University of Chicago, will be the speaker at a meeting of the Chicago Council on Foreign Relations today in the Grand ballroom of the Palmer House. Prof. MacNair recently returned from a 13 months' trip to China and Japan, during which he traveled also in Inner Mongolia and Manchuria. He will speak on "China Versus Japan."

Several post-debutantes will assist Mrs. John Paul Welling as hostess at the Cliff Dwellers at tea following the Chicago Symphony orchestra concert today. They are Miss Mary Seymour Adams, Miss Pauline Palmer, Miss Marie Swift, and Miss Mary Paul Welling.

Miss Margalo Gilmore, who is playing in "No Time for Comedy," will be the especial guest at the College club this afternoon following the concert.

Miss Margarita Weaver of the Chicago Historical society will give a short talk at the Cordon at tea time today. An exhibition of paintings by Marie E. Blanke will go on view today in the Cordon's galleries.

World Famous Art Show Will Open Tonight

Record throng attends annual reception of Art institute. Details page 26.

BY ELEANOR JEWETT.

No more beautiful exhibit than that of the Italian masterpieces ever has hung at the Chicago Art institute. The show opens tonight with a formal reception. It will be open to the public tomorrow, to continue thru Jan. 9.

The paintings and sculpture are those that created a sensation at the San Francisco World's Fair. They are among the finest and the best known treasures of the art world. There is scarcely a person who does not know, for instance, of Botticelli's "Birth of Venus" and the beautiful Raphael "Madonna of the Chair."

The exhibition has been gloriously installed. The five galleries to the right of the east wing on the second floor have been stripped of the Inness collection and the various other pictures belonging to the museum's permanent collection. They have been redecorated in a manner that resembles 16th century damask, or brocade, as the case may be, and hung with the Italian works. The installation is a beautiful achievement. However, the paintings and sculpture themselves are the thing.

In the first gallery the tender and gracious sculpture in marble by Michelangelo faces the visitor. It is the "Madonna and Child" with a shy little St. John in the background, half hidden by Mary. To the left is the Luini "Body of St. Catherine Borne by Angels to Sinai," a graceful composition.

Across the gallery Andrea Della Robbia's "Annunciation," a group in glazed terra cotta, has been installed. God looks down from his heaven, with a dove to soften His loneliness, on the angel He has sent to Mary to tell her of the coming of a Son. This is a beautiful group, touching, simple, and exquisite.

In the second room we again find three works of supreme importance, Raphael's "Madonna of the Chair" flanked by Masaccio's "Crucifixion" on one wall and the "Madonna and Child with St. John and St. Catherine" by Giovanni Bellini [with its beautiful nostalgic background that sends thrilling notes such as "Umbrian Hills" running like music thru one's mind] on the opposite wall.

The third room has a fascinating background of green and holds several smaller canvases, the exquisite "Madonna and Child" by Gentileschi, with colors as rich and warm as if it had been painted yesterday, and Cavallino's serene "St. Cecelia" as foil to the more worldly portraits across the room by Bronzino and Parmigianio. The "David" of Varrichio stands, too, in this room.

The next gallery reveals three masterpieces, one "The Birth of Venus" by Botticelli among the best known pictures in the world. It is in perfect condition and a most enchanting painting. The dignified "Portrait of Pope Paul III." by Titian is another canvas of moment in this gallery.

The fifth room has a delightful background of gray and rose against which the pristine beauty of the exquisite little Fra Angelico, his "Christening of St. John," stands out as one of the most flawless and perfect gems of primitive painting we have ever seen. It is simple, sincere, and beautiful in detail.

The "Madonna and Child" by Correggio is another perfect canvas; in color, composition, feeling, in the grace of the Virgin and the human beauty of the baby, religious art finds its deepest, most human expression.

Whatever may be the calls on your time between now and Jan. 9 find a few minutes to go in to this exhibition. It is a beautiful and momentous exhibit. Young and old should see it.

Pot Holders Made in Crochet

BY ELLEN BRUCE.

Crocheted pot holders may be had in as many shapes and sizes as there are stitches from which they may be created. These two pot holders add a distinct touch to the kitchen, the one in ecru with a Mexican color scheme to add cheer, and the other in that sunny color scheme of white and yellow. Both may be made in less than a half hour.

For instructions in crocheting the pot holders, No. X-383, send 10 cents in stamps or coin to the Needlework Bureau, Chicago Tribune, 220 5th avenue, New York City.

Lambeth Conference for Next July Delayed by War

New York, Nov. 16 (AP).—Announcement of postponement of the Lambeth conference of Episcopal and Anglican bishops was received today by Presiding Bishop Henry St. George Tucker of the Episcopal church. The notification, from the archbishop of Canterbury, said the conference was put off owing to the outbreak of war. The meeting, held every two years, had been scheduled for July and August, 1940, at Lambeth palace, England.

Record Throng Jams Institute at Annual Party

BY INDIA MOFFETT.

"I've been going to these receptions for years, not to see the pictures but to see the tea tables," said a white-haired woman as she got her coat from the checkroom in the Art institute yesterday afternoon. "But," she added, "today I couldn't even get near the tables, so I guess I won't ever come to another reception."

Probably there were many who felt the same way, for any one who arrived at 3 o'clock or later had to push her way thru any one of the five galleries in which tea was being served to obtain even a glimpse of the table decorations. Three was the time stated on the invitations to the 61st annual reception as the opening hour of the party, but there were hundreds there at 2. They watched the tables being arranged and when there were so many observing Mrs. Charles S. Dewey and Mrs. Alice H. Patterson work on the table in gallery 45 that the newcomers could not see, they pulled up benches and stood on them.

Attendance of 6,239 Sets Institute Record.

Attendance was 6,239, setting a record for similar affairs of the institute. There were a few men in evidence, but they were mostly officials of the institute, including the president, Potter Palmer. Mr. Palmer previewed the table copied after the one at the wedding reception of his aunt, Ida Marie Honoré, and Frederick Dent Grant, in October, 1874. This table was arranged by the Antiquarian society and the Fortnightly club from a full page description of the wedding in THE TRIBUNE. A photostat of the page was on view in the gallery.

This table was the oldest of the five that illustrated historical decorations in the same manner that the exhibition that was being opened summed up the last fifty years of American painting and sculpture. It was a beautiful and an interesting table, beautiful because two mammoth wedding cakes and lovely flowers always are things of beauty, and interesting because it was a replica of an event of significance in Chicago's social history, the wedding of an Honoré, whose sister was the first Mrs. Potter Palmer, and the son of the then President of the United States, Ulysses S. Grant.

Elaborate Menu at 1874 Wedding

Yesterday's cakes were made by one of the city's oldest catering firms. Mrs. Dewey, who supervised the baking of the cakes, sent one to Mrs. Potter Palmer after the party, and the other was given to the students of the institute.

Only cookies and tea and coffee are served at the receptions. Very different from the elaborate refreshments served at the Honoré-Grant reception. That menu included stewed terrapin, escalloped oysters, patties of sweetbreads, of turkey and of oysters, fillets of snipe in paper cases, chicken and lobster salads, boned quail in jelly form, six kinds of ice creams and ices, three sorts of glacés, three meringues, three wine jellies, grapes, pears, bananas, oranges, fruit salad, tea, coffee, King, Private Cunce and frappé.

The bride's and groom's cakes were exactly alike, tall, many tiered white confections, each topped by a white eagle and ornamented with a tiny silk American flag and a white satin flag bearing the date.

In the center of the table was a two foot high glass stand holding white flowers, carnations, tuberoses, jasmine, and bridal roses, the same flowers that were used in wreaths that encircled the bases of the cakes. Four pyramids of white button pompoms completed the decorations. Mrs. Robert Hall McCormick, Mrs. Potter Palmer, and her son's wife, Mrs. Potter Palmer III., Mrs. Frank Hibbard, Mrs. Phillip Miller, Mrs. Alfred Hamill, Mrs. Max Epstein, Mrs. Charles H. Worcester, Mrs. James W. Thorne, Mrs. John C. Pitcher, Mrs. Walter B. Smith, and Mrs. Edwin W. Ryerson were among the women pouring and serving at this table. The Allerton and Antiquarian silver services were used.

Restrained Feeling at Modern Table.

We skipped 65 years after leaving gallery 45, for the next table we visited was the modern one, designed by Mrs. Howard W. Fenton and presided over by members of the Contemporary, Friday, and Arts clubs. It was stunning: restrained and with an atmosphere of calm emanating from it that was pleasant. The women behind the ropes and those on the outside were anything but calm, however, for there were not nearly enough servers to take care of those who were requesting tea and coffee.

The table was a marbleized one in shades of gold, with a sculpture of a woman and a dog by Wally Wieselthier as the motif of the decorative scheme. The terracotta and cream sculpture was at one end and balancing it at the other was a flower arrangement in autumn shades. A modern mirror in the center had bunches of wooden grapes and oak leaves on it. The silver and black enamel candlesticks held natural color candles.

Pink satin ribbons and bows, tall silver candlesticks with lace shades, and pink roses in a high silver vase ornamented the table of the '90s, which was covered with a long heavy linen and lace cloth. Members of the Municipal Art league, the Chicago Woman's club, and the Art institute alumni were in charge of it. Mrs. Averill Conwell and Mrs. Albert Pohlman planned the decorations. Mrs. Pike Goes loaned the cloth, which was made in Ireland 40 years ago, and Mrs. John W. Gary loaned the candleshades.

Gold and Silver at 1900 Tea Table.

The magnificent gold service belonging to the Marshall Field collection of the institute and the silver one belonging to the Buckingham exhibit were in use at the table at which members of the Arché club and the Musicians' Club for Women were hostesses. Mrs. Carl Victor Wisner, Mrs. LeRoy John Zorn, Mrs. Edward Heinz Jr., Mrs. Dwight C. Orcutt, Mrs. Almada Biery Jones, and Miss Maurine Parzybok were in charge. The white damask cloth, tall silver vases holding pink carnations, and pink candles in silver sticks were in the style of the 1900s.

Members of the Chicago Drama league and the Renaissance presided at a table decorated in the fashion of the '20s. A long cloth of Italian punchwork and filet lace covered the table on which were a big tray and four candlesticks of aquamarine glass.

Bunches of green grapes were on the tray and rising from its center was a tall, slender vase holding pink carnations and roses and white roses and sweet peas. The candles were pink. Mrs. Richard Cooper Jr., Miss Elizabeth Browning, Mrs. Robert C. Griffin, Mrs. B. P. Roetter, Mrs. John R. Lend, and Mrs. F. P. O'Hara were hostesses there.

WINNIE WINKLE, THE BREADWINNER: Calm Before the Storm

According to CULBERTSON

[Copyright: 1939: By Ely Culbertson.]

"Dear Mr. Culbertson: The following phenomenal hand occurred last evening. In an inspired moment South had the thrill of executing a quintuple grand coup, to make a redoubled vulnerable grand slam.

"The bidding:

East	South	West	North
Pass	Pass	1 spade	2 spades
Pass	3 hearts	Pass	4 clubs
Pass	5 hearts	Pass	7 hearts
Double [?]	Redouble	Pass	Pass
Pass

"The question mark next to East's double expresses my opinion of his judgment. South, when he saw the dummy, figured that the double could not have been based on anything but the guarded queen of hearts, and planned his entire play on that basis. The ace of diamonds won the first trick, declarer dropping the queen from his own hand. A club then was led and ruffed. A heart was returned to the ace and a second club ruffed. Now declarer successively ruffed all of dummy's clubs [East discarding a spade on the fifth round] and when he finally reëntered dummy, South was reduced to the king-jack of hearts over East's queen-ten. Obviously, the lead of a spade now permitted South to make both the king and jack of hearts. I think that you will agree that a quintuple grand coup [South ruffed all five of dummy's clubs] is a rarity, indeed.—D. B., New York."

I certainly do agree that a quintuple grand coup is one of the rarest events in bridge, and the declarer is to be congratulated for his accurate estimate of the situation, as well as for his admirable technique. The shortening of his own trump length process had to be consummated with a keen eye on timing. It goes without saying that East should not have dreamed of doubling the seven heart contract, and thus suggesting that he had the queen twice guarded. On the other hand, I am very glad that I was not sitting in the South seat. I question whether I would have relied so completely on East's double that I would have risked my entire plan of play on the hope, first, that East had the guarded queen and, second, that I could capture it. The quintuple coup plan depended on such perfect distribution in the East-West hands [note that East would have to follow to four rounds of diamonds] that I might well decide that East's double was even sillier than it actually was, and try to drop the heart queen in two leads. I freely admit, however, that if that were my decision, I would have to make a sweeping bow to the actual declarer who held so much keener a view of the situation.

GASOLINE ALLEY—HOLD TIGHT

Flannel Robes Swagger with Gaudy Colors

BY RHEA SEEGER.

It's just good shopping to pick out good looking flannel robes now before the early Christmas frenzy starts. The present supplies are especially tempting, they're designed with the swank and swagger of military great coats and come in eye catching reds, greens, plaids, picture book pastels, trimmed with lots of braid, frogs, with pockets, collar and cuffs also decorated with embroidery.

Amazingly inexpensive models are made of thin but warm flannel, cut with wide full skirts and a good lap-over section in front. The tops fit as smoothly as any evening coat and the lapels, collars and shoulder lines are as precisely tailored as anything seen in years.

The livid red affairs are cooled down with sooty black braid and black frogs crossed over the chest. Others have curlicues of black braid outlining pockets and notched collar. Quaker grey thin flannel robes come with the same braid business, so do lovely deep sapphire blues. The black affair accented with pale pink is another find. And there's a delicate lime green woolen house coat that has yards and yards of glinting gold soutache braid in a panel pattern down the front around the square cut neckline and the cuffs of the short sleeves. Many of these flannel cozies boast zippers but there are a lot that tie with a sash and wide lap-over the front.

Thin Scotch plaid house gowns are bright ideas for any money; they come in models featuring a circular cut wide skirt to accentuate the small waistline and the long fitted sleeves. Another model comes in a good range of flattering colors; early finds for the gift lists! Dark background and white background plaids are plentiful, the white background numbers unusually appealing for the gay cross plaids.

THE STAGE

On Monday night John Barrymore and the "My Dear Children" company celebrate their two hundredth performance at the Selwyn theater. Autographed photographs of the star and his three "daughters" will be presented to the ladies in the audience. Up to the present "My Dear Children" has played to more than 200,000 people, with a total box office gross exceeding $300,000.

De La Salle Alumni Mark Golden Jubilee of School

More than 700 alumni of De La Salle institute, preparatory school directed by the Christian Brothers, met last night at the Terrace Casino of the Morrison hotel to celebrate the golden jubilee of their school. In the crowd were members of every class graduated from the institute since its founding in 1889. Speakers included John E. Dwyer, Martin H. Kennelly, chairman of the Jubilee fund campaign; United States Judge Michael L. Igoe, and James B. McCahey, president of the board of education.

Parents Should Know Answers to Sex Queries

BY GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS.

[Copyright: 1939: News Syndicate Co., Inc.]

The reason sex education is so badly done, or not done at all, is because parents either don't know how to answer or believe that it's a subject children shouldn't know about. Happily those who hold the latter belief grow fewer and fewer.

The letters that I receive asking for help are either eager and forward looking, or else they are frantically written in an emergency. "Bess asked me where babies come from. I didn't know how much to tell her; please send me advice right away, so I will not have to put her off again."

I know that lots of parents don't think the subject important enough to bother with or are too lazy to spend time upon dealing with it. But I know, too, that there are many earnest mothers who do not know where to turn for this information. They know there are a number of books on the subject, but they do not know which ones to select.

For those parents who want to prepare themselves thoroly for the sex education of their children, and who are willing to spend as much time as it would take to read carefully a good novel, I want to recommend "New Patterns In Sex Teaching" by Frances Bruce Strain, published by D. Appleton-Century company of New York, N. Y., price $2.00.

In taste tests conducted by independent investigator

Chicago men and women Taste and Tell which beer they prefer

All-Grain Flavor Wins!

Peter Hand's Holiday Beer and Meister Bräu go fine with the Thanksgiving "feast." We won't add sugars or syrups even to save money. And bottle them with just the carbonation created in the beer—nothing added.

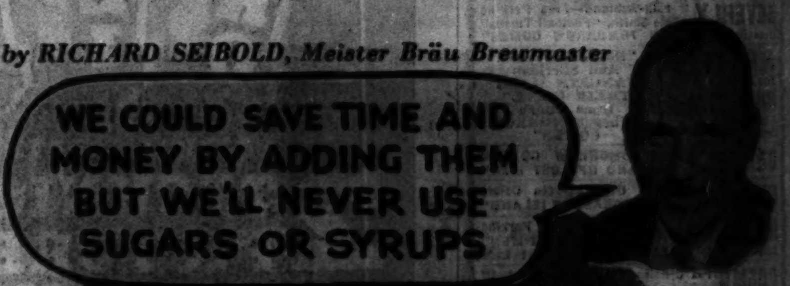
thus justifying our promise to Chicagoans—

"We won't add sugars or syrups to our beer, even to save time and money."

by RICHARD SEIBOLD, Meister Bräu Brewmaster



HERE'S exactly what happened, folks. Chicago newspaper men told me that leading retailers report Meister Bräu outsells any other bottled beer in Chicago by 2 to 1. That sounded awfully good, but to make absolutely sure we asked the Reuben H. Donnelley Corporation to give taste and compare tests.

Donnelley went out and gave these tests to 20 groups of men and women from all parts of town. These people from all walks of life were asked to compare Meister Bräu with other brands, and then vote by secret ballot which bottled beer they liked best.

Here's the verdict! Eight people said they preferred Meister Bräu to each one who said they preferred any other brand.

One reason for this preference is—I won't add sugars or syrups. That would save time—and time means money—but I'll stick with the old-fashioned methods that produce our old-time beer.

And here's my Holiday Special

About this time every year I try to have something extra fine for the Holidays.

I start along in the middle of the summer to brew our Holiday Beer. I use the finest malt and hops I can get. I select what will make a fuller bodied beer with extra fine flavor. Then I add some caramel malt for extra flavor. Now it's ready.

Your retailer has this special treat for you. But his supply is limited. So act at once. Call him now for a case of Peter Hand's Holiday Beer, or a combination case—12 bottles of Holiday Beer and 12 of Meister Bräu. Phone him now—in time.

PETER HAND BREWERY COMPANY, CHICAGO

When North Shore riding enthusiasts were asked to taste and compare brands of bottled beers, they voted Meister Bräu best—38 to 3—at the Forest View Riding Club, A. B. Cameron, proprietor, at Harms Road and Route 58, Morton Grove, Ill. The photo shows Don Richardson and H. N. Miller, riding masters, with companions enjoying Meister Bräu Beer after a canter along one of Chicagoland's most beautiful bridle paths.

HAWKS WHIP RANGERS, 3 TO 2; LOSE SEIBERT

COMEBACK HOPE SPURS IRISH FOR GAME WITH N. U.

Wildcats Entertain Similar Ideas.

BY WILFRID SMITH.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Notre Dame, Ind., Nov. 16.—The Notre Dame-Northwestern football battle which will be decided here Saturday has reached the stage where the rival coaches are resorting to platitudes in public and frantic preparation in the secrecy of the practice field. The coaches, Elmer Layden of Notre Dame and Lynn Waldorf of Northwestern, find themselves unexpectedly in the position of needing a victory Saturday far more than at any other time this season.

In September, Notre Dame never would have voted Iowa its most dangerous opponent. The choice might have gone to any one of the six teams the Irish defeated before losing by a point to the Hawkeyes. And, after winning three conference games, the last a 14 to 7 victory over Minnesota, the Wildcats believed that Purdue would be one more successful step toward the annual game with Notre Dame. Purdue place kicked Northwestern to defeat, 3 to 0.

Irish Morale Needs Pickup.

Now Notre Dame actually needs to whip Northwestern to revive team spirit; certainly one might reasonably suppose that if the Irish take a licking from Northwestern, after losing to Iowa, that Southern California's undefeated juggernaut will roll over Notre Dame in the season's finale.

Northwestern, having recovered from early depression only to lose to the Boilermakers, can insure its year's success by whipping Notre Dame. Such a feat, since Northwestern only has won two games in the series with the Irish, and has lost fourteen and tied two, practically would duplicate the 1935 record of the Wildcats. Few Northwestern alumni will recall that Waldorf's first Big Ten team lost to three consecutive conference opponents, but all remember that Northwestern defeated the Irish that fall.

McGannon Can't Play.

Layden's communique this afternoon stated that all the Irish players, with the exception of Bill McGannon, junior left half back who is out for the season, will be ready to meet Northwestern.

This admission matches the statement Tuesday by Waldorf who believed all the Wildcats were ready, altho Ollie Hahnenstein favored a damaged leg, Paul Soper wasn't completely recovered from the influenza which sent him to bed in Minneapolis two weeks ago, and sundry others had assorted bruises and contusions. Big Alf Bauman, sophomore tackle, will be ready to join in the fight to regain the series' trophy presented in 1931 by the president of the Irish Free State.

Action Is Assured.

There is an intersectional glamor to the Notre Dame-Southern California series and a historical note to the rivalry between the Irish and the Cadets that dates to the playing days of Knute Rockne, but for fierce fighting and clean fun it's Notre Dame against the Western conference. Northwestern gets its chance every year, the others occasionally. Thus, the loss to Iowa is felt more keenly because Iowa is a Big Ten university and last year won only from Chicago.

Northwestern defeated Notre Dame in 1935. The following year, an undefeated Northwestern team, Big Ten champions, was trounced, 26 to 6, in the final game of the year. When Iowa won from Notre Dame last Saturday it was only the fifth game the Irish had lost to a Big Ten university in 20 years.

Watch That Detour.

Quite likely a capacity crowd will attend Saturday. All tickets for the game one week later with Southern California are sold, but 4,000 remained today for Notre Dame-Northwestern. These probably will last until game time Saturday. It should be remembered by all fans that the contest with Northwestern starts at 1:30 Saturday afternoon.

The university urges motorists from Chicago to drive to Niles, Mich., by way of New Buffalo and then to come to the stadium on U. S. 31 because of the detour on U. S. 20 which sends traffic thru La Porte, Ind.

N. U. LINEUP UNCHANGED.

Following a long defensive practice topped off with a forward passing and kicking drill, Coach Lynn Waldorf announced yesterday that Northwestern's starting lineup for Saturday's game with Notre Dame would be the same as started against Purdue last week.

The back field will consist of Ollie Hahnenstein and Floyd Chambers, half backs; Don Clawson, full back, and Dick Richards, quarter back. The line will incude Bob Daly and Ted Grefe, ends; Nick Cutlich and Corne Harris, tackles; Hal Method and Joe Lokane, guards, and John Haman, center.

The Wildcats will spend tonight in a south side hotel and will go to South Bend in a special train tomorrow morning.

Huskers Stop Over

The University of Nebraska's football squad, which meets Pittsburgh Saturday, stopped in the loop yesterday en route to the east. During the stopover, members of the squad and coaching staff, headed by Biff Jones, were guests of Nebraska alumni in Chicago at a luncheon in the Palmer House. After working out in Soldiers' field in the afternoon the squad left last night for Pittsburgh.

Busy Mr. Conn Defends Title Again Tonight

New York, Nov. 16 (AP).—Billy Conn of Pittsburgh lays his light heavyweight title on the line for the second time in four months tomorrow night in a 15 round fight with Gus Lesnevich of Cliffside, N. J., in Madison Square Garden.

Conn won the crown from Melio Bettina in a close Garden fight last July. A month later he invaded the heavyweight ranks against Gus Dorazio in Philadelphia and less than two months ago made his first title defense against Bettina in Pittsburgh. Conn won both contests.

Betting is brisk with Conn a favorite at 5 to 13. Promoter Mike Jacobs of the 20th Century Sporting club predicts a sellout gate of around $50,000.

Fight fans attribute the better than 2 to 1 odds against Lesnevich to the fact that the Jersey contender has been idle since he knocked out Dave Clark of Detroit last July.

Fred Henneberry, Australian middleweight champion, makes his debut in the United States in the eight round semi-final against Georgia Abrams of Washington.

Chandler, Yank Pitcher, Has Ankle Operation

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Nov. 16. — Spurgeon Chandler, pitcher for the world champion Yanks the last three seasons, has undergone an ankle operation, he revealed tonight on long distance phone from his Moultrie, Ga., home. Fearing either crippling infection or incapacitation from callus forming around band wires binding the broken bone in his right foot, Chandler let surgeons probe the ankle and remove the metal.

Crawford, Bruins' Star, Lost for Another Month

TORONTO, Ontario, Nov. 16 (AP).—Johnny Crawford, Boston Bruins' defense man who suffered a chipped bone in his elbow in an exhibition game Nov. 10, will be lost to the team for another month it was learned tonight. Crawford is in a Toronto hospital under the care of Dr. J. W. Rush, Toronto Maple Leafs' physician, who said prospects for a complete recovery are good.

O'Brien Happy to Face Bears; Wants Vindication in Chicago

BY GEORGE STRICKLER.

Davey O'Brien, the biggest little man in football, is being sent to Chicago this week by the Philadelphia Eagles to bolt the door on the Bears' western division pennant hopes. To O'Brien, however, the trip has greater significance.

O'Brien welcomes the opportunity to return to Chicago to redeem himself for what he calls his disappointing showing in the All-Star game last August. Widely heralded as the greatest passer of all time, elected to a starting position on the All-Star team in THE TRIBUNE's nation-wide poll and marked as the man on whom the collegians depended for victory, O'Brien was eclipsed by Billy Patterson, a Bear whom he will face Sunday.

Little Davey Fumbles Punt.

Little Davey fumbled the first punt of the game and the Giants recovered on the All-Stars' 29 yard line. He was replaced by George Faust of Minnesota shortly thereafter and returned only long enough to throw one pass to Waddy Young for a nine yard gain.

This was the beginning of a series of bitter disappointments, which lasted down to the Brooklyn game two weeks ago when O'Brien suddenly began to find himself among the rough and ready behemoths of professional football.

Eleven of his passes found their mark in the rain that night in Brooklyn. The following Sunday he completed 19 out of 37 passes against Green Bay in what Curley Lambeau, Packer coach, and not exactly an uninformed gent in this passing business, called the greatest individual exhibition he ever had seen. This was high praise coming from a man who has spent the last few years examining the Herber to Hutson combination daily.

"We played three right and three left ends against the Eagles, alternating every ten minutes," Lambeau said after the game. "They were kept fresh to rush O'Brien. Frequently Davey was trapped and thrown for losses, but he couldn't be stopped. Once he was thrown back 17 yards. On the next play he rifled a pass to a receiver for a first down, setting up a touchdown.

"O'Brien's grit and ability to take punishment were the most amazing features of his performance," Lambeau continued. "Most of the time he was hit by opponents who outweighed him nearly 100 pounds, but invariably he bounced back.

"Pete Tinsley, our guard from Georgia, crashed him to the ground once with one of the most vicious tackles I have ever seen in the league. Helping Davey to his feet, Pete said: 'Kid they oughta give you more protection.'

Wants No Excuses.

"'No. I should have gotten the ball off faster,' Davey replied.

"O'Brien played every minute of a tough ball game and never once asked for time out. That youngster is going to make history in this league."

O'Brien's other accomplishments against the Packers in a losing battle included returning a punt 31 yards; recovering a fumble and holding the ball for a teammate's place kick.

Little Davey, who no longer looks like a boy to Eagle opponents, has begun to get the feel of professional football. And with it the desire to vindicate himself before Chicago spectators has mounted almost to a passion. He looks forward to Sunday's

SING SING COACH ACCLAIMED BEST MOANER OF YEAR

Johnny Law Winner Over Clark Shaughnessy.

Spokane, Wash., Nov. 16 (AP).—Coach Johnny Law, who has stripes before his eyes, is the grand champion moaner among football coaches. He'll have $1,000 worth of athletic equipment as proof just as soon as the Spokane Athletic Round Table makes out a check.

John Law.

Law, head coach at ivy-draped Sing Sing, Ossining, N. Y., was named winner of the round table's third annual coaches' moan contest for his touching letter about a team that "graduated" when the prison gate was opened inadvertently during the "big game."

Shaughnessy Is Second.

A close second was Coach Clark Shaughnessy of Chicago, who penned a tender postscript to an 800 word weep, asking that an adding machine be included in the prize if he was adjudged winner. "The editors will put down the scores, but they'll be damned if they'll add them," his P. S. said.

The prize is delivered for the best cry any coach can put into writing, and he doesn't have to hamper himself by looking truth in the eye.

Law, captain of the 1929 Notre Dame team, told in his $1,000 letter of the troubles peculiar to a prison coach.

His Greatest Trouble.

"A visit from some member of the family may be more important than any number of victories to the prison athlete," Law groaned. In one game his best back was called to the visiting room just as he crossed the 50 yard line with an intercepted pass.

The "big game" brought Law his greatest trouble. The team made a touchdown while the gate was open and forgot to stop running. The coach added he felt "like the con who dug for a year and came up in the warden's office."

Shaughnessy, who revealed he was trying to work out a play that would get his full back up to the line of scrimmage without a broken leg, saw a ray of hope for his oft-trodden Maroons: The athletic board had promised to put traffic lights in the Chicago end zone to cut down collisions.

SENATOR ADMITS IOWA WILL BEAT MINNESOTA FOE

Des Moines, Ia., Nov. 16 (AP).—"I'll be in Iowa City Saturday to tie a ribbon on Floyd of Rosedale after we win him back from Minnesota," Senator Clyde L. Herring [D., Ia.] said today.

Floyd of Rosedale is a bronze replica of a pig which Herring several years ago put up in a football bet with the late Gov. Floyd B. Olson of Minnesota.

The porker was on the hoof when Herring, then Iowa governor, personally delivered it to Olson after Minnesota beat Iowa. The bronze replica was cast as a perpetual trophy after Gov. Olson said the original Floyd "would die of old age before Iowa could win him back."

CORCORAN STAYS ON JOB AS P. G. A. TOURNEY CHIEF

The contract of Fred J. Corcoran as tournament manager of the Professional Golfers' Association of America was renewed yesterday for one year in the final session of the organization's meeting in the Morrison hotel.

Ed Dudley of Philadelphia, former Western open champion, was named chairman of the tournament committee. Dudley with his partner, Billy Burke of Cleveland, won the Walter Hagen anniversary meet at the Midlothian Country club last August.

I tear my hair and lift my voice,
From rage and anger I've no choice,
I thump the table, slam the door,
Raise the roof and pound the floor;
She makes me steam, I can't explain,
Sometimes I think she has no brain.

But then again I look at her
And feel something inside me stir;
Antagonizing? Yes, but still
A pal who is and always will
Be right on hand to let me know
Which way I should and shouldn't go.

First she's fresh and pretty tough,
It's then I feel I've had enough;
Then she smiles and shows her charm,
No frown's so strong she can't disarm
It with that gay and lilting laugh—
And trouble seems to drop in half.

L. S. U. FROSH STAR APOLOGIZES AND IS REINSTATED

Baton Rouge, La., Nov. 16 (AP).—Walter [Piggy] Barnes, husky freshman football star at Louisiana State university, was dismissed from the squad for disciplinary reasons today but was reinstated a few hours later.

Barnes, an All-State tackle for two years at Parkersburg, W. Va., High school, was dismissed by Coach Bernie Moore, who said Barnes had been absent from military drills in the university's cadet corps, had been cutting classes, and when cautioned about it had been indignant.

Moore said when Barnes took this attitude he told him, "Get your clothes and get out." The reinstatement was granted by Moore after Barnes apologized and promised he would obey the school's regulations.

New York, Nov. 16 (AP).—The Chicago Blackhawks won their first road victory in three attempts and took over first place in the National Hockey league by whipping the New York Rangers, 3 to 2, tonight. The triumph, the Hawks' third in five games, gave them six points in the standings, one more than Toronto, Montreal, and Detroit have made.

Earl Seibert.

The victory, clinched by young Doug Bentley in 14:40 of a wild final period in which all the game's scoring was done, cost the Hawks the services of their star defense man, Earl Seibert, for about three weeks. Ligaments in Seibert's knee were torn when he was knocked down by Bryan Hextall in the second period. Seibert was carried from the ice.

Favorites to Keep Lead.

The result made the Hawks favorites to lead the league parade, at least for a few days, as they play their next game on home ice Sunday, meeting the champion Boston Bruins, who defeated them, 3 to 1, in overtime Tuesday night. The Hawks are unbeaten at home while the Bruins have looked like champions only once this year—during the few minutes it took them to pull away from the Hawks Tuesday.

The Hawks came from behind twice tonight, Art Wiebe and Phil Hergesheimer wiping out goals by Dutch Hiller and Alex Shibicky to set up the play for Bentley's clinching counter.

Bentley Is Star.

It was the fourth straight game without victory for the Rangers, who have tied two and lost two. It seemed they were on their way to their first victory, but a lapse by Goalie Dave Kerr cost them the chance. Kerr let two long shots get by, Wiebe golfing his home from just inside the blue line. Bentley's drive, a terrific shot, whistled past Kerr's kicking foot from 30 feet out.

Bentley played a great game for the Hawks, who skated step for step with the Rangers thru the first two periods and actually had the better chances tho less of the play.

Final Attack Fails.

Hiller and Wiebe scored while the teams were at full strength, Hiller at 1:14 and Wiebe at 6:41 of the third period, but Shibicky's and Hergesheimer's counters, at 8:35 and 10:20, respectively, came while the opposition was short handed thru penalties. The teams again were at full strength when Bill Thoms and Mush March sent Bentley winging down the left boards for the deciding tally. The Rangers attacked furiously in the last few minutes, but to no avail.

A WINNER PAYS! MISSOURI SOLD OUT FIRST TIME

Columbia, Mo., Nov. 16 (AP).—The University of Missouri today sold out completely for a football game for the first time in its 50 year gridiron history.

Warner Williams, a student, purchased the last two general admission tickets for the Oklahoma game Saturday, a supply of 1,200 that had gone on sale this morning after reserved seats had been sold out since yesterday afternoon. The crowd will number approximately 27,000.

BY JAMES SEGRETI.

The football teams of two former Northwestern university athletes may meet in the finals for the Public High School league championship on Nov. 25 if Fenger whips Tilden Tech in Soldiers' field and Schurz wins from Austin in Mills stadium tomorrow afternoon.

Bob Koehler.

Chuck Palmer.

Fenger, defending champion, which this season won the south section title with six straight victories, is coached by Charles [Chuck] Palmer, Wildcat half back in 1920, 1921, and 1922. Schurz, north division representative, is coached by Robert Koehler, full back on Northwestern elevens in 1916, 1917 and 1919.

Schurz will be making its first appearance in the title playoffs since 1936. That season the north side eleven also played Austin, but Bill De Correvont led the west siders to victory. With Jack Vanderpool, left half back; Jack Thompson, right half back, and Hilliard Long, left end, pacing the attack, Schurz this year won six games and lost one, scoring 107 points to opponents' 27.

Wins Seven Straight.

Austin, west zone champion for the fourth straight year, with Casey Peifer and Tony Rotunno leading the way, has won seven consecutive games, rolling up 187 points, and its goal was not crossed until last Saturday, when Seymour Roth of Marshall broke loose for a touchdown on an eighty-five yard run.

Fenger found little difficulty in marching to the south division title for the second successive year. Donald [Flash] Griffin and Roy Florek have been the team's heroes in scoring 224 points to opponents' 13. In Tilden Tech the champions will find one of the most formidable elevens in the Chicago area, however.

Tilden Tech represents the central section, the zone whose teams once dominated the public school league. In 1936 Tilden Tech reached the finals and lost to Austin. The following season Tilden advanced to the semi-finals, where it was beaten by Senn. Tilden Tech won league championships in 1927, 1928, and 1931.

Coach Charles Harvey of Tilden Tech believes he has two of the best ball carriers in the district in Al Specius and Ed Cycenas. Specius, full back, is 6 feet 1 inch tall and weighs 185 pounds.

St. Ignatius Celebrates.

Specius and Cycenas are confident they will lead Tilden Tech to the championship and the right to oppose the Catholic league champion in the all-city game on Dec. 2. Mount Carmel and St. Ignatius will meet Sunday afternoon in Soldiers' field for the league title.

More than 700 St. Ignatius students held a bonfire and pep rally on the school grounds last night in celebration of their first title chance since 1922. Members of the squad marched in a parade which was led by Ray McCaffrey, star half back, who two weeks ago suffered a broken collar bone, and Tony Ippolito, former full back, who later starred at Purdue university.

Hawkeyes See End to 10 Year Gopher Drouth

Iowa City, Ia., Nov. 16 [Special].—On the threshold of its highest position in Western conference standings since 1921, the University of Iowa football team today went thru its last hard drill in preparation for the homecoming game with Minnesota here Saturday with one thought in mind—that to defeat its arch rival for the first time since 1929.

The string of eight consecutive defeats at the hands of the Gophers, includes the 52 to 0 score of 1936, which has been burning beneath the hides of Iowans ever since.

May Share Big 10 Title.

A victory over Minnesota and one over Northwestern the following Saturday would give Iowa a share of the Big Ten title, provided Ohio State dropped one of its two remaining games.

However, all season long Coach Eddie Anderson has insisted that the squad take the games as they come. "We can only play one game at a time," he has said time and again, "and when Saturday afternoon comes around we know the opposition will have a team on the field. We may not be able to beat them all, but all of them will know they've been somewhere."

Go Thru Final Drill.

Today as the Hawkeyes went thru their final drill for the Minnesota game, they gave every indication they would be ready for the Gophers with one of their typical busy Saturday afternoons. The entire squad was in good physical shape, and mentally ready.

Anderson worked the men hard on defense against Minnesota plays, sharpened the passing eye of his tossers in a long passing drill, and then tapered off by running signals.

PASSES WORRY GOPHERS.

Minneapolis, Minn., Nov. 16 [Special].—Minnesota's secondary defense against passes, which looked better in the Michigan game, has bogged down again this week to give Coach Bernie Bierman some more worries as he polishes off training for the Iowa game. Favored by ideal weather, the Gopher regulars spent most of this afternoon trying to stop Iowa passes as thrown by the reserves, but didn't have any luck.

Today's workout indicated that Bierman will use the same starting lineup for Iowa as he did for Michigan. That means Mernik will be at quarter, Paschka at left guard, and Vant Hull at right tackle. George Franck looked all right in his first dummy scrimmage and apparently will be in there at the kickoff.

The Gophers have a short drill tomorrow morning before entraining at noon for Des Moines, where they will spend tomorrow night. Almost all of the 5,700 Minnesota tickets were sold when the offices closed tonight.

Harried Maroons Find Foe in Their Class—Oberlin

Chicago's Maroons, who have not found an opponent in their own class since Oct. 7, when they overcame Wabash college, 12 to 2, apparently have located one in the little Oberlin squad which is scheduled to arrive this evening at 9:15 o'clock at the Englewood station.

The Maroons, will spend this afternoon's practice period working on a pass offensive which has grown rusty with disuse in the last four games.

The Oberlin starting line, announced yesterday by Coach Lysle K. Butler, weighs six pounds per man less than Chicago's. The Maroon advantage is seven pounds among the backs, tho neither back field comes within 25 pounds of what is considered adequate for a college varsity. The Chicago backs average 167 pounds; Oberlin's 160.

Lack of reserves, consistently a problem for the Maroons, is shared by Oberlin. Phil Worcester and Ken Briggs, first string full back and left back, respectively, were out of the lineup last week because of injuries. They are expected to start but probably will not be in shape to play a full game. Other injuries have pared down the squad to 33 players, the number with which Chicago started the season. But late additions have increased Maroon membership to 40.

Garcia-Armstrong Fight O.K. Refused by Jacobs

New York, Nov. 16 (AP). — Mike Jacobs today notified all parties concerned that he had refused to release Ceferino Garcia and Henry Armstrong for their proposed middleweight title fight in Los Angeles, Cal., Feb. 22. Garcia is recognized in New York and California as the middleweight champion. Jacobs, who has exclusive rights on the services of both fighters, said the bout would conflict with his plans to use the boxers in other fights. He already has released Garcia for a title fight with Glen Lee of Omaha, Neb., in Manila next month.

Indiana Looks for Battle at Michigan State

Bloomington, Ind., Nov. 16 [Special].—Thirty-six Indiana university football players left today for East Lansing to meet Michigan State Saturday in the last of six road games.

Altho the Hoosiers wind up their schedule here next week in the all-important game with Purdue, attention this week has been centered exclusively on the strong Spartans.

The Indiana squad attended a movie in Indianapolis early tonight and then boarded a train for Michigan. Final practice will be held tomorrow afternoon in the Michigan State stadium. Players making the trip included:

ENDS—Russell Higginbotham, Mike Dumke, Archie Harris, Eddie Rucinski, Jim Ellenwood, John Janzaruk, and Al Bradley.
TACKLES—Al Bragalone, John Broskal, Graham Martin, Frank Smith, Emil Uremovich, Jim Tremble, and Al Sabol.
GUARDS—Bill Smith, Mike Naddeo, Gene White, Capt. Jim Logan, and Bill Tringle.
BACKS—Tim Bringle, Harold Hursh, Mickey McGuire, Eddie Herbert, Ray Dumke, Tuffy Brooks, Bill Tipmore, Charles Noblick, Red Zimmer, Kenneth Smith, Page Benson, Clee Maddox, and Joe Tofil.

YACHTSMEN TO MEET TONIGHT AT WINNERS' DINNER

More than 200 yachtsmen from Lake Michigan ports of Wisconsin, Illinois, Indiana, and Michigan are to meet tonight at the Chicago Yacht club's annual winners' dinner, to be held in the Merchants and Manufacturer's club at the Merchandise mart.

Commodore Karl Nibecker, who has been reëlected as chief flag officer of the club for the 1940 sailing season, will be the chief speaker. He will also present the awards for the club's season championships, the Lipton cup, Lake Michigan Yachting association regatta prizes, Col. Robert Morse trophy, and other prizes.

Elmhurst Plays Wheaton in 13th Game Tomorrow

Elmhurst and Wheaton colleges, west suburban football rivals, will meet in their thirteenth annual game in Elmhurst tomorrow, marking the close of the season for both teams.

Elmhurst will attempt to upset the Crusaders and even the series between the two schools. In past games Wheaton has won five and Elmhurst four, while three were tied.

Wheaton will attempt to win for the third consecutive year and retire the trophy offered by the Elmhurst Trade and Civic association.

Coached by Fred Walker, Wheaton has won two and lost three this season, and will enter the closing contest with the benefit of last Saturday's open date. Elmhurst beat Eureka last week. Glenn Bauman, unable to oppose Illinois Normal two weeks ago due to injury, has returned to the Wheaton lineup.

Elmhurst, coached by Pete Langhorst, will depend chiefly on the ground gaining of Henry Bucholz.

29 MARQUETTE PLAYERS ON WAY TO TEXAS TECH

Wichita, Kas., Nov. 16 [Special].—Marquette university's football squad, en route to its final game of the season with Texas Tech in Lubbock on Saturday, stopped here briefly this afternoon.

The Hilltoppers held no practice today, but had opportunities at Kansas City and Newton to limber up. All of the 29 players in the party were reported to be in shape.

HARLOW TO STAY AT HARVARD, HE TELLS DIRECTOR

Cambridge Mass., Nov. 16 (AP).—Richard C. Harlow, head coach of football at Harvard university, reaffirmed in a letter today to William J. Bingham, director of athletics, that he intended to fulfill his contract to serve as coach until 1942.

"Despite the understanding that exists between us, rumors still persist that I am to leave Harvard at the end of this football season," Harlow wrote. "I want to assure you again that there is no foundation for these rumors.

"I have signed a contract to remain at Harvard for several years, and I shall fulfill my contract."

RIGHTMIRE FACES SPENCER TONIGHT AT WHITE CITY

Program Opens Series on South Side.

Mique Malloy, one of Chicago's veteran promoters, will conduct the first of a series of fortnightly shows tonight in White City, 63d street and South Park avenue. Malloy, who is sponsoring his first card in two years, will present five bouts as his first offering, two at eight rounds, one at five, and two at four rounds.

Gene Spencer, South Chicago lightweight, will try his luck against Everett Rightmire of Sioux City, Ia., in an eight round contest. Spencer will be making his first Chicago appearance in eight months after returning from a successful campaign in Texas and California.

Altho Rightmire, who is 24 years old, appears to be nearing the end of his career he still can hold his own against potential headliners as testified by his decisive defeat of Sammy Sferas in Marigold Gardens on Oct. 2. Everett has been fighting nine years.

Other contests:

Lem Franklin vs. Perk Daniels [8], heavyweights.
Aaron Wade vs. Jack Cooper [5], 147.
Billy Seward vs. Tommy Parker [4], 135.
Jake Lebovitz vs. Harry Sutton [4], heavyweights.

Amateur boxers from Danville, Ill., will meet a Chicago team in a series of fights this evening in Madison Athletic club, 4711 Madison street. Jimmy Crow, Danville lightweight, is paired with Duke Harris, Chicago, in a five round engagement. In a secondary feature Freddy Wright, Danville light heavyweight, will face Manuel Jones, Chicago. . . . Ralph Chong, New Orleans, La., light heavyweight, has arrived for an eight round bout against Lee Oma of Detroit in Marigold Gardens Monday. In additional matches of eight rounds Altus Allen is matched against George Sutka, and Tony Motisi against Tommy Pallatin. . . . Johnny Barbara, South Bend welterweight, says he is thru as a fighter after six years.

Leo Rodak yesterday started workouts in Trafton's gymnasium for a proposed rematch with Dave Castilloux in Toronto, Ont., Nov. 27. Castilloux won their earlier meeting. . . . Johnny Paycheck, 1933 Chicago Golden Gloves heavyweight champion, will leave Sunday for a 10 round encounter against Paul Hartnek in Omaha [illegible] Friday. . . .

PURDUE LOOKS AT WISCONSIN AS 'BIGGEST GAME'

Fears Badgers Keyed to Limit for Homecoming.

Lafayette, Ind., Nov. 16 [Special]. —Purdue's preparations for the battle with Wisconsin in Madison Saturday which will determine whether the Boilermakers are to remain in a position to finish well up in the Big Ten race, were practically completed this afternoon with an extended drill in which Coach Mal Elward carefully reviewed both offensive and defensive tactics.

Coach Elward impressed on the Boilermaker squad the fact that the stand against Wisconsin will be the "biggest game of the season" for Purdue. It is important not only because the desperate Badgers will be primed for their supreme effort in their homecoming appearance but because the outcome of the game will have a distinct bearing on Boilermaker chances of finishing in the runner-up spot in the conference chase, or even retaining their mathematical chance of figuring in the title itself.

Newcomers May Start.

Judging from this afternoon's drill, several new faces are likely to make their appearance in the starting lineup as Elward attempts to bolster the defense against the plunging of George Paskvan of Wisconsin. William Neff, a junior and a native of Madison, Wis., may get a chance to start before his home folks at left tackle. Basil Petry at center and Jim Miller at right guard are distinct starting possibilities.

BADGERS ARE READY.

Madison, Wis., Nov. 16 [Special.]—Wisconsin's victory starved Badgers were considered ready for the Purdue homecoming game Saturday following another light drill this afternoon. "The boys seem to know their assignments and the timing of plays is quite satisfactory," Coach Harry Stuhldreher said. "Little could be gained by further scrimmage."

MOON MULLINS—END OF THE LINE

Michigan, Not Too Confident, Off for Penn

Ann Arbor, Mich., Nov. 16 [Special].—A determined squad of 36 Michigan players left this evening for Philadelphia where they meet Pennsylvania in the Wolverines' second intersectional battle of the season Saturday. Altho the Wolverines rolled over Yale, 27 to 7, earlier this year, the odds favoring them over Penn have been cut since the defeats at the hands of Illinois and Minnesota.

At the time of departure, Coach Fritz Crisler still was uncertain as to the condition of three regulars. Quarter Back Forest Evashevski is still handicapped slightly by an ankle injury, End John Nicholson is just recovering from a charley horse, and Tackle Bill Smith's twisted knee still is a little weak.

PENN GETS A REST.

Philadelphia, Pa., Nov. 16 (AP).—Coach George Munger resorted to rest treatment today in an attempt to put the Pennsylvania players in condition for Saturday's game with Michigan. He called off practice entirely and forbade any player to don a suit or even visit the practice field except for medical purposes. Not even a lecture marred the vacation. Munger said: "I figured a day off so close to the game will put them in the right frame of mind."

A team of former baseball players headed by Joe Tinker will bowl a three game series with the Pabst Blue Ribbons at Bob O'Farrell's Recreation in Waukegan tomorrow night for the benefit of the Boys Town project at Omaha, Neb. Receipts will go to the Boys Town athletic fund which is supported by a Peoria newspaper.

Illini Name Turek to Take Martin's Job

Champaign, Ill., Nov. 16 [Special]. —Realizing it faces one of its hardest assignments in trying to stop the title march of Ohio State without its regular right guard, Wes Martin, the Illinois football team today held its last drill before leaving for Saturday's game with the Buckeyes.

At the beginning of the week there was hope that Martin might be available, but the knee injury sustained in the Wisconsin contest has not responded as expected. Joe Turek, sophomore right guard, will take Martin's place. The remainder of the first eleven will find Flip Anders, left end; Jim Reeder, left tackle; Capt. Mel Brewer, left guard; Bill Lenich, center; Tom Riggs, right tackle; Paul Milosevich, right end; Ralph Ehni, quarter back; Jimmy Smith, left half back; Laverne Astroth, right half back, and George Rettinger, full back.

The squad will leave by special train at 7 a. m. tomorrow, arriving at Columbus at 3:30 p. m. They will spend the night in Magnetic Springs. The traveling squad follows:

ENDS—Alphonse Anders, James Phillips, Paul Milolevich, Robert O'Neill, David Dillon, and Robert Campbell.

TACKLES—James Reeder, Thomas Riggs, Duane Fultz, Nathan Johnson, William Kolens, Florian Surdyk, and Ed Nelson.

GUARDS — Capt. Mel. Brewer, Joseph Turek, George Bernhardt, Gordon McKenzie, Robert Ingle, Landis Hurley, and George Nelson.

BUCKEYES FEAR SPEED.

Columbus, O., Nov. 16 (AP).—Coach Francis Schmidt had the speediest reserves trying to break thru the Ohio State varsity line today in preparation for meeting here Saturday an Illinois back field composed of one of the fastest quartets in the Western conference. Only one Buckeye, Tackle Jim Piccinini, will be on the bench because of injuries.

Today's practice indicated that Ohio State will be on edge to keep the Illini runners from getting a head start when they have the ball. The offense stacks up as a mixture of all the tricks the Buckeyes know.

Two Newcomers to Seek Midget Race Victory Sunday

Bob Muhlke and Mike O'Halloran, two of Chicago's newcomers to the ranks of midget auto race competition, will bid for feature honors Sunday night in the 124th Field Artillery armory, where 50 drivers will compete in an eight event program. Each driver is seeking his first main event victory on the armory oval. O'Halloran rose to driving prominence late last spring, while Muhlke distinguished himself on the outdoor midget ovals last summer.

FIVE MONMOUTH MEN PLAY FINAL GAME AT KNOX

Monmouth, Ill., Nov. 16 [Special].—Five Monmouth college seniors will play their last college football in Galesburg on Saturday afternoon when the Scots meet Knox for the 55th time. Completing their careers will be four men who have been regulars for three years and one reserve. They are James Vipond, guard, Sterling, Ill.; Delbert Gardner, guard, Coldbrook, Ill.; Dudley Plunkett, tackle, Alpha, Ill.; Francis Wallen, Oxford, O., full back, and David Renner, tackle, of New York City.

BUSINESS STILL GOES ON AT SAME OLD HANDBOOKS

Bootleg Racing News to Keep Bets Flowing.

BY HOWARD BARRY.

Chicago's bookies went calmly about their business yesterday despite the fact that Nationwide News Service, Inc., their former central source of information, had ceased to exist.

They took bets. They paid off. They furnished loud speaker reports of the shifting odds. They called the positions of the horses. They gave the order of finish and announced the prices.

But out of these items of information the only strictly reliable ones were the order of finish and the prices paid on winners. The bookies made no mistakes about those. They were very sketchy, however, about the calls [the positions of the horses while the races were being run] and often were far off in their quotations of odds.

Use Various Methods.

There were various explanations of the sources of the information. The bookies still had their telephones. Some called one of several local racing publications, obtaining the information which is given freely to all subscribers of these publications, and relayed these facts to their patrons over the loud speakers.

Under another arrangement a representative at each of the two eastern race tracks put in long distance calls to the gambling syndicate's central office in Chicago. A phone call after each race cost approximately $8. Eight races at Bowie and the same number at Narragansett involved 16 calls for a total of about $128. This is small change when prorated among the bookies who were glad to get the service.

Police Raid Four Places.

These bookies then made individual local calls to their headquarters and got their information. There appeared to be some groups that had their loudspeakers hooked up on one circuit. In other cases, one of the attendants located in a side room spoke into the public address system.

Police raided four alleged bookies yesterday. Three men were arrested at 3166 Elston avenue, two at 8316 South Racine avenue, two at 645 South Wells street, and three at 69 West Monroe street. Capt. Martin McCormick of the morals division said the daily raids would continue.

Reports from other sections of the country indicated that bookmakers in the larger metropolitan and resort centers were meeting the situation in a manner similar to that of their Chicago colleagues. In the west and south, however, there were reports that gambling activities were almost at a standstill.

New York, Baltimore, Atlantic City, Boston, and East St. Louis reported business curtailed. Hot Springs, Ark., and Miami, Fla., had almost normal activity.

South Is Hit Hard.

Of the large cities, Pittsburgh seemed the hardest hit, bookmakers reporting a terrific slump. Many were planning to close their shops. Philadelphia also fared badly, registering a 75 per cent decrease.

The drop in patronage in Chattanooga, Tenn., was quoted at 90 per cent. Police raided a popular establishment in Nashville. Other spots in that town were idle. Arrests also ocurred in Salt Lake City, Utah. Gambling establishments were closed in Fort Worth, Tex.

On the west coast Los Angeles reported only a 25 per cent decrease, but San Francisco and Portland gamblers stated that their business was at a standstill.

MAROONS SILENT ON FRATERNITY ELEVEN'S DEFY

Hamilton, N. Y., Nov. 16 (AP).—The Delta Kappa Epsilon fraternity football team at Colgate university has challenged the University of Chicago's eleven to a post-season contest. In a letter to the Chicago athletic council, the Dekes today asked a $2,500 guarantee, the game to be played in Chicago.

The challenge of the Colgate university fraternity football team brought nothing but silence from the Midway last night. Five members of the Chicago chapter of the fraternity are on the Maroon squad.

Bruins Play 3-3 Tie with Canadiens

MONTREAL, Que., Nov. 16 (AP).—Failing to withstand a third period onslaught by the Boston Bruins, the Montreal Canadiens yielded a 3 to 3 tie to the Stanley cup champions tonight in a National Hockey league game watched by 8,000.

The Frenchmen, who had won their first two games, carried a 3 to 1 lead into the final period, but goals by Bobby Bauer and Art Jackson, the latter's score coming less than four minutes before the end of the game, tied it up.

The Canadiens did all their scoring in the second stanza, when Louis Trudel rifled home a 30 foot shot and Toe Blake, last year's leading scorer, counted twice in the last two minutes. Dit Clapper sandwiched Boston's goal between Trudel's and Blake's first score. The lineups:

CENTRAL A. A. U. STARTS HANDICAP SWIM TONIGHT

The first Central A. A. U. handicap swimming event ever held will be included in the water carnival and swimming meet at the Shawnee Country club, Wilmette, tonight.

The experimental event will be the Central A. A. U. men's 100 yard free style handicap. Entrants include Richard Fahrback and Capi Searles of Northwestern university, Bill Zerrien of the Shawnee team, and Casey Jacosik and Orval Roscoe of the Midwest A. C. Four other Central A. A. U. 1940 championships will be decided tonight in the Shawnee meet: The men's highboard diving, women's 50 yard free style, women's 300 yard individual medley, and women's 200 yard breast stroke. Climax of the carnival will be a water ballet by 50 sons and daughters of Shawnee members presenting "The Wedding of Neptune's Daughter."

Claudia Eckert, Barbara Ramser, and Lois Wentzel of the Shawnee club are expected to make a strong bid for grand slam honors in three events.

DENIES GUNNERS BREAKUP AFTER OFFICIAL QUITS

St. Louis, Mo., Nov. 16 (AP).—Gus Jaudes, president of the St. Louis Gunners of the American Professional Football league, announced tonight he had withdrawn his interest from the team and had disbanded the Gunners for the season. He said he withdrew his interest in the team after last Sunday's game with Cincinnati and paid all bills in full, including players' salaries.

A denial of the team's breakup, however, came from General Manager Bud Yates. He asserted the Gunners would go thru with a game next Sunday. "I know nothing about a breakup," he said. "As far as I know, we're going thru with our scheduled game with the Chicago Indians on Sunday."

Jaudes' announcement confirmed rumors that all was not well with the Gunners' organization. One of the players, who asked that his name be withheld, said that most of the team's outstanding players were quitting.

Two dollar mutuels paid: Cisneros, $7.90 straight, $5.10 place, $2.80 show; Miss Ponne, [illegible]; The Queen, $3.00 show.

388,536 Fishing Licenses Issued in 1938 by Illinois

Washington, D. C., Nov. 16 (AP).—Illinois issued 388,536 fishing licenses last year and collected $258,155 in fees, reflecting a generally increased interest in fresh water angling thruout the nation. The bureau of fisheries, on the basis of reports from the various states, estimated the number of anglers had increased more than 500,000. Out of 7,436,177 licenses issued, the bureau said, 5,453,426 were for fishing alone, while 1,982,751 licenses included fishing, hunting, and trapping privileges. Iowa issued 166,530 licenses and collected $201,067 in fees, while Indiana issued 447,560 and collected $474,984.

As a result of this turn of events, defense has been the major item on the Bears' practice programs in Wrigley field the last two days. Assistant Luke Johnsos, the Bears' chief strategist on defensive maneuvers, has been driving the club thru a new set of formations in the hope of holding O'Brien in check. The Bears' problem is complicated by the Eagles' penchant for lateral passes. Their favorite aerial thrusts are forward passes that wind up with a down field lateral.

The Chicago Cardinals yesterday announced they had acquired Half Back Barney Wheeler from Pittsburgh in a trade which sent Full Back Ed Cherry to the Pirates. Word of the trade was issued by the Cards' Chicago headquarters. The Cardinals are in Washington, where they will battle the Redskins Sunday.

Wheeler played collegiate football with the North Dakota Aggies. He weighs 185 pounds and stands 6 feet 1 inch in height. Cherry has been with the Cardinals three years.

C. Y. O. Card of Suburban Bouts Opens

Suburban section preliminaries and quarter-finals of the ninth annual C. Y. O. Christmas fund boxing tournament got under way last night in Catholic High school in Joliet. The matches will be completed tonight, with survivors slated to compete in the semi-finals, to be held Monday and Tuesday nights in the C. Y. O. gymnasium.

Standouts in last night's bouts were Bob Clifford of Lewis Holy Name school in Lockport and Dowd Purgett, also from Lewis. Clifford stopped Austin Giblin, another boy from the Lockport school, in the second round, displaying a left that carries plenty of dynamite. Purgett put away Gene McKeon of Sacred Heart in Joliet in the first round with a right cross to the jaw.

Paul Rodriguez, from St. Anthony's parish in Joliet, was another boy who looked promising, stopping Monty Gray of St. Joseph's of Morris, Ill., early in the opening round.

CALLURA BEATS EFRATI ON LOUIS EXHIBITION CARD

Milwaukee, Wis., Nov. 16 (AP).—Frankie Callura, Montreal featherweight, won a 10 round decision tonight over Leon Efrati of Italy in the headline bout supporting the exhibition appearance of Joe Louis, heavyweight boxing champion.

Louis, whose appearance drew only a $3,000 house, boxed two rounds each with Clarence Brown of Chicago and George Nicholson of Detroit, a Louis sparring partner.

Callura defeated Efrati by a consistently good attack around the midsection. The Canadian weighed 125½, Efrati 129. Frankie Gaudes, Milwaukee, 130¼, and Gene Ward, 126½ fought a six round draw.

PAY ROLL SOARS ON PRESIDENT'S 'ECONOMY' PLAN

54,110 Jobholders Added in Four Months.

BY WALTER TROHAN.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Nov. 16.—President Roosevelt's government reorganization plan, which he advanced in the interests of efficiency and economy, has added 54,110 civil employés to the federal pay roll and added millions of dollars to the cost of running the government.

The United States Civil Service commission reported 939,876 persons on the federal pay roll Sept. 1, exclusive of the legislative, judicial, and military establishments.

On April 30, five days after the President sent his executive order promulgating sweeping reorganization of the federal establishment in the name of economy and efficiency, there were 885,766 persons on the federal pay roll.

His Theme: "Economy."

Roosevelt told congress that the purpose of his program was "to reduce expenditures to the fullest extent consistent with the efficient operation of the government."

For the month of April the total federal pay roll in the executive department, exclusive of military personnel, WPA outlays, direct relief, and farm payments, was $133,426,857. After four months of reorganization the August pay roll was up to $141,670,976.

The rate of increase under reorganization promises to increase the federal pay roll by more than 100 million dollars a year. The August pay roll was more than 8 million dollars above that of April, the last month before reorganization. It is expected that the pay roll will continue to mount.

President's Promise.

In his message to congress of last April 25 Roosevelt promised a reduction of 15 to 20 million dollars in administrative expenses. He said:

"The reduction of administrative expenditures, which it is probable will be brought about by the reorganizations specified in this plan, is estimated, as nearly as may be, at between $15,000,000 and $20,000,000 annually, a substantial lowering of the existing overhead. Certain of these economies can be brought about almost immediately, others will require a painstaking and a gradual readjustment in the machinery and business practices of the government."

The records of the Civil Service commission show the federal pay roll has been increased by 376,829 persons since Roosevelt took office on March 4, 1933. The pay roll on that date numbered 563,847 persons.

Prediction Recalled.

The increase was prophesied on March 2, 1930, by Roosevelt, then governor of New York, when he pointed with horror to the then current federal budget of 3½ billion dollars.

"If we do not halt this steady process of building up commissions and regulatory bodies and special legislation, like huge inverted pyramids over every one of the simple constitutional provisions, we shall soon be spending many billions of dollars more," he said.

Today the treasury reported government expenditure for four and one-half months of the current fiscal year has passed the 3½ billion dollar mark. At the present rate of expenditure the annual outlay will approach 10 billion dollars.

WHEELER PLEADS FOR DEMOCRATIC HARMONY IN 1940

Baltimore, Md., Nov. 16 (AP).—A plea for harmony in Democratic party ranks to assure success in the 1940 presidential election was made tonight by Senator Burton K. Wheeler [D., Mont.], frequent leader of opposition to the administration in congress.

Conceding that he had "vigorously opposed some of the measures advocated by President Roosevelt," Wheeler told the annual rally of the United Democratic Women's Clubs of Maryland that "it was a difference of method that separated us and not a question of fundamental beliefs."

The Montana senator, who is being boomed by friends for the 1940 presidential nomination, praised the courage and accomplishments of President Roosevelt and described the Republican party as controled by "the dead hand of blind reaction."

Placing party harmony ahead of individual candidates, Wheeler said:

"More important than the identity of the candidate is the necessity of making certain that the next President of the United States is a Democrat, elected to office with the full weight of a united and militant party behind him."

Frederick Wall, Former Milwaukee Attorney, Dies

Milwaukee, Wis., Nov. 16 [Special].—Frederick R. Wall, 47 years old, formerly an associate in the Milwaukee law firm of Miller, Mack & Fairchild and who became assistant secretary of the Goodyear Tire and Rubber company, Akron, O., died today in Akron. He was a son of the late George Wall, once a partner in the Milwaukee law firm. He was graduated from the University of Wisconsin in 1915 and practiced law until the world war, in which he served as a captain. After the war he became counsel for the Milwaukee Coke and Gas company. He is survived by his widow; a son, Frederick; a daughter, Maud Alice; two sisters, Mrs. Hugo Logemann, Milwaukee, and Mrs. H. A. Barber, Havana, Cuba, and one brother, John, of Portland, Ore. Funeral services will be held tomorrow afternoon with burial in Cleveland, O.

STABBED IN TAVERN BRAWL.

Michael Lingis, 25 years old, 4329 South Francisco avenue, a WPA laborer, was stabbed in the back last night in a brawl with a man known only as Pete in a tavern at South Racine avenue.

MORE TURKEYS THIS YEAR; COST DROPS SLIGHTLY

Thanksgiving turkeys this year may be a little cheaper than they were in 1938, according to latest wholesale quotations here. The best grade of dressed young toms are quoted at 22 to 23 cents a pound, compared with 25½ cents a year ago. Comparable grades of dressed young hens are 25½ cents a pound. Last year they were 26 cents. Recent mild weather over most of the producing territory is considered unfavorable for the quality of the birds. Nearly 32 million turkeys were raised in the United States this year, an all-time record crop.

A Shivering Vagrant Gets a Coat, Turns Up a Secret

When Mrs. William F. Croak gave away her son's old coat she gave away not only a ring, but a secret, she learned yesterday. A shivering vagrant got the coat one day last week at the Croak home at 4742 Cedar avenue, Hammond. Yesterday, when Mrs. Croak's son, Arthur, 23 years old, looked for it, his mother broke the news. Arthur almost wept. Then he revealed that his wedding ring had been sewed in the lining. And that was the first his mother knew that he had been secretly married five weeks ago.

WOMAN'S BLOOD GIVEN TO CHILD LEUKEMIA VICTIM

Philadelphia, Pa., Nov. 16 (AP).—A woman who responded to a mother's nation-wide appeal gave her blood today in an attempt to save the life of Kathryn Felt, 7 years old, ill of an unusual blood disease.

In a 30 minute operation, physicians effected the transfusion of 100 cubic centimeters of blood from Mrs. Joseph Root Jr., 56, wife of a Westport, Conn., manufacturing executive. She was among more than 100 persons who volunteered aid.

The child has been fighting since last July against lymphatic leukemia—a malady involving a breakdown of the body's blood-making machinery. Physicians have said her case is hopeless, asserting no cure for the disease is known to medical science. Mrs. Root offered to give her blood in the belief she had recovered from lymphatic leukemia by which she thought she was stricken 15 years ago.

Hundreds Are Invited to Meet Elsie Tuesday

OBITUARIES

E. W. Brown.

Rockford, Ill., Nov. 16 [Special].—E. W. Brown, 82 years old, three times mayor of Rockford before the turn of the century, died tonight at his home from complications due to his advanced age. Instrumental in bringing the Illinois Central railroad line to Rockford in 1884, he was the road's first agent here. In one of the city's most spectacular municipal elections he defeated Amasa Hutchins for the office of mayor in 1895 and was reëlected in 1897 and 1899. He had previously served seven years as a 2d ward alderman. He was credited with conceiving the city's water system in 1897, and was one of the promoters of the Hotel Nelson. He was the son of the late Judge William Brown, first Rockford resident elected to the circuit bench. He was born here Aug. 8, 1857.

Joseph Smith.

Joseph Smith, 77 years old, a retired police captain, died yesterday in his home at 7340 Blackstone avenue. He retired in 1924 after 33 years on the force. Surviving are his widow, Julia; three sons, and three daughters. Funeral services will be held at 9:30 a. m. Monday from the home to St. Laurence church, 72d street and Dorchester avenue. Burial will be in Mount Olivet cemetery.

Capt. Fred E. Hamlen.

Pocassett, Mass., Nov. 16 [Special].—Capt. Fred E. Hamlen, master mariner of the New England Steamship company for 20 years, died yesterday at his summer home here on the eve of his 80th birthday. The hero of the 1924 collision between the S. S. Boston and the tanker Swift Arrow, in which he stood by with his ship, the Priscilla, and took 480 passengers from the Boston, retired on a pension in 1929.

Frederick Abbot Stokes.

New York, Nov. 16 (AP).—Frederick Abbot Stokes, 82 years old, publisher, died at his home last night. In 1881 he established the publishing house which bears his name and of which he was president at the time of his death. He continued active in the firm until a few weeks ago.

Isidor Baumgartl.

Isidor Baumgartl, a pioneer industrialist in Chicago, died yesterday in his home at 5000 East End avenue after a three weeks' illness. Mr. Baumgartl, who was 79 years old, started in business in Chicago in 1878 as bookkeeper for a liquor house. At his death he was chairman of the board of the United Breweries company, chairman of the Brasco Manufacturing company, and a director of the Federal American Cement Tile company. He also was the author of several books. Surviving are three daughters, Mrs. Lilly Freund, Mrs. Olga Greenhill, and Mrs. Gertrude Wolf, and a son, Le Roy. Funeral services will be held at 2:30 p. m. today in the chapel at 936 East 47th street, with burial in Rosehill cemetery.

William R. Halket.

William R. Halket, 95 years old, who was in the livery business in Chicago for many years before the advent of automobiles, died yesterday in his home at 2830 North Racine avenue. He was born in Glasgow, Scotland. Surviving are his widow, Charlotte, also 95, to whom he was married for 73 years, and five daughters and three sons. Funeral services will be held at 2 p. m. tomorrow in the chapel at 2742 Lincoln avenue. Burial will be in Memorial Park cemetery.

August L. Janssen.

New York, Nov. 16 [Special].—August L. Janssen, 72 years old, one of New York's best known restaurateurs, died today. From 1898 to 1938 he conducted the Hofbrau Haus at Broadway and 30th street, opposite the old Daly's theater. It was Janssen's custom to sound a bell whenever a new keg of beer was tapped, and as many as 30 were kept on tap at one time.

Charles H. Elliott.

Buffalo, N. Y., Nov. 16 (AP).—Charles H. Elliott, 60 years old, of Youngstown, O., a Republic Steel corporation executive, died in a hotel room here today. Medical Examiner Paul J. Rutecki said Elliott died after a heart attack. He was vice president of Republic in charge of operations.

2,000 ATTEND U. OF C. MEMORIAL SERVICE FOR JAMES W. LINN

More than 2,000 persons attended a memorial service yesterday for Prof. James Weber Linn in the Rockefeller chapel on the University of Chicago campus. Prof. Linn, who was in the English department at the university for 40 years, died July 16.

Robert M. Hutchins, president of the university, paid tribute to Prof. Linn's qualities of honesty and loyalty. Others at the service included Harold H. Swift, chairman of the university board of trustees; Frederic Woodward, vice president emeritus; Charles W. Gilkey, dean of the chapel, and Percy H. Boynton, professor of English. United States Senator James M. Slattery read a message from Gov. Horner.

GEORGE GRAHAM, POLONIUS IN 'HAMLET,' IS DEAD

George Graham, an actor who played the part of Polonius in the company now presenting "Hamlet" in the Grand Opera house, died yesterday of cirrhosis of the liver in his room in the Hotel Sherman. He was 64 years old. Mr. Graham was taken ill following the close of the performance last Saturday night.

Before joining the "Hamlet" cast Mr. Graham had been with the Theater Guild for five or six years, playing feature parts in many of the guild's productions. His home was in Dorchester, Dorset, England. He was a widower. There were no children and he had no relatives in this country. A brother, Walter Graham, lives in England.

FALL MANEUVERS HAILED BY KEEHN AS A BIG SUCCESS

Rockford, Ill., Nov. 16 [Special].—Here to inspect 2,600 Chicago troops at Camp Grant, Maj. Gen. Roy D. Keehn, commander of the Illinois National Guard, declared the fall training program an outstanding success.

The maneuvers, Maj. Gen. Keehn said, have been more valuable than the regular summer encampment.

Movements of troops in the eastern section of the camp were observed this afternoon by camera equipped planes of the 108th observation squadron. Tonight they were making an attack against a mythical enemy force on a fortified hill, recessing the battle at midnight and resuming it at dawn tomorrow. The 132d infantry, the 108th combat engineers, the 124th field artillery, and division special troops are training here this week.

Dons Wedding Ring as Dead Fiance Is Laid in Grave

Colebrook, N. H., Nov. 16 (AP).—Deprived by death of the bridegroom she would have married next Saturday, Miss Ida Knapp donned the wedding ring of Clayton Bennett Jr. just before the youth was borne to his grave, it became known tonight. Young Bennett, crushed to death beneath his overturned automobile last Saturday, was carrying their marriage license and two rings. Yesterday the girl stood beside his bier while the young man's father placed the wedding ring on her finger. The other ring encircled the finger of the dead youth.

ISABELLA BROWN, LEAVES $480,000; BULK TO CHARITY

Mrs. Isabella A. Brown, widow of George Brown, one time member of the board of trade, left an estate valued at $480,000, it was disclosed yesterday when her will was filed with Clerk Frank Lyman in Probate court. The will provides annuities for five relatives and leaves Mrs. Brown's home at 850 Lawrence avenue to her brother-in-law, Benjamin R. Brown.

The bulk of the estate will be divided among the British Old Peoples' Home at Brookfield, the Church Home for the Aged, 5445 Ingleside avenue; St. Mary's Home for Children, 2822 Jackson boulevard, and the Lawrence Hall for Boys, 4853 North Francisco avenue. The will was filed by the law firm of Downs and Howe. Benjamin R. Brown is named co-trustee with the Northern Trust company.

Mrs. Brown, who was 88 years old, died Nov. 10.

CHICAGO LIVE STOCK

One of the sharpest declines of the season swept the market for hogs at the Chicago stockyards yesterday. Young hogs at the close of the session sold at the lowest prices in more than five years. Best grades finished at $6.05, altho a few lights early in the day reached $6.15. The latter price was equal to the lowest for any day since June 9, 1934.

The day's early top showed a loss of 20 cents compared with the preceding session, while the average at $5.90 was down 25 cents. Numerous large consignments on the final rounds of trading were purchased 35 cents under the average of the day previous.

Steers and yearlings met improved demand at stronger prices yesterday, some sales showing rather substantial gains over the recent lows. Lambs dipped 15 to 25 cents to the lowest price levels since Aug. 30.

Day by Day on the Farm

By BOB BECKER

The Goose Eats High.

November 16, 1939.

THE wild geese on the Du Page county farm are not going to let any corn go to waste this fall. The big honkers have been doing a pretty thoro job of picking up the grain that was left on the ground when the corn was picked. There is nothing surprising about the visits of the geese to the cornfields. These big birds invariably will choose a big cornfield, a winter wheat field, or other tract of agricultural land as a feeding place in preference to spending much of their time hunting for aquatic food in lakes or marshes.

Whether the mallards watch the geese and follow them to the best grain fields or whether the geese take a tip from the mallards and tag after them to cornfields we do not know. But we have seen several mixed flocks of these birds dropping into cornfields in the southern part of the state. And noisy flocks of honkers working into cornfields in northern Illinois and southern Wisconsin are not an uncommon sight during the fall and early spring.

Gander Finds New Love.

Dr. Karl Christofferson, well known ornithologist and bird bander who lives at Blaney Park, northeast of Manistique in the upper peninsula of Michigan, writes us about the Canada geese on the Du Page county farm. He says he knows there is a pretty good sized flock of honkers on the farm and he wants to find out if we have ever known one of them to desert its mate after the latter has been injured. The point he has in mind is this: A common belief is that geese mate for life. Dr. Christofferson says he has evidence to refute that theory. One of his ganders, deserted by its faithless mate, later mated with another goose. He writes:

"I have several geese here with me on Tee lake. Last spring the goose was sitting on her eggs. One afternoon she came back to her nest and found her mate badly crippled as a result of a clash with a porcupine. As you know, Bob, we have plenty of those animals around and the gander, willing to battle anything near his mate and the nest, sailed into this one. We had a difficult time extracting some 30 quills from this poor gander. He was pretty sick when the job was done.

A Faithless Wife.

"I was startled by the attitude of this gander's mate. She would have nothing to do with him. Moreover, she left her nest and eggs and the eggs were just about to hatch. I never would have believed that a wild goose would leave its nest and its eggs like that.

"All of this happened late one afternoon. I caught the old goose and put her back on her nest. The sick gander, badly wounded by the porky quills, was resting not far from the nest. But the goose would have none of him nor was she even remotely interested in her precious eggs.

Flies Away from Him.

The next day she disappeared. She flew out over the lake with the pitiful honking of her deserted mate in her ears. I have never seen that goose from that day to this. She has left us for good.

"This episode was surprising enough. But the behavior of the injured gander completed the case. When he recovered he immediately found a new mate, a young goose that was on the lake. This pair is living with me now, both attesting to the fact that wild geese do not mate for life."

CANADIAN TRADE RESTRICTED BY WAR MEASURES

Bankers Note Effect of Control Here.

BY THOMAS FURLONG.

The extension by Canada of its wartime program of central economic control is bringing a rapid transformation in commercial relations with the United States.

Altho the wartime control of foreign exchange in Canada has been in force for only two months, there are already indications that it will have a restrictive effect on trade with the United States. This was disclosed by inquiries yesterday in foreign trade and banking circles.

Thousands of routine business transactions between this country and Canada are being subjected daily to the scrutiny of the Canadian exchange control authorities. The regulations that the foreign exchange control board [FECB] have promulgated are designed to prevent the movement of capital out of the country and to maintain in the United States dollar balances sufficient to meet present needs and anticipated future requirements.

Eleven Banks Deputized.

The eleven big banking systems of Canada that operate under charter from the central government are deputized to see that the regulations of the FECB are enforced. They are charged with the responsibility of seeing that foreigners do not siphon capital out by masquerading such transfers as routine business transactions.

The regulations of the board have been construed in most instances so as to avoid disturbance to normal trade between the two countries. This policy can be followed, however, only to the extent that it does not conflict with fundamental war aims for which the exchange control was set up.

In the transition to a war-time economy Canada has adopted controls similar to those of the dictator states of Europe. Both Germany and Italy have had in force for many years rigid control over exchange transactions that were designed to keep capital at home and build up foreign credits for the purchase of those necessities which were not available at home.

License All Foreign Trade.

Canada is licensing all import and export transactions. In the case of a great many articles this is only a formality. Licenses have been issued without restriction so far on imports into Canada from the United States.

The licensing system, however, gives the FECB power to tighten restrictions at any time if such a step should prove expedient. In addition to the licensing under the FECB regulations the government thru its wartime prices and trades board requires special licenses for the export of certain commodities.

The board has taken over control of outgoing shipments of metals. Nickel, copper, lead, zinc, aluminum, ferro-alloys, asbestos, and scrap metals have been included in the list of articles for which special export permits must be obtained.

Wool Exports Halted.

The prices and trade board has designated administrators for other commodities such as wool, sugar, and leather. Exports of wool have been stopped because wartime demands have created an acute shortage of this commodity. The import duty on refined sugar has been removed to encourage the replenishment of supplies which were depleted by the abnormal demand that developed immediately after the outbreak of war.

The government has conferred broad powers on the prices and trades board to license manufacturers and dealers, fix maximum prices and establish quotas for the distribution of goods among distributors. It is uncertain as yet to what extent the board will use these powers.

Of immediate concern to American corporations and banks which are doing business with Canada is the delay in settlements and clearances of checks as a result of the regulations of the exchange board. Many of the checks sent to this country for payment of goods do not carry the necessary approval of the exchange authorities and payment is subject to delays.

Banks Vary Procedure.

Some banks are giving customers immediate credit on Canada checks, subject to later drawbacks if the check fails to clear. Other delay crediting the account until remittance has been made.

New problems are arising daily in connection with the exchange regulations. One example is the remittance to which the American owning a farm in Canada is entitled to receive in income. The regulations permit the remittance of the proceeds of crop collections in "normal amounts" to nonresident owners. Income from such collections varies so widely from year to year that it is uncertain what the exchange authorities will allow as normal income. In one case a Chicago resident owning a farm in Canada has received no income from his investment in several years. This year the crop return promises to give a fair yield but it is uncertain whether the proceeds will classify as normal income under the exchange regulations.

Nonresident owners of Canadian securities are entitled to receive dividends on their investments, but they are not permitted to sell their holdings and withdraw the proceeds. If a purchaser can be found in this country the investor can get his money,

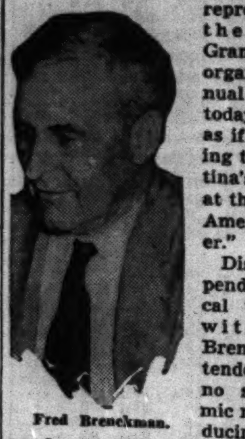
Farm Leader Rips Argentine Trade Treaty



Fred Brenckman.

Peoria, Ill., Nov. 16 (AP). — Fred Brenckman, Washington legislative representative of the National Grange, told the organization's annual convention today, "It looks as if we were going to buy Argentina's friendship at the cost of the American farmer."

Discussing the pending reciprocal trade treaty with Argentina, Brenckman contended there was no sound economic reason for reducing tariffs on products coming into the United States from the South American nation.

Brenckman, speaking to Grange delegates representing more than 800,000 farm folk, declared a diplomatic or political motive lay behind the treaty.

Doubts Argentine Friendship.

"Argentina has been traditionally unfriendly to the attitude of this country that it is the guardian of the western hemisphere under the Monroe Doctrine," he said. "In order to maintain this policy, which makes us the protector of the two Americas and the democratic form of government, it is desirable that we should have the support and friendship of the Argentine.

"Under the Argentine agreement it inevitably follows that the American farmer will to an increasing extent lose the domestic market and will be compelled to accept lower prices for the products involved. There will be more farm mortgage foreclosures and there will be an increased number of farm owners who will be reduced to the tenant class or will be driven into the ranks of relief workers."

Criticizes Pact with Britain.

Brenckman also expressed dissatisfaction with the working of the British reciprocal trade agreement, which became operative last January. With Britain at war "approximately 90 per cent of the American products on which tariff concessions were made by Great Britain are on the prohibited list," he said.

"Conditions regarding British imports into the United States remain unchanged," he asserted. "In other words, anything Britain can ship may come in to us free from quotas, restrictions, and currency regulations.

"France, Belgium, and Italy benefited equally with Great Britain thru the agreement we made with the United Kingdom. All these countries are free of import restrictions so far as we are concerned.

"We sit, in an attitude of warm welcome, watching the flow of low cost farm products and other commodities replacing our domestic production at prices we cannot meet unless and until we reduce the American wage level and standard of living to the level prevailing in the countries from which these imports come."

CHICAGO RESERVE BANK RESOURCES OVER 3 BILLIONS

Resources of the Federal Reserve Bank of Chicago passed the three billion dollar mark yesterday for the first time. This was reported by George J. Schaller, president, on the occasion of the bank's 25th anniversary. When the institution opened its resources totaled $63,553,000.

Officers and employés marked the bank's anniversary with a banquet and dance in the bank's halls last night. Schaller was the principal speaker. Silver service medals were presented to nine employés who have been with the bank since it opened.

Walter J. Cummings has reëlected a class A director of the bank by member banks in group 1, to serve for three years beginning Jan. 1. His present term will expire Dec 31. Cummings is chairman of the Continental Illinois National Bank and Trust company. Max Wellington Babb was reëlected a class B director by member banks in group 3 to serve for the same term. He is president of Allis-Chalmers Manufacturing company, Milwaukee, Wis.

FREIGHT TRAFFIC DECLINE IS LESS THAN SEASONAL

The Association of American Railroads reported yesterday that a decrease in the amount of freight shipped last week was less than seasonal. A total of 785,961 cars was loaded, a decrease of 19,901 cars, or 2.5 per cent, from the preceding week. The total, however, was 149,515 cars, or 23.5 per cent, more than a year ago.

Grain shipments increased slightly over the previous week altho other classes of freight declined. Loadings of the various commodities and comparisons with the preceding and 1938 weeks follow:

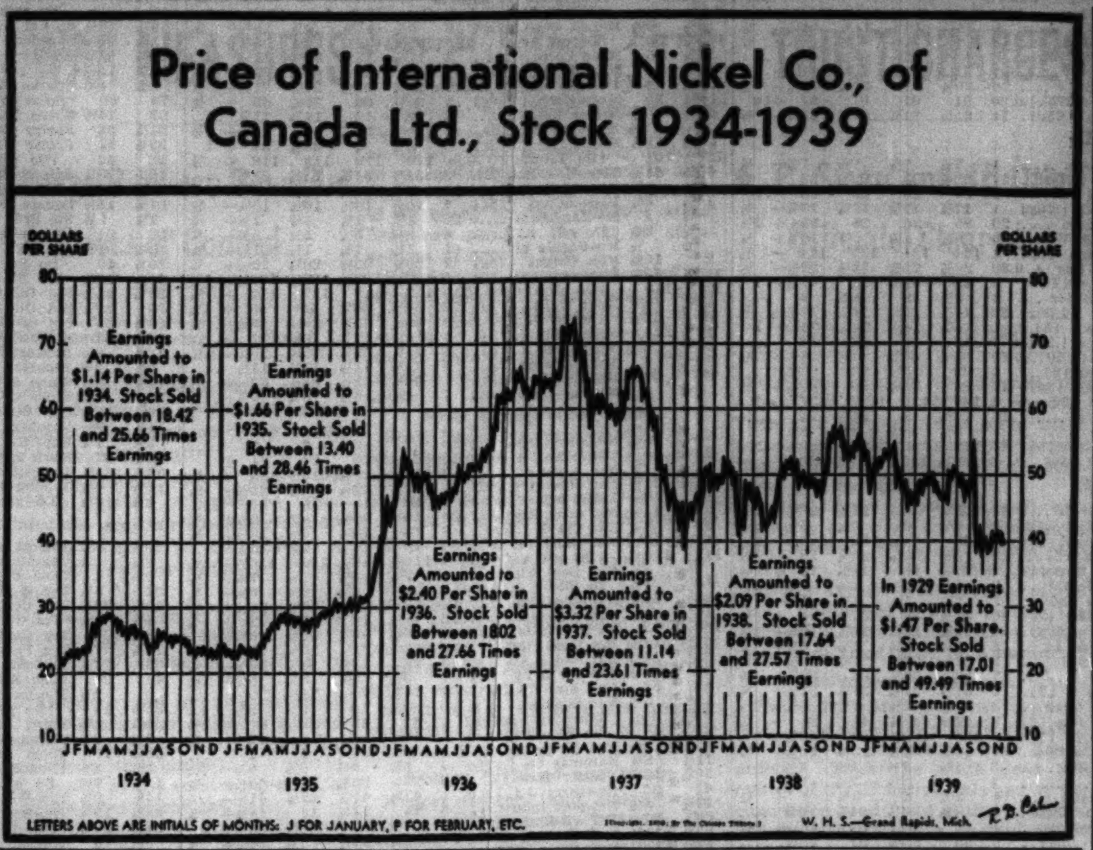
Sanitary District Signs Contract to Sell Sludge

The sanitary district yesterday approved a five year contract with H. J. Baker & Bros. of Chicago and New York, distributors of organic fertilizers by which the company will purchase sludge from the new southwest sewage treatment works and the Calumet works. The two plants produce about 150,000 tons of sludge a year. The company agreed to buy at a price to guarantee the sanitary district $300,000 a year.



Oil Discovery Assures More Illinois Riches

Centralia, Ill., Nov. 16 [Special].—More oil riches were assured for southern Illinois today when a fourth producing layer was struck in the Lake Centralia-Salem pool, richest oil field in the state. The field was already producing from three depths, all at shallower levels than the new discovery.

The well, drilled by the Kingwood Oil company, flowed 490 barrels in the first seven hours, or at a rate of more than 1,500 barrels a day. It is producing from Devonian limestone, at a depth of 3,405 to 3,430 feet. The previous producing formations in the field are Benoist sand, 1,770 feet; Aux Vases sand, 1,840, and McClosky limestone, 2,000 feet.

Expect Rush of Drilling.

Other operators in the field have been closely watching the Kingwood test, and the striking of oil in the Devonian formation is expected to touch off a new drilling spree in the area. The majority of acreage in the Salem field is controled by leading oil companies, but small strips in the midst of big blocks of leases are held by small independent producers.

If the small operators follow the practice they used when the oil was discovered at the higher depths last year, they will rush their drilling operations to get the oil as fast as possible from the new level. This in turn will force the big companies holding adjoining leases to drill at once to the deeper levels to keep the oil from being drained out from under their ground. This is known as offset drilling. Two other operators besides Kingwood already are sinking wells to the Devonian limestone formation.

Kingwood's well was drilled on the farm of James O. Shanafelt, who already has received some of the largest royalty payments in this area for oil produced on his farm at the higher levels. When Shanafelt first struck oil last year he bought six new cars, one for each member of his family. His income is estimated at more than $300 a day.

Called Important Discovery.

Dr. Alfred H. Bell of Urbana, head of the state oil and gas division, said that the new Kingwood well is one of the most significant discoveries in Illinois field this year.

"It is impossible to estimate yet how much of an increase this discovery will mean in the oil supplies of Illinois," Dr. Bell said, "but it is almost certain that it will be many millions of barrels. The subsoil structure in that area is the most favorable for oil production that has yet been discovered in the state."

The area of the land producing from the three higher levels in the Salem field is 10,000 acres.

PIRIE MADE CHAIRMAN, SCOTT PRESIDENT OF CARSON PIRIE SCOTT

Carson Pirie Scott & Co. announced yesterday that John T. Pirie resigned as president at a meeting of its board of directors and was elected chairman of the board. Frederick H. Scott, vice president, was chosen president.

Pirie, son of one of the founders of Carson Pirie Scott & Co., joined the organization 46 years ago. He had been its president for the last 10 years. Last April Pirie was named one of the nine members of the Chicago Association of Commerce committee to direct the greater Chicago campaign.

He is also a director of the Northern Trust company, a director of the Public Service Company of Northern Illinois, and vice president of the Chicago Zoölogical park in Brookfield. He is 68 years old.

Scott is also a son of one of the early members of the firm and became associated with the company in 1901. As vice president he directed the wholesale branch of the business. He is 60 years old. He formerly was president of the Wholesale Dry Goods institute.

SANITARY BOARD REFUNDS BONDS, SAVES INTEREST

The sale of $4,661,500 of Sanitary District bonds to refund an equal amount of bonds outstanding was approved by the trustees yesterday. It is expected refunding will result in a saving of approximately $1,000,000 in interest charges over a 15 year period.

The bonds to be refunded were issued in the district's comprehensive refunding program of 1935. They were part of the series B issue and carried the following interest rates: $521,000 at 5 per cent; $1,541,000 at 4½ per cent; and $2,600,000 at 4¼ per cent. The district is exercising its option to call the bonds on Jan. 1, 1940, at par. They will be refunded with the $4,661,500 issue, which will mature Jan. 1, 1955. The new bonds are callable in series over a 15 year period.

If the bonds should sell on a 3 per cent interest basis, the interest saving would amount to $990,337 from 1940 to 1955.

REPUBLIC STEEL WORKERS APPEAL DECREE OF NLRB

Cleveland, O., Nov. 16 (AP).—Independent unions of the Republic Steel corporation employés announced today their intention to "continue our fight" against a National Labor Relations board order upheld by the United States Court of Appeals at Philadelphia.

"We have instructed our attorney immediately to appeal the decision to the Supreme court," said Edward O'Connell, of Buffalo, chairman, in a statement. The delegates cannot understand how any court would put its stamp of approval on violence which occurs during a strike."

The NLRB order, O'Connell said, attempts to disestablish some independent unions and the central council as collective bargaining agent.

"We represent a vast majority of the workers in Republic Steel," he said. "The very provision of the Wagner act which should be used to protect these majorities is being used in an attempt to destroy us."

EASTERN ROADS WILL CONTINUE PRESENT FARES

New York, Nov. 16 (AP).—Principal eastern railroads today decided to continue present passenger fares. F. E. Williamson, chairman of the Eastern Railroads Presidents conference, announced the roads had voted to apply to the interstate commerce commission for a nine-month extension of the present basis of fares.

Current rates were scheduled to have expired Jan. 24 next. They are 2½ cents a mile for one-way travel in coaches, with a sliding scale of 2¼ cents to 1½ cents for round-trip travel. The Pullman scale ranges from 3 cents a mile one way to as low as 2.7 cents a mile for round trips.

United Specialties Co. to Move Its Offices Here

Principal offices of United Specialties company, manufacturer of automobile parts and accessories, will be moved to Chicago from Detroit within a few days, a Dow-Jones dispatch said yesterday.

Federal Dairy Control Plans Under Attack

While the dairy industry laid plans for a million dollar advertising campaign, delegates to the convention of the National Coöperative Milk Producers' federation yesterday disagreed on the necessity for public control of dairy prices and marketing.

Arthur H. Lauterbach, manager of the Pure Milk association, Chicago, told representatives of the industry at the Congress hotel that the federal milk marketing order for Chicago is virtually a "dream" plan.

R. S. Waltz, general manager of the United Dairymen's association, Seattle, Wash., and C. R. George of Marion, Ind., manager of Producers' Creamery, expressed opposition to the government's plan.

Public Control "No Solution."

George declared that farm coöperatives will solve the farm marketing problem if they are given "a fair break with authority to control, sell, and to distribute the cost of surpluses and of operation to all units of the commodity."

Waltz said that in many instances consumer reaction to government control has resulted in decreased consumption of dairy products and farmers have been deprived of hundreds of thousands of dollars that could have been added to their incomes.

Believe Milk Rule Suicide.

"If this procedure continues," he said, "many of our good coöperatives will find a few years hence that milk control was a suicidal pact."

Lauterbach in expressing approval of the federal milk policy in Chicago said the marketing program takes the responsibility for price negotiations away from the coöperative and leaves it in a better position to serve its members with regard to cutting shipping and production costs by introduction of more advanced methods.

Officials of the federation said most of the advertising will be placed in newspapers.

CONSTRUCTION AWARDS SECOND LARGEST OF YEAR

New York, Nov. 16 (AP).—Engineering construction awards for the week ended Tuesday totaled $96,416,000, the second largest amount for any week this year, Engineering News-Record reported today.

Private awards were 182 per cent larger than in the corresponding week last year, exceeding their respective 1938 values for the tenth consecutive week. Public construction was 39 per cent above a year ago. Nine large projects amounting to almost $30,000,000 contributed to the sharp increase in public awards.

Comparison of the week's awards follows:

	This week.	Prev. week.	Year ago.
Private	$28,789,000	$20,476,000	$10,195,000

ARMOUR PROFIT FOR YEAR IS PUT AT 6½ MILLIONS

Packing Firm Had a Loss in 1938.

Preliminary figures and estimates indicate Armour & Co. had earnings of about $6,500,000 in its fiscal year ended Oct. 28, George A. Eastwood, president, said yesterday. Last year the company, one of the largest meat packing concerns in the United States, showed net loss of $1,505,089.

George A. Eastwood.

Eastwood's statement was the first official indication of the 1939 operating results of the major packing companies. Armour's earnings were after provision for federal taxes, but before dividends on the guaranteed preferred stock of Armour & Co. of Delaware. Final results would not be known until domestic and foreign figures have been compiled and consolidated, Eastwood said.

Recovery Improves Earnings.

Improvement in the company's earnings was not due to a substantial increase in meat prices, asserted Eastwood, but "rather from increased employment thruout the country, resulting from a definite pickup in industry generally which developed a stronger demand for meat products."

"Hysterical buying at the outbreak of the European war disturbed the market for a few weeks," Eastwood asserted, "but the nation quickly came to a realization that war is not productive of real and lasting profits and that speculation and expansion based on prospective war orders is more likely to cost money than to make money.

Foreign Meat Demand Lacking.

"No foreign demand for meats from this country has developed yet as a result of the war. Our company is endeavoring to operate on the basis of business as it currently exists while making all proper provision for any contingencies that may arise. We believe that if our nation keeps out of war and nurtures its own recovery movement, which has set in, the coming year will be a good one for business in general."

United Electric Coal companies reported net income of $60,931, or 11 cents a share, during the three months ended Oct. 31. This compared with net income of $60,713, or 11 cents a share, in the corresponding period last year. The company has mining properties in Fulton and other Illinois counties and headquarters at Chicago.

Oil Men Fight Federal Rule Over Industry

The American Petroleum institute yesterday threw its weight against the threat of federal encroachment of the oil industry as contained in Representative William P. Cole's bill introduced into the first session of the 76th congress of the United States.

Yesterday's resolution by the A. P. I. on this bill states in part:

"The American Petroleum institute believes that the American system of free enterprise is indispensable to the continuance in this country of the American form of government.

Meet Demand Without Subsidy.

"The American petroleum industry in the past, without the payment to it of subsidies of any kind, has met all demands made upon it in times of war, as well as peace, and in recent years has developed vast underground reserves which will enable the industry to meet all demands that may be made upon it for many years in the future.

"The petroleum industry believes that it is in the best interests of the nation, the states, and the citizens of this country, and in consonance with the American system of government, that the oil resources of this country should be developed under the supervision of the several sovereign states, and not under the control of federal agencies . . . which would result in duplicating many existing state regulatory agencies, and creating conflicts of authority and jurisdiction, and in obstructing rather than aiding the cause of conservation."

Protest Taxation Policy.

A resolution adopted by the interstate conference on automotive taxation described as an "unfair and unjust taxation policy" the "misappropriation of state automotive taxes to purposes other than highway financing, amounting to about $150,000,000 annually."

Two resolutions relating to oil importation were also passed. One urged congress to prevent Mexican crude oil from entering the United States on the ground that a substantial part of the large amount now imported comes from the properties of American companies expropriated by the Mexican government. The other protested the recent trade agreement with Venezuela providing for reducing the import tax on Venezuelan crude oil.

GEN. MOTORS SUED BY STOCKHOLDER OVER BONUS PLAN

New York, Nov. 16 [Special]. — The General Motors corporation and 34 officers and directors were named defendants in a stockholder's suit filed in the federal court today. The suit asked that they give an accounting for return to the corporation of $155,000,000 in assets allegedly "misappropriated, wasted, and squandered" in bonus awards and stock transactions from 1930 to 1938, inclusive.

The suit was filed by Charles E. Singer, owner of 1,400 shares of General Motors common stock, on his own behalf and on behalf of the corporation and all other stockholders. The suit also names General Motor Shares, Inc., a successor to General Motors Management corporation.

Power Commission Calls Chicago Gas Rate Hearing

Washington, D. C., Nov. 16 (AP).—The federal power commission today called a hearing for Dec. 11 on the reasonableness of rates charged by the Natural Gas Pipeline Company of America and a subsidiary for natural gas sold in the Chicago area.

ECCLES' TAXING PLAN ASSAILED IN BUREAU FEUD

Hanes Flails Speech of Reserve Head.

Washington, D. C., Nov. 16 (AP).—A hot repudiation from the treasury of the tax boosting program of Chairman Marriner S. Eccles of the Federal Reserve board fanned into flame again today the smouldering feud between the agencies.

John W. Hanes.

John W. Hanes, acting treasury secretary, belligerently informed reporters that Eccles did not speak for the administration, congress, or the treasury when it came to taxes.

It was the first serious break between the agencies since the treasury was reported to have protested federal reserve bond market operations in September. It was only the latest disagreement, however, of a series going back to 1934.

Eccles Spending Advocate.

Eccles, a former Mormon missionary and Utah banker, has been the most outspoken administration advocate of deficit spending as a means of overcoming depression. Treasury Secretary Henry Morgenthau Jr., a gentleman farmer from President Roosevelt's native Duchess county, New York, has meanwhile silently opposed spending, except for relief—personal loyalty to the President keeping him from open debate with Eccles.

Morgenthau was en route to a vacation on an Arizona ranch when Eccles told a group of St. Louis bankers last Friday night that taxes on small incomes should be increased by cutting exemptions and raising rates in the $5,000 to $50,000 brackets, and taxes on corporations increased by boosting the flat rate on normal profits and restoring a modified undistributed profits levy.

Eccles proposed consumer taxes be reduced by repealing federal excise and state sales taxes, and social security taxes adjusted to the level of benefit payments. He offered the plan as a substitute to proposals from some congressmen for cutting relief.

Doesn't Speak for Treasury.

Hanes, as acting secretary and an avowed opponent of taxes that might hinder business, replied:

"I don't think he [Eccles] spoke for the administration. I doubt seriously if he spoke for congress. I am certain he didn't speak for the treasury."

The administration, Hanes continued, has no fixed tax plan yet. It is waiting to sift thousands of suggestions solicited this summer from business men and also is waiting to get a better idea of how much recent business improvements might increase federal revenue without changing tax rates.

The business outlook, he asserted, is "optimistic." He said he looked for good business for at least six months, even tho there may be a moderate seasonal decline after the peak of Christmas shopping.

Greater Profits, Greater Business
RISE OUT OF TAX SAVINGS IN MASSACHUSETTS

FOR IN MASSACHUSETTS MANUFACTURING CORPORATIONS ENJOY LOWER TAXES THAN IN ANY OTHER MAJOR INDUSTRIAL STATE

A tax dollar saved is a dollar profit; and in Massachusetts low taxes create many such earnings.

Here the manufacturing corporation pays no municipal tax upon manufacturing machinery or tangible industrial property and no special taxes for any particular purpose such as schools, public health or similar public activity. The only local tax paid by a manufacturing corporation is that on real estate.

Add these considerations to the many other industrial advantages of Massachusetts (see box) and you will discover why more and more manufacturers are recognizing and taking advantage of the fact that — it is profitable to produce in Massachusetts!

This Commission is always available to assist you in any investigation you wish to make concerning available sites and opportunities for locating here.

New York Stocks.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Nov. 16.—The stock market shook off early hesitancy today to chalk up gains running to 2 points. The advance was broad, with representative industrial issues prominent. Trading picked up only moderately to 824,690 shares, compared with 634,980 shares yesterday.

Technical factors coming into play after the recent narrow sessions were considered to be the primary stimulant for the advance.

Regarded as notable was the fact that the "better" grade of stocks in contrast to low-priced issues were brought to the fore today.

Active steel shares, including United States Steel, Bethlehem and Republic, posted gains running to 2 points. Chrysler and General Motors climbed 1⅛ and 1 point, respectively. Auto accessory shares also reflected good inquiry.

Eastern Airlines featured the air transportation section with a gain of 1¼ to 26½, a new 1929 peak. Others also found support around their highs for the year. Aviation manufacturing issues also surged ahead.

Most oil, copper, and rubber shares worked fractionally higher. Rail shares perked up with the general list.

Power and light shares moved fractionally higher.

Westinghouse broke out of its narrow range to spurt more than 2 points. General Electric added 1½ points. Farm implement shares also posted good gains. Chemicals made gains running to more than a point. Yellow Truck preferred spurted 3 points to a new high for the year on yesterday's dividend announcement. International Paper and Power preferred advanced 1½ points on good buying.

New York Bonds.

New York, Nov. 16 (AP).—Buyers entered the bond market late today and sent prices higher throughout the list. The quiet upward move was a surprise ending to an otherwise dull day which saw prices sag in the first four hours.

The orders boosted the Associated Press average of 10 industrial bonds to 101.1, its highest point since Sept. 23, 1937, when it reached 101.4.

Rail, utility, foreign, low-yield and United States government issues gained equally well although not reaching new average highs. The advance in the foreign list was especially strong with Latin American, Belgian, and Canadian issues leading in gains running as high as three points. United States governments pushed upward as much as 15-32 point.

Chicago Stocks.

Volume leaders advanced fractionally on the Chicago Stock exchange yesterday in continued light trading. Gains of ⅛ to ½ point were registered by the most active issues. Commonwealth Edison returned to the position of trading favorite. It closed ⅛ higher at 31⅛.

Butler Brothers, Middle West, Berghoff, Marshall Field, W. B. Jarvis, and United Air Lines were other issues finishing on the plus side. Turnover totaled 25,000 shares in 111 issues. Of these, 52 advanced, 20 declined, and 39 closed unchanged.

Bank Stocks.

First National rose 8 points to a bid price of 233 in active bank stock trading yesterday. Northern Trust was up 2 points to 560, and American National, City National, and Harris Trust gained 1 point each.

Commodities

Rubber futures in New York declined .02 to .25 cent a pound yesterday in the wake of the decision of the International Rubber Regulation committee to raise first quarter export quotas to 80 per cent of standard. Fourth quarter quotas were 75 per cent.

Trade circles, however, predicted that prices will advance in the near future. The additional supplies of 7,800 tons monthly represented by the quota increase will not suffice to fill the depleted United States stocks, they said. In addition, British purchases for shipment to the United States under the cotton-rubber barter agreement are to be made before the end of next March, and this concentrated buying will strengthen prices, it was predicted.

There was no definite price trend in other New York commodity futures. Sugar, lead, Santos coffee, cocoa, and cottonseed oil were slightly lower. Hides, copper, wool tops, and silk advanced. The gains in wool ran to 1.6 cents a pound, while silk was up as much as 5½ cents a pound.

Tin was irregular, and Rio coffee and zinc unchanged.

LATIN AMERICAN BUYING SWELLS OCTOBER EXPORTS

Total Exceeds September by 14 Per Cent.

Washington, D. C., Nov 16 (AP).—The department of commerce announced tonight that larger purchases from Latin America, which has been cut off from some European markets by the war, caused an increase in American exports last month.

Preliminary figures showed October exports of $323,000,000, or 14 per cent more than in September, and 18 per cent more than in October of last year.

October shipments to Cuba, Mexico, Argentina, Brazil, Columbia, Chile, and Venezuela aggregated $47,617,000, or more than $11,000,000 in excess of sales to those countries in September.

England Reduces Purchases.

England, Belgium, and the Netherlands made smaller purchases here, while nothing could be shipped to Germany or Poland. Canada, Japan, France, Denmark, Norway, and Sweden increased purchases in the United States.

Among commodities, increased exports were reported for raw cotton, fruit, automobiles, trucks, machinery, chemicals, and iron and steel products. Decreases were noticed in leaf tobacco, airplanes, and copper. The arms embargo interfered with airplane exports.

Buys Less Tobacco.

England, normally the leading customer of America, dropped its purchases from $60,049,999 in September to $51,939,000 in October. England made smaller purchases of tobacco, petroleum, steel scrap, and copper.

Russia's $5,455,000 of purchases here in October were about four times those of September, but were less than the average for the first 10 months of the year.

Contributing to the $23,313,000 total of Japan's purchases in October was a resumption of buying of American cotton. Japan usually has been one of America's best cotton customers, but has been intentionally restricting such purchases in the last few years.

FOR HIS WIFE.

I have some shares of Sears, Roebuck & Co. stock. I am married and have a son. If I leave no will, how can I arrange to have my wife receive this stock without going thru Probate court? Do I pay any tax?—L. D.

Answer: You can arrange to transfer your stock to a joint tenancy with your wife by applying at the First National bank of Chicago, the transfer agent for the stock. The bank will execute a transfer of the stock from your name to the joint tenancy, which means you and your wife both own the stock.

Upon your death your wife can submit the death certificate and a consent issued by the state inheritance tax office to the transfer agent. The stock will then be recorded in your wife's name only.

On this transaction the federal stock transfer tax applies. The tax in this instance will be 4 cents a share because no consideration is received by the person making the change in ownership. The state of Illinois does not levy a transfer tax, but other states do.

When the transfer is made for a consideration the tax is 5 cents for each $100 of par value or fraction thereof, or 5 cents a share for stock of no par value, selling for $20 or more a share, and at less than $20, 4 cents a share. When the transfer is made for no consideration the tax is 4 cents a share.

When the transfer is made for a consideration the tax is 5 cents a share on stock of $100 par, or of no par value, selling for $20 or more a share, and at less than $20, 4 cents a share. For stocks of less than $100 par value 5 cents is paid for each $100 of combined par value. When the transfer is made for no consideration the tax is 4 cents a share.

YIELD.

Answer: The term "yield" is usually applied to the income from bonds, altho the income from stocks can also be thought of as yield.

The current yield is the rate of return on the basis of price paid without regard to maturity or call date. The current yield is computed by dividing the coupon rate by the price of the bond.

Apparent yield or true yield are terms rarely used. True yield may mean yield to maturity. Apparent yield may refer to the interest or coupon rate without reference to price, or it may mean the current yield.

Special formulas have been prepared for use by bond dealers and others who desire to compute yield to maturity. A copy of one of these methods of calculation may be obtained from Investors' Guide by requesting the "bond yield formula." The inquiry should be accompanied by a stamped, addressed envelope.

IDLE BANK FUNDS REDUCED IN WEEK BY 180 MILLIONS

Excess Reserves Fall from Oct. 25 Peak.

Idle money of member banks in the federal reserve system decreased $180,000,000 during the week ended Wednesday, the federal reserve board reported yesterday. Excess reserves have declined $360,000,000 from the peak reached in the week ended Oct. 25 and now total $5,170,000,000.

The board ascribed the decrease to increases in treasury deposits and treasury cash and a slight decline in federal reserve bank credit. These were partially offset by a drop of $25,000,000 in money in circulation, a decrease in nonmember deposits, and increases in the gold stock.

Details of the report follow:

WHEAT RALLIES AFTER SETBACK ON LIGHT RAINS

Light rains in southeastern Kansas, eastern Oklahoma and parts of Missouri gave the wheat market an easy undertone early yesterday. The rainfall, however, was regarded as being too light to be of material benefit and when shorts tried to cover they found little wheat for sale. Prices advanced about ¾ cent from the early low and closed at the top. Net gains on the Chicago Board of Trade were ⅛ cent to ½ cent, with the December delivery showing the most strength.

Buying of corn attributed to exporters and reports that large quantities of cash grain would be shipped out of Chicago to the east before the close of lake navigation resulted in an advance of ⅜ cents to ⅝ cent.

Rye and soy beans were affected by the action of other grains and prices were slightly higher at the close.

CANADIAN TRADE IS RESTRICTED BY WAR MEASURES

Chicago Bankers Describe Effect of Control.

because the operation does not involve a remittance by Canada to this country. The purchaser here makes the funds available.

The exchange control board has listed a number of items on which immediate remittance in American dollars will be made to nonresidents at the official rate of exchange. These include:

1. Canadian currency received in ordinary course of business.

2. Dividend checks on Canadian securities.

3. Pensions and annuity payments to individuals who qualified as nonresidents on Sept. 15 [the date the regulations were issued].

4. Checks of the receiver general of Canada [government checks].

5. Trust company and insurance company checks that carry on the face the rubber stamp approval of the FECB.

Permit $5,000 Withdrawal.

Nonresidents are permitted to draw up to $5,000 of liquid funds from Canada. Withdrawal of a larger amount must have special approval.

Canadian citizens living in the United States are permitted to withdraw only $100 a month. To remit larger amounts to citizens outside of Canada special permits must be obtained. Such permits are granted, it is explained, in cases of students and others having legitimate use for the money.

It is the apparent intention of the Canadian authorities to permit American corporations to receive normal dividends from subsidiaries operating in Canada. Removal of capital, however, is not expected to be allowed.

Special regulations have been issued governing the remittance to nonresidents of the proceeds from the liquidation of estates. Beneficiaries outside of Canada are entitled to receive the income accumulated on estates up to Sept. 15 and current income that has since accrued.

Restrictions Applied.

Some restrictions, however, apply to payments of this type exceeding $5,000. Remittances of capital from estates being liquidated are permitted up to $1,000 with special permission required for larger amounts.

The exchange authorities are restricting the use of American bank balances in Canada for the payment of goods purchased by importers in this country. No clear cut ruling has yet been made but in individual cases American importers have been required to remit American dollars for the payment of goods, not being permitted to buy Canadian funds from American banks carrying balances there.

Quoted at Discount.

This policy is apparently intended to prevent American importers from obtaining Canadian funds at a discount from the official rate of exchange maintained by the FECB. All remittances are made at the official rate.

At this rate the Canadian dollar is quoted at a discount of 10 to 11 per cent to the American dollar. Canadian banks buy Canadian funds at a discount of 11 per cent to the American dollar and sell at a 10 per cent discount. In this country, however, the discount on the Canadian dollar at current quotations is about 12¾ per cent.

Canadians must pay higher prices for American goods as a result of the depreciation in the exchange value of their currency. This is an added factor which tends to restrict purchases here.

More Control Predicted.

Continuation of the war for an indefinite period will mean more control over exchange transactions, it is believed here.

Bankers and trade experts declare that the full effect of the new controls in Canada may not be felt for many months in business relationship between the two countries. The longer the war goes on the greater the effect will be, it is agreed.

BANK CLEARINGS GAIN OVER WEEK AND YEAR AGO

New York, Nov. 16 (AP).—Bank clearings in 22 leading cities during the week ended Nov. 15 were kept down by the Armistice day recess. However, the total was slightly higher than for the preceding week, which included the election day holiday, and also increased a trifle over the comparable 1938 period, also a short week, Dun & Bradstreet reported today.

The latest total of $5,175,392,000 was 2.5 per cent larger than the $5,047,483,000 in the similar 1938 period and was $98,486,000 ahead of the preceding week.

New York clearings at $2,946,177,000 were seven-tenths of one per cent less than $2,967,130,000 last year. At outside centers the aggregate of $2,229,215,000 was 7.2 per cent above the $2,080,353,000 for 1938. Chicago volume of $315,500,000 was 3.6 per cent more than for the $304,600,000 in the comparable 1938 week.

EXTRA DIVIDEND PAID BY ABBOTT LABORATORIES

Several Other Firms Act Similarly.

Directors of Abbott Laboratories, Chicago area manufacturer of pharmaceutical products, yesterday declared an extra dividend of 15 cents in addition to the regular quarterly payment of 40 cents on the common stock. Both are payable Dec. 23 to stockholders of record Dec. 7.

Bon Ami corporation authorized two extra dividends. A payment of $2.50 on class A common stock will be made Dec. 15 to holders of record Dec. 1, and a dividend of $1.25 on class B common will be payable the same date.

Scott Paper Votes Extra.

Scott Paper company voted a quarterly payment of 40 cents and an extra of 25 cents, both payable Dec. 15 to stockholders of record Dec. 1.

An extra dividend of $2.50 and the regular quarterly payment of 50 cents, both payable Dec. 20 to stock of record Dec. 1, were voted by Colt's Patent Firearms Manufacturing company. Employés were voted a special payment of 7 per cent of their 1939 earnings. The amount was 6 per cent a year ago.

Kroger Dividend and Bonus.

Kroger Grocery and Baking company announced an interim dividend of 40 cents on the common stock, bringing payments for 1939 to $2.50 a share, compared with $1.90 in 1938. Directors also authorized the distribution of a $350,000 Christmas bonus among employés with one year or more of service who do not participate in the company's regular profit sharing plan. The bonus is approximately double that paid in 1938.

GENERAL MOTORS HELD GUILTY OF TRUST CHARGES

A. P. Sloan and 16 Other Officials Cleared.

the jurors knocked to summon the marshal to open or close a window. Then at 8:15 p. m. there were three knocks. A voice was heard to say, "send for the judge." The courtroom quickly filled.

Judge Lindley took his seat and promptly at 8:30 a little white haired man walked haltingly across the courtroom. He was Harold Geyer, a Lakeville farmer and foreman of the jury. There was a hush among the defendants, who include some of the highest salaried men in America.

Defendants Dismayed.

The court clerk read the jury's report. The defendants were dismayed as the four companies were found guilty. Then the clerk read the names of the 17 individuals and at the conclusion read "not guilty." Smiles and handshakes were exchanged by the defendants and their large entourage.

The other defendants found not guilty are: George F. Benkhart, James D. Deane, Nelson C. Dezendorf, and August Freise, all vice presidents of the General Motors Acceptance corporation; Richard H. Grant, vice president in charge of sales of General Motors; Roy Hill, Dallas, Tex., Chevrolet regional manager; W. F. Hufstader, Buick general sales manager; H. J. Klinger, head of Pontiac; Ralph W. Moore, Chicago branch manager for G. M. A. C.; W. J. Mougey, Pontiac zone manager at Chicago; John J. Schumann Jr., G. M. A. C., president; G. I. Smith, Chevrolet regional manager in Chicago, and Russell Lesher, Oldsmobile manager at Minneapolis.

Baldridge Approves Action.

Baldridge commented:

"The verdict is a step forward in the government antitrust division's policy of obtaining free competition in industries by applying a workable formula as dictated by the needs of each particular individual rather than attempt to apply a single rigid formula to all industries."

The government alleged that the General Motors group had restrained interstate commerce thru forcing General Motors dealers to use G. M. A. C. financing in the purchase and sale of automobiles. The government contended that its objective was to free dealers from being coerced into placing business with G. M. A. C. when they preferred to place it with other finance companies. The government declared that General Motors was using the threat of canceling dealers' contracts as a club to force them to deal with G. M. A. C.

The defense disclaimed that it had coerced its dealers. It termed the government's charge that it was restraining interstate commerce ridiculous in the face of steadily expanding sales of General Motors cars.

As little as $2.00 to $2.26 a week repays in full, including all charges, a $150 loan over 20 months at America's largest loan company. No salary assignments.

$2.00 a week on the average is all you need to set aside for every $150 borrowed on Personal's new amazing "Special" loan plan of only 1½% per month on the actual balance owed. This plan is for persons with a steady income or salary sufficient to meet payments promptly without undue credit strain and a good credit record. You don't need co-makers, life insurance, or bankable securities.

For persons without established credit and employment ratings and who wish to carry a loan larger than 8 to 12% of annual salary or income, Personal offers its "Regular" loan plan. On this plan an average of $2.26 set aside per week takes care of everything on a $150 loan—the charge is based on 3% monthly on unpaid balances of $100 and less and 2% monthly on unpaid balances over $100.

Loans up to $300 on either plan on your personal note or with furniture or auto. Co-maker loans are also available on "Regular" plan. Seize this opportunity to save on loan costs. Come in or telephone today.

Local Loan Gives You SERVICE

Our aim is to offer you whatever plan will enable you to borrow most easily. LOCAL LOAN makes liberal Furniture and Auto Loans, but if you are steadily employed we prefer to make you a loan On Your Signature Only without mortgages or endorsers.

75% of our loans are Signature Only Loans to employed men and women. LOCAL LOAN originated and perfected this service because employed people—young or old and regardless of occupation—are entitled to a simplified loan method. You may obtain $25 to $300—

Salary Loans On Your Signature Only

You make your own repayment terms [repaying any time within 20 months], and you are charged only for the actual time you have the money.

When you deal with LOCAL LOAN you borrow without the knowledge of your employer, friends and relatives.

We cannot tell you all about our service in our advertisement. Just phone one of the following offices. Your loan request can be taken over the telephone so you can obtain the money more quickly when you call in person.

*Based on 20 months. Other amounts from $10 to $300 in proportion. 1 to 20 months to pay.

Save the Difference

Commonwealth's charge is less on all loans than the maximum permitted by law. Our monthly rate of 2½% on loan balances of $150 or less and only 2% on loan balances above applies to ALL TYPES and CLASSES OF LOANS. Any one who can make regular payments can qualify; there is no discrimination. EVERYBODY GETS THIS SAME RATE. Of course, persons whose incomes are above average can afford to make larger payments and thus make substantial reductions in their loan cost.

No credit inquiries of friends or relatives. Applications received by personal call, letter or telephone will receive immediate attention.
